Air Mail Cost Lowest Ever In Bids From Rebuilt Lines

Officials Are Astonished as Prices Range From 17½ to 40 Cents.

43 Offers Admitted; Awards Due Soon

Farley Pleased as U. S. Stands to Save Greatly on Service.

By Felix Bruner.

Aviation companies whose air-mail contracts were canceled have completed reorganization and are fighting to get back their business. This was revealed yesterday when bids were opened at the Postoffice Department for operation of 21 mail routes for a minimum period of three months.

Apparently only three minor companies whose contracts were canceled failed to submit bids, although changes in corporate names in connection with the reorganizations made exact comparisons difficult. In addition, numerous independent concerns submitted proposals.

One result of the bidding was certain. Uncle Sam's air mail will be carried at prices far below those ever paid before. Whistles of astonishment came from the crowd of air lines representatives and spectators gathered around Postmaster General Farley and Second Assistant Postmaster General Branch as bids ranging from 17½ cents to 40 cents per airplane mile were read.

Awards Due Next Week.

Postoffice Department officials and representatives of the Department of Justice immediately began a study of the proposals, with the announcement that contracts will be awarded next week and the mail will be carried by private concerns within 30 days. In all, 45 bids were submitted. Two were thrown out, one because it was not accompanied by a bond and the other because it was a proposal to carry mail on a nonexistent air line.

In studying the 43 bids, officials must determine whether companies whose contracts have been canceled have been reorganized in accordance with the department's demands, and whether companies bidding are capable of carrying out their contracts. Such conditions being satisfactory, the contracts will go to the lowest bidder.

Farley Pleased.

Farley expressed himself as pleased with the bidding. He predicted that the proposals would result in a considerable saving to the Government.

"The competition appeared to be keen and bona fide," he said.

Bank Cashier Foils Thug, Dies

Reaches for Gun, Bandit Beats Him to Draw; Cash Is Saved.

Springfield, Ohio, April 20 (AP).—H. M. Saylor, 57, cashier and president of the Farmers Deposit Bank of South Vienna, near here, defied a bandit's gun today and paid with his life.

The bandit encountered unexpected opposition as Saylor reached for an alarm bell and his own revolver. Fearful of detection, the bandit shot Saylor, wounding him fatally. He fled without loot.

Saylor didn't live to tell the story of the holdup, but officials pieced together information that caused them to believe he had made a fatal attempt to frustrate the holdup.

Several residents said they heard the alarm bell. The revolver Saylor kept in a drawer was found lying beside the body. It had not been discharged. The single bullet that pierced his left cheek just below the temple left no marks on the windows of the cashier's cage, leading officials to believe the bandit had fired through the bars of the cage.

Yeggs Lose 50 Cents On Safe Cracking Job

Atlanta, April 20 (AP).—The police said burglars lost money on a safe-cracking job here early today.

They blasted open the strong box of the Baxter Lumber Co. and got $1.50. Officers said the explosive used cost at least $2.

'Senate in the Way,' Doomed by De Valera

Dublin, Irish Free State, April 20 (AP).—The Dail Eireann passed the second reading of the bill to abolish the Senate today by a vote of 70 to 51.

"The Senate will have to go because it is getting in the way, which is detrimental to the best interests of the state," said President Eamon De Valera.

A 'Little Red House' Causes 'Giant' Uproar

Frankfurter's 'Hot Dogs' Meet There Nightly, Says Britten.

By Robert C. Albright.

A mysterious "little red house in Georgetown," where minor Government officials allegedly meet to shape legislation, last night supplied an interesting sequel to Dr. William A. Wirt's "brain truster" charges.

From the floor of the House, Representative Fred A. Britten, florid-faced, pugnaciously assertive Illinois Republican, yesterday turned the vague light of mystery on the "little red house."

He said the house is occupied by Thomas Corcoran and Benjamin Cohen, Government lawyers, and frequented by Federal Trade Commissioner James M. Landis and Frederic C. Howe, AAA consumers' counsel, among others.

"It is the 'little red house in Georgetown' where are held the meetings which promote the communistic legislation we all talk about in the cloak rooms," said Britten.

"It is the 'little red house in Georgetown' where, every night in the week, from 10 to 18 young men of communistic minds meet, so-called young students—they call them (Prof. Felix) Frankfurter's 'hot dogs.'"

Cannon Jury Hears Letters In Stock Deals

Frelinghuysen Summoned to Tell Gifts; "Little Tin Box" Bared.

By Frank Getty.

Alleged efforts of Bishop James Cannon, jr., to obtain an advance on his ecclesiastical income to deal in stocks through a New York brokerage house in 1928 were brought out yesterday at his trial, as the prosecution probed thoroughly into the bishop's financial standing prior to the campaign against Al Smith.

Portions of two letters from Cannon to Harry Goldhurst, of the brokerage firm of Kable & Co., were read to the jury, indicating, over protests by the defense, that the bishop was "in the market," and not too successfully so, while he was gathering funds for the anti-Smith campaign.

Goldhurst since has served a five-year sentence in Federal Prison for using the mails to defraud, in connection with stock deals. He was released March 29, 1933, with time off for good behavior.

The Government also used the admitted portions of the letters to show that some of Cannon's financial transactions were handled for him by Miss Ada Burroughs, co-defendant with the bishop on charges of conspiracy against the Federal corrupt practices act. Cannon had testified previously she had no knowledge of his financial dealings.

As part of its inquiry, on cross-examination, into the bishop's handling of funds contributed to the anti-Smith campaign in 1928, the prosecution drew from Cannon a statement that he had received only $10,000 from former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey.

The Government promptly subpenaed Frelinghuysen, who will appear as a rebuttal witness next week. Prosecutor John J. Wilson asserted yesterday the former Senator's contributions to Cannon had totaled $20,000.

The trial dragged yesterday as Cannon fenced warily with the prosecutor over his alleged misappropriation of campaign contributions. It is for failure to account for $48,000 contributed by E. C. Jameson, New York fire insurance man, that the bishop and Miss Burroughs are on trial.

Five Hurt in Bus Wreck.

New Castle, Pa., April 20 (AP).—Five passengers were injured when a bus (Nu-Way) bound from New York to Chicago overturned west of Bessemer, Pa., today. The driver said he swerved to avoid hitting a pedestrian, and an approaching car forced him into a ditch.

Britten Asks N. Y. British Consul Recall

Mackenzie-Kennedy's Talk to Navy Committee Also Censured.

Recall of Gerald Campbell, British consul general in New York, for participating in a meeting called to block the Vinson "treaty Navy" bill, yesterday was demanded by Representative Fred A. Britten, Illinois, ranking minority member of the House Naval Affairs Committee.

At the same time, Britten charged Maj. Charles MacKenzie-Kennedy, a British aviation expert, at a meeting of the Naval Affairs Committee yesterday, "in violation of the rules, attempted to talk to the committee and to the chairman with a view to influencing our judgment."

Britten said Campbell addressed a meeting of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom in New York, during its fight on the Vinson Navy bill.

"I am now calling upon the Secretary of State to look into this meeting, held last month," Britten said. "If a British diplomat assisted in the collection of funds to influence legislation pending in Congress, and if he made a speech attempting to influence legislation and to destroy American National defense, he ought to be ordered out of the country."

Britten was repeatedly interrupted by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, who reminded the Illinoisan "that the British government is our friend and we are their friend."

"I hope they will indicate their friendship by paying their debts," Britten retorted. The repartee became heated when Blanton again interrupted.

Britten asked permission to ex-

Sportsman Weds Dorothy Spreckels

New York, April 20 (AP).—Miss Dorothy Spreckles, San Francisco sugar heiress, and Jean Dupuy, French millionaire sportsman, were married today at the Hotel Pierre by the Right Rev. Mgr. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The bride, attended by her sister, Mrs. John Rosekrans, is the daughter of the late Adolph B. Spreckels. Her grandfather, Claus Spreckels, founded the family fortune.

Dupuy is the son of a late French senator. Last winter he brought over a team to compete in the International motorboat races at Palm Beach.

Schoolboy, 14, Shot as Police Battle Gunmen, Killing One

Lincoln, Nebr., April 20 (AP).—A spectacular running gun fight between police and gunmen on Lincoln's main street today cost the life of one desperado and the wounding of a 14-year-old spectator and a gunman.

Hundreds of spectators witnessed the battle as the desperadoes' automobile and a police cruiser flashed through traffic and 10 miles into the country, where the gunmen's car overturned. Police Officers Frank Robbins and Olcott Condit pursued them, and when one of the gunmen refused to drop his weapon after their car was wrecked, he was killed.

His identity was not established immediately. His companions, Walter Dean and Sam Rivett, said he might be "Pretty Boy Floyd for all we know."

Dean, 28, who said he recently was released from a Texas prison farm, was wounded and taken to a hospital. He said his home was in Beaver City, Okla. Rivett, 39, said his home was in Galveston, Tex. Neither police officer was struck by bullets, but Robbins was cut slightly by flying glass.

En route to his home from school after lunch, Luceen Marshall, 14, son of Walter Marshall, was struck in the abdomen by a stray bullet. Little hope was held by physicians for the youth's recovery. His twin sister, Lois, was with him when he fell to the sidewalk. Witnesses said a bullet from the gunmen's car struck the youth.

County Attorney Max G. Towle said first degree murder charges would be filed against Dean and Rivett should the schoolboy die.

The police said positively the slain gunman was not Floyd, Clyde Barrow or John Dillinger.

6,000 Reds Riot in Paris; 200 Injured

Disorders Are Regarded by Some as May Day "Rehearsal."

Paris, April 20 (AP).—A howling mob of 6,000 Communists and Extremists, embittered over the Government's economy pay cuts, engaged hundreds of mobile guards and armed police in violent skirmishes this evening that resulted in 940 arrests and injuries to about 200.

The bloody scenes of mob frenzy and riots early in February were recalled as flying squads of police charged through the streets near the city hall, swinging their clubs right and left in an attempt to disperse the surly throng.

City Hall Guarded.

By the time nearly 1,000 had been arrested and the others driven from pillar to post by the wildly swinging police clubs, the demonstration faded out. But before the demonstrators dispersed many heads were cracked in hand-to-hand fighting and cafe windows were smashed.

May Day Rehearsal.

Some quarters viewed the disorders as a sort of May Day "rehearsal."

Police repeatedly charged into the crowds of Communists, swinging their clubs, to sweep the streets near the city hall clean of demonstrators.

Many shoppers were caught in the vigorous fighting and were trampled. One aged woman was hurt seriously.

Virginian Injured As Horse Is Killed

Held Under Mount When Struck by Truck.

Pinned beneath his horse when the animal was knocked down by a beer truck and killed, John Wells, 30, of Lewinsville, Va., suffered a possible fractured skull and a compound fracture of the right arm on the Lee highway, near Falls Church yesterday.

Wells, according to Fairfax County police, was riding a horse belonging to Miss Emma Hinkins. The beer truck, operated by Ira Leer, of Marketon, Pa., attempted to pass another machine and struck the horse.

Leer was held by Fairfax County authorities pending the outcome of Wells' injuries.

Russ Archbishop Dies in New York

Rojeeftvensky Once Held Usurper by Court.

New York, April 20 (AP).—Archbishop Platon Rojeeftvensky, whose leadership in the Russian Orthodox Church in America has been in dispute, died today at his home of heart disease.

In 1925, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court held that the archbishop was a usurper and that the Rev. John S. Kedrovsky was the lawful archbishop of the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Cathedral of St. Nicholas.

He then went to Europe, but returned the next year, and late in 1933, resumed services here in defiance of Moscow authorities.

Refinancing Is Roosevelt Railway Aim

Names Cabinet Group to Study Revision of Capital Set-up.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

President Roosevelt believes that only a thorough going revision of capital structure will solve the present predicament of the Nation's railroads and avert the necessity of Government control, which he would consider only as a last resort.

This became known at the White House yesterday at the same time the President reiterated his recommendation for extension of existing railroad wage scales, with the further provision that any increased profits go for the benefit of employes "at the bottom of the heap."

So serious does Mr. Roosevelt consider the financial condition of the railroads that he named three Cabinet officers to survey the situation and find some means of scaling down the high fixed charges he believes are oppressing the whole industry.

New Wage Proposal.

Declaring that the present 10 per cent reduction in basic pay is responsible for only a small part of employe distress, the President opened up a new avenue for settlement of the wage controversy by proposing that something be done to correct furloughs, part-time employment and demotions.

These "more important factors" were emphasized in a letter to Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator of transportation, in which Mr. Roosevelt handed the troublesome labor dispute back to the coordinator for early settlement, enunciating three considerations:

"(1) Everything practicable should be done to see to it that increased earnings of the carriers during the period of the extension are used to help the more unfortunate employes who have suffered from unreasonably low minimum pay, furloughs, part time and demotions.

"(2) Provision should be made, so far as practicable, to avoid the renewal of the controversy next August or at any other time during the period of the extension.

"(3) Negotiations should be brought to an end, one way or the other, without delay, so that if a present settlement should prove impossible, which I sincerely trust will not be the case, there will be opportunity for a thorough investigation by a fact-finding commission prior to July 1."

Put Before Cabinet.

As Mr. Roosevelt took this further step toward settlement of the wage dispute, it was learned that he

Dirigible Expected to Take 70 Hours to Miami.

Sunnyvale, Calif., April 20 (AP).—The Navy dirigible Macon started across the continent today to keep a rendezvous with the United States Fleet in the Caribbean.

The Macon made no formal reports to headquarters here, but was reported near Monterey.

The big airship was rolled out of her hangar at 7 a. m., to begin the longest flight undertaken since coming here last October from Lakehurst, N. J. The tentative schedule gave her 70 hours to reach Miami, Fla., where she will be serviced preparatory to taking part in fleet activities. Nineteen officers and 80 men made up her crew.

Silver Inflationary Plan Rejected by Roosevelt; Bloc Maps Drive Today

Veteran Curry Ousted As Tammany's Chief

Revolt Started When He Fought Roosevelt Ends in Removal.

New York, April 20 (AP).—John F. Curry was ousted tonight as leader of Tammany Hall.

The vote was 14 1-3 for ouster and 10 1-6 for retention of the man who has been chieftain for five years.

The action was taken after an hour and a half of discussion by the Hall's executive committee in a closed session in the historic wigwam.

The committee reached no decision on the appointment of a leader to succeed Curry, but it was indicated that a triumvirate—as appointed in times of stress before—would be named to operate Tammany Hall.

The decision was greeted by booing and cheering in the thronged Hall of Tammany.

Immediately the decision was reached, Curry retired to an inner room and denied himself to members of Tammany and would-be interviewers.

A short time before the decision was reached former Mayor John P. O'Brien—the man generally credited with bringing about Curry's political demise—had been forced to

New Permissive Legislation Seen

President Roosevelt has turned his back definitely against the rising tide for silver inflation.

The White House let it be known yesterday that remonetization of the white metal by the United States alone would be to experiment with factors too little known.

Lessons learned from the purchase and devaluation of gold, it was learned, have persuaded the President that any considerable purchase of silver outside of international agreement, would be futile.

This became known on the eve of today's conference with six Senators actively championing mandatory legislation to improve the status of silver before this session of Congress adjourns.

While it was clear that Mr. Roosevelt will turn thumbs down on any such action before international agreement, the impression prevailed that he might be willing to accept further silver legislation of a permissive character, leaving him free to apply it as he saw fit.

President Skeptical.

Experience with gold, in which the Administration was dealing with well-known facts—such as the world supply and holders of the metal—have taught the President, it was said, that a panacea does not always cure.

By this was meant that, while progressive purchase of gold until the price was tabilized at $35 improved the price of commodities somewhat, it fell far short of Administration expectations.

Thus the President was represented as skeptical of the silver proposals, which would launch the Government on another bold experiment with a metal whose quantity is not known. No two persons agree on the world supply, it was said.

Mr. Roosevelt is represented as believing that the purchase of 50,000,000 ounces of silver a month, as provided in the amended Dies bill, would be only a drop in the bucket in comparison with the world supply, variously estimated at about 12,000,000,000 ounces.

He believes that it might never reach the value of $1.29 an ounce, which, under his plan, would be the signal to stop. In fact, he is understood to feel such purchase of the metal might raise the price only 15 or 20 cents, and thus prove ineffectual.

As support for this belief, the President has the Administration's experience with silver since December 21, when the Government under-

Rockets Glare Paints Vivid Cherry Scene

A full page of pictures of the Cherry Blossom Festival parade will be found on page 7.

Rockets burst with their parabolic curves of color—a great flare burned as a parachute jumper in white drifted down out the sky to a wet landing in the Tidal Basin, and the second day of Washington's first Cherry Blossom Festival was ended.

While fireworks gave fitful illumination to the low-hanging and threatening clouds, a crowd of 50,000 jammed the Monument lot and the Ellipse to enjoy the display and praise the luck of the festival committee in stalling off seemingly probable showers.

In the afternoon, more than 100,000 persons had stood along curbs, sat in office windows or in the grandstands at Constitution avenue and witnessed a brilliant parade of nearly an hour's duration which combined the military with historic pageantry, built around the blossom motif.

Like the empty glass slipper of Cinderella was the last unit in the parade—a float designed for the queen of the festival, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, debutante daughter of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and her court of handmaidens. But the float was empty.

It was the original plan of the parade to have Miss Roosevelt and her court as participants. Later, this idea was dropped, when it was suggested that her appearance in the procession might be undignified. As the float was already started, it was finished and Girl Scouts were to occupy it, but somehow things went awry.

Award of prizes for the best floats was deferred until the judges again observed the night parade today. All of the 34 floats will again be shown then, and tomorrow they will be left along the Tidal Basin for observation.

The parade was a tremendous success. It was led by Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, grand marshal, who was responsible for its planning. Then followed marching units of Industry Aid Wins Backing Of Roosevelt

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Further financial aid for industries seeking working capital appeared assured yesterday when President Roosevelt indorsed a new bill authorizing Federal Reserve Banks to advance money for periods up to five years, either through other banks or directly to commercial enterprises.

The plan, originally sponsored by Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia, but subsequently revised, would make available a fund of about $300,000,000 for "industry loans." Of this sum the Treasury will supply $150,000,000 and the Reserve banks the remainder.

President Roosevelt gave his consent to the proposed legislation at a conference with Senator Glass and Eugene Black, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board. With this trio in agreement, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee is expected to proceed next week to reporting the approved bill to the Senate.

For several weeks a controversy has surrounded the method by which additional Federal financial assistance should be made available for business and industry. Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, proposed his agency be given powers to lend directly to industry, a proposition still pending before the Senate committee.

The Federal Reserve Board proposed, as a substitute, the creation of a system of 12 industrial credit banks to be chartered by the Federal Reserve Board. Senator Glass proposed that the Reserve banks make the industry loans direct, with the Treasury taking over the holdings of the banks in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

These three plans have been pending before the Senate committee for several weeks waiting until the President should indicate which he preferred. It was for that purpose that Senator Glass and Gov. Black went to the White House yesterday.

Under the revised bill, the Re-

Widow of Lynched Kidnaper Sues Rolph for $1,050,000

San Francisco, April 20 (AP).—Gov. James Rolph, jr., of California, who declared the lynching at San Jose last November of two kidnap-slayer suspects "the best lesson California ever has given the country," was sued today for $1,050,000 by the widow of the victims.

Mrs. Evelyn Holmes, widow of John M. Holmes, alleges the Governor abetted in inciting the public mind by statements he would offer no protection to Holmes and Harold Thomas Thurmond, suspects in the kipnap-slaying of Brooke L. Hart, young San Jose merchant.

The suit also named as defendants Sheriff William J. Emig, of Santa Clara County, from which jail the men were dragged by a mob and hanged; the San Jose News and Radio Station KQW of San Jose and its operators, Fred J. Hart, C. V. Dahl and Eva P. Hart, and 100 John Does, ten identified as San Francisco policemen.

Mrs. Holmes filed the suit in her own name and that of her two children, David, 6, and Joyce, 5. She was made their guardian today by Superior Judge Timothy I. Fitzpatrick and her suit asks $50,000 actual damages and $1,000,000 punitive damages.

Appraised of the suit, Gov. Rolph said, "I haven't seen any of the papers yet, so I can't comment."

The Governor, who declined to call out National Guardsmen when a mob gathered and allegedly proclaimed his intention of pardoning "anyone who is arrested for lynching those two guys," was accused in the suit of "violating his oath of office, and aiding, abetting and encouraging the mob."

Crazed Killer Slain by Police

Experiment, Ga., April 20 (AP).—After terrorizing the Sunnyside settlement, 6 miles away, W. M. Ward, a mill night watchman, drove here in an automobile, killed an 11-year-old boy and was shot to death with a machine gun by Atlanta police.

Ward barricaded himself in his house and shouted he had shot his wife and a man at Sunnyside. Officers found he had shot at Mrs. Ward and her father, but missed both.

A call was sent to Atlanta and Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant responded with a detachment armed with a machine gun and tear gas.

Sturdivant stopped his automobile in front of the Ward home and let go a charge of tear gas, which drove Ward from the building, and he was killed.

Sheriff Williams said Mrs. Ward told him her husband informed her "if you don't live with me you won't live with anybody. I have come to kill you all."

The former Chicago public utilities magnate ate heartily at all meals and appeared in excellent spirits. He is gaining weight and his complexion is becoming ruddy under the sun and sea breeze.

Higher Wheat Benefits Loom As Price Drops

By Raymond Clapper.

Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials are considering the possibility of increasing benefit payments to wheat farmers to offset the sharp break which has taken place in prices the last few days.

If any such step is taken, it would be accompanied by a corresponding increase in the processing tax on wheat to provide the additional funds which would be required.

Officials are not ready to make a decision. It is desired to watch the trend a little longer. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace left for Nebraska yesterday to keep a speaking engagement and any action probably would be deferred until his return late next week.

In a statement last night, Secretary Wallace denied that he believed silver prices had anything to do with the break in wheat.

"The real cause of the break," he said, "is that we have in prospect a winter wheat crop 140,000,000 bushels in excess of last year, and sooner or later it was inevitable that Chicago and Liverpool prices would work closer together."

Decline Expected.

There is some discouragement in AAA circles at the recent decline, though it was not unexpected. The market turned upward slightly yesterday but even so wheat closed about 11 cents a bushel below prices a week ago.

A year ago, before the AAA plan was put into effect, wheat was around 60 cents. A month ago it was about 87 cents. Now it is about 75 cents. Freight and commissions must be deducted to get the cash price which the farmer actually received. What he should get to bring him up to prewar parity is $1.06 a bushel.

Through AAA benefit payments of 28 cents a bushel, the Government has sought to add enough to the actual price of wheat to give the farmer who signs acreage-reduction contracts something approaching the prewar value of his crop. But with wheat sliding off and the prices which the farmer must pay for goods which he purchases rising steadily, progress in closing the gap suddenly has been blocked.

"Bootlegging" Feared.

Processing taxes now amount to 30 cents a bushel. There are strong arguments against raising this on the ground that it would increase the tendency which already exists to bootleg flour and escape the tax.

The grain price situation becomes additionally important because of the impending Congressional campaigns. Already pressure is beginning to be felt by the Administration for action to push farm prices up more rapidly. One saving feature of the wheat situation at the moment is that little marketable wheat is left in the hands of the farmer, so that the falling prices do not cut in as deeply as they will shortly when new wheat begins to reach the market.

Meantime, with some apprehension as to the outcome, AAA officials are preparing to put the Bankhead compulsory cotton restriction act into effect. President Roosevelt is expected to sign the measure today. All cotton now in storage must be tagged so that it will be entitled to exemption from the prohibitive tax.

Agriculture officials are working out the allotments indicating how much cotton each county will be permitted to market without paying the prohibitive tax. Government tags will be distributed and when these are affixed to a bale, it will be passed without tax.

Hearings Begin Monday.

At the Capitol, preparations were being made for House hearings Monday on the Kerr bill to apply the Bankhead compulsory principle to tobacco. Numerous requests have come from witnesses, including several members of Congress from tobacco States, who desire to testify in favor of the measure.

Department of Agriculture officials feel there is more justification for the tobacco restriction measure than for the Bankhead cotton bill. But they are dubious of both and are uncertain of the reaction that will be encountered once the plan has become operative.

AAA officials are working on a new milk plan as a substitute for the recently announced program of fixing quotas for dairy farmers which was rejected by producers in a series of conferences held to sound them out.

The new plan, it is understood, would enable a producer to seek a market for his entire output, but National production would be curtailed by a more intensive campaign for destruction of tubercular cattle and by any other methods which could be followed without complaint from producers.

Other features would be greater distribution of milk among children of destitute parents and transfer of cattle from areas of overproduction to those of underproduction.

Capone Will Bid Again for Liberty

Appeals Court to Hear Plea Next Week.

Al Capone is going to make a bid for freedom April 25 in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans, according to the Associated Press.

It was disclosed at the Department of Justice yesterday that Frank J. Wideman, Assistant Attorney General, would resist the Chicago gangster's latest effort to get out of the Atlanta Penitentiary, where he is serving an 11-year sentence for income tax evasion.

The proceedings in New Orleans are in the nature of an appeal from a decision of the United States District Court of Northern Georgia, which dismissed an application for a writ of habeas corpus December 9, 1933.

Air-Mail Cost Will Be Lowest Ever Under Bids of New Lines

This, however, was included in two bids on transcontinental routes.

On 9 of the 21 routes only one bid was received. Eastern Airlines, Inc., former Eastern Air Transport, was the sole bidder on the Newark-Washington-Miami route, proposing to carry mail over this route at 29 cents an airplane mile.

United Airlines, controlling a number of former carriers, was sole bidder on five routes, its bids ranging from 38 to 39½ cents an airplane mile. These routes include some of the most important in the country. They are Newark-San Francisco, Seattle-San Diego, Salt Lake City-Seattle, Newark-Chicago and Chicago-San Francisco.

Cord Bids on Eight.

American Airlines, controlled by the E. L. Cord interests, submitted bids on eight routes. It was sole bidder on one and on the other seven its bid was higher than that of competitors in each instance. It was the only bidder on the Boston-Newark route, its proposal calling for 33 1-3 cents per airplane mile.

The most active bidder among those which have not heretofore had mail contracts was Braniff Airways, Inc., of Oklahoma City. E. L. Braniff, president of this company, was a witness before the Senate air-mail investigating committee Wednesday. He testified about cooperating with the investigating committee and said he had once suggested a "trial cancellation" of air-mail contracts.

The Braniff company submitted bids on five routes. In only one instance, on the Chicago-Dallas route, was it low bidder, with a bid of 22½ cents an airplane mile.

The lowest bid of all, 17½ cents, was submitted on the Chicago-New Orleans route by Pacific Seaboard Airlines, Inc. There were a number of other bids under 20 cents an airplane mile.

Bids Under Own Name.

Alfred Frank, former president of the National Parks Airways, which had its contract annulled, submitted a bid under his own name for the Salt Lake City-Great Falls, Mont., route. He was the only bidder and asked 39 cents.

Some of the wide variation in prices is caused by the fact that different equipment is specified on different routes. However, in some instances there was a great difference in charges proposed under identical conditions.

It is obvious that if contracts are let on the basis of bids submitted there will be a wide variation of costs on different routes irrespective of flying conditions and equipment.

Meanwhile, the Senate began consideration of the McKellar-Black air-mail bill, with indications that debate would last all next week. Democratic leaders obtained an agreement to limit debate beginning next Thursday.

At the same time the investigating committee, which had expected to question Branch, called off its session. The investigation may not be resumed until after the bill is disposed of in the Senate. The air-mail debate is expected to become one of the most bitter of the session, with feeling already running high on both sides.

Fess Occupies Session.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, occupied the floor during the entire session yesterday and announced he would continue his speech Monday.

Fess opened up with the charge the cancellation of air-mail contracts was a direct violation of the Constitution.

"I am hurt at the President's action," he said. "At any time he could have undone the harm that was caused, but he did not choose to act. Therefore, we shall have to hold him responsible."

Fess characterized the cancellation as an "indefensible wrong, and a violation of the most distinctive right of American citizens."

"This is the first time since George III that Americans have been treated this way," he said. Frequently during his talk he referred to the Administration's action as "arrogant, wanton, indefensible."

Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, interrupting Fess, declared there is a concerted drive on the part of Republicans to use the air-mail situation as a political vehicle "in order to restore Republican prestige."

Senator Austin (Republican), Vermont, a member of the investigating committee, urged that the Senate acede to the request of the President that adoption of permanent air-mail legislation be deferred pending further investigation by a commission. A bill carrying this provision is being drafted by a House committee.

Harry F. Payer Resigns Export Post With RFC

Was Active in Farmong Import Bank to Pave Russian Relations.

Resignation of Harry F. Payer as special counsel to the RFC in charge of foreign and export affairs, was announced last night. He will return to Cleveland, where he practiced latw for many years.

Payer came to Washington almost a year ago as Assistant Secretary of State, and last November resigned to undertake export financing studies for the RFC. He was instrumental in working out legal plans for the Import-Export Bank set up primarily to facilitate trade with Soviet Russia.

"Your thrilling leadership," he said in a letter to the President, "is demonstrating the competency of our democratic form of Government to solve all economic and political problems within its Constitutional pattern—its ability to withstand the most cruel ordeal to which it has ever been subjected."

In reply, Mr. Roosevelt expressed regret at Payer's resignation, and added that he wats reconciled to it "only by your assurance of willingness to respond to any future call to service."

Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman, said in a statement that Payer's unusual legal capacity and thorough knowledge of econotmics and financial affairs have been invaluable during the period of development of the export policy and the creation of the Import-Export banks."

Cotton Manufacturers Oppose 30-Hour Week

Charleston, S. C., April 20 (AP).—The American Cotton Manufacturers Association recorded its opposition to the pending Connery 30-hour week and Wagner labor disputes bills in a resolution adopted today as it concluded its convention here.

Opposing enactment of the measures, the association urged that full time and trial be given to the National recovery act as it now stands before "radical changes" are made in its policy.

Lowden's Leadership Aim of Illinois G.O.P.

Springfield, Ill., April 20 (AP). Republicans of Illinois looked today to former Gov. Frank O. Lowden for leadership in the November elections.

If the former Governor consents to serve as permanent chairman of the State convention in August, he will make the major address, as the Republicans officially start the campaign to regain majority power in the Statehouse and the Congressional delegation. The movement was launched at the party's perfunctory meeting.

Northwest Airways, Inc., changed to Northwest Airlines, Inc.

United Airlines, Inc. includes Boeing Air Transport Co., Pacific Air Transport, National Air Transport, Inc., and Varney Airlines, Inc.

Helen Kane Denied Jury In Betty Boop Dispute

New York, April 20 (AP).—A supreme court justice instead of a jury of 12 men will decide whether "eBtty Boop" is a caricature of Helen Kane, who claims she originated the "Boop-boop-a-doop" style of singing.

Justice Edward J. McGoldrick denied Miss Kane's motion for a jury, despite the plea of her attorney that the 12 men would serve the same purpose as an audience in a theater and lighten the justice's duties.

Shooting Brings $50 Fine.

Plan to Inflate Silver Rejected By Roosevelt took to buy all domestically mined silver at 64½ cents an ounce, 20 cents above the world price.

Instead of establishing this figure as the price for the white metal, in accordance with prediction of some silver proponents, the price of silver since has increased only to a high of 46 cents, it was said, and is currently quoted in the neighborhood of 44½ cents.

Only by international action, such as undertaken at the London Economic Conference, does the President believe that an adequate solution to the silver problem can be found. Hence, he is not believed opposed to permissive legislation that would enable him to act in concert with other Nations.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, meanwhile, called a conference of the Senate silver leaders for 1030 today in order to reach an agreement on a definite proposal and present a united front in their conference with Mr. Roosevelt later in the morning.

In a speech on the Senate floor, he denied published reports that the Senate group had "snubbed" the President by obtaining a delay in the conference from Thursday to today. Several of the Senators, he declared, were acutely interested in the pending sugar bill and obtained an agreement with the White House for the postponement.

Three Win Medal Intended for One Friend of Jewry

New York, April 20 (AP).—"The American who did most for Jewry in 1933" is three men—a Presbyterian minister, a Catholic priest and a rabbi.

The three, the Rev. Everett R. Clinchy, of New York City; Father J. Elliott Ross, of Charlottesville, Va., and Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron, of Baltimore, Md., will receive the Gottheir medal, cast in triplicate, the Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity announced today.

The medal usually goes to one man adjudged winner of the title. The three men won it by virtue of a pilgrimage trip, on which they advocated understanding among Catholics, Jews and Protestants in America. They visited 38 cities.

Project in China Devoid of Politics, League Heads Say

Geneva, April 20 (AP).—League of Nations circles admitted tonight that Japan opposes a League project for the reconstruction of China, but emphasized the plan involves no political danger for China.

League officials described the project as including technical advice for the development of Chinese communications, education, hygiene, river control and silk culture.

"It's only political character is to render China stronger and more united," they declared, taking cognizance of a Japanese manifesto declared that "the time has passed when other powers or the League of Nations can prosecute their policies for the exploitation of China."

Several European experts were sent to China to carry out the rehabilitation plan. No Japanese is a member of the commission, since the Chinese wanted none.

A Little Red House Causes "Giant" Uproar

Frankfurter's "Hot Dogs" Meet There Nightly, Says Britten.

Reconstruction Finance Corporation offices.

"We live there, but I work here," he laughed. "No, I haven't been home for a good many nights."

Representative Britten didn't know the street address of the "little red house" or even its approximate location. The information was hearsay, he said.

So a search was instigated. It ended at 3238 R street northwest, an octagonal, historic, red-brick structure, where former President Ulysses S. Grant was wont to spend his summers a few decades ago when the White House grew too hot.

But Corcoran and Cohen were not at home. They worked late, and rarely passed an evening with their fellow lodgers, said one of their number. So Corcoran was sought and found at his desk.

"You see, there really isn't anything to say," said Corcoran. And we did not press him.

Representative Britten did not feel that way about it. He precipitated something verging bedlam in the House with his assertion.

Harks to "Green" House.

"The 'little red house in Georgetown' is going to stand out like the 'little green house' stood out some years ago under a Republican administration," he said.

"Almost every night in the week, men like Frederic C. Howe, and, oh, a number of men not necessarily of the highest importance, not Cabinet officers, but the men who wrote the Fletcher-Rayburn bill, meet there; the men who rewrote the Fletcher-Rayburn bill are there every night, and the men who rewrite it the third time are there every night."

The charge was flung during a heated tilt with Representative Thomas L. Blanton, Texas Democrat, who heckled Britten during a speech he was making alleging meddlesome activities by a British diplomat.

"This Government is run by——" Blanton began, but Britten cut in with the statement that "I know who the Government is run by."

"The Government," Blanton continued, "is in the White House."

"I know who runs it," he Illinoisan went on. "It is a little red house over in Georgetown. That is where they meet every night."

An "Outstanding American."

"No," Blanton shouted, "it is run by an outstanding American in the White House."

"He takes part," Britten agreed, and would have passed over the incident, but Representative W. D. McFarlene, Democratic Texas colleague of Blanton, wanted to know more.

"To whom did the gentleman refer in his statement about the 'little red house in Georgetown?'" the Texan asked.

"I referred to a little red house down in Georgetown occupied by Mr. Cohen, Mr. Cochran and Mr. Landis," Britten repeated.

There was disorder in the chamber as Democrats, all shouting derisively at the same time, tried to reply to Britten.

"You're trying to steal Dr. Wirt's thunder," one yelled, above the din.

"Would the gentleman prefer the 'little green house' on K street that owned and robbed the country for 12 years?" Representative Charles V. Truax (Democrat), Ohio, put in. Perhaps he referred to the traditionally famous gathering place of high officials during the Harding Administration.

But Britten was not to be sidetracked.

Meet Every Night.

"Every night in the week," he continued, above the shouts and laughter of Democratic members, "Prof. Felix Frankfurter's 'hot dogs' meet there in this 'little red house;' and they shape not all legislation, not all even of certain pieces of legislation, but they shape the elements in the legislation that we refer to as radical or Communistic. And the 'little red house' is going to be printed on bank notes one of these days."

"Maybe the boys have a clubhouse downtown," laughed Speaker Rainey.

punge his retort, but not before Blanton answered:

When the debt issue was injected, Representative Charles V. Truax (Democrat), Ohio, asked what method of collection he would suggest.

Britten said he sent a confidential letter to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthal, suggesting acceptance of foreign bonds in payment of sume owed the United States, but Morgenthau failed to reply. He said his plan would make the United States "the strongest financial power on earth."

Consul's Activity Scored.

The Illinois Representative declared he protested the New York address by Consul General Campbell "because of the place where it was made, more or less surrounded by Communists."

"I object to a British consul general making a speech opposing the Vinson bill, and opposing the American National defense at a public meeting like this, and assisting in the collection of $529 in order to stifle legislation now pending before Congress," he said.

"That is wrong. It could only occur in one of the so-called Communist or radical meetings."

The committee incident referred to by Britten occurred at a morning hearing yesterday in the House Naval Affairs Committee room.

Representative W. D. McFarland (Democrat), Texas, sought to incorporate in a committee report testimony offered by Maj. MacKenzie-Kennedy, who tried to present charts and figures on the strength of the United States air force.

Chairman John J. Delaney told the committee he had proof MacKenzie-Kennedy's statements were inaccurate, and were a part of a propaganda campaign intended to influence legislation.

Delaney Called "Liar."

"Delaney is an unmitigated liar," was MacKenzie-Kennedy's retort, when asked about the statement. Delaney several weeks ago charged MacKenzie-Kennedy was a spy.

Britten told the House it was this witnesses' actions before the House Naval Affairs Committee that recalled to his mind the Campbell incident.

"Communism is finding its way into every channel of American life," Britten told the House.

Mrs. Roosevelt Brings Peace Note to D.A.R.

New Officers Installed as Sessions Close With Witty Banquet.

The forty-third Continental Congress of the D. A. R. closed yesterday on the note of peace. It was provided by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who stood before the group, avowedly a preparedness society, and urged them to lead toward world amity.

Final sessions of the congress yesterday heard Mrs. Roosevelt's plea, installed their seven newly elected vice presidents general and ended their gathering with a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel.

The First Lady told the assemblage the proposition that it was impossible to prevent war was a "defeatist attitude." She asked for a patriotism that would teach youth to live for country as well as to die for country.

The congress, which had gone on record as in favor of a treaty Navy, a larger Army and an air service second to none, received Mrs. Roosevelt's speech with approval.

Peace Called D. A. R. Duty.

"If there is any group," she told them, "which ought to lead the way to world peace, it is your group, because you have the education, the background and the love of your country."

When she declared, "I believe in being willing to die for your country when it is necessary, but I do believe strongly it is more important to bend all our efforts to education and elimination of the things which bring us to the point where we have to send out our young people to die for their country," she won a short burst of applause.

Mrs. Roosevelt's subject was "The Education of Our Mountain People." At the close of her remarks she was presented with a dulcimer, a quaint musical instrument made by Kentucky mountain folk at the Hinds Settlement School.

Official sessions of the congress ended with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie" by the entire membership, led by the United States Marine Band.

Immediately afterward the president general, Mrs. William M. Magna, her National officers and delegates, were received at the White House by Mrs. Roosevelt.

The congress closed with no other announced candidates for president general than Mrs. William A. Becker, of New Jersey, and Dr. Flora Gillentine, of Tennessee. Considerable pressure is being exerted by friends on Mrs. G. Wallace C. Hanger, prominent among District Daughters, to permit the use of her name as a candidate. Mrs. Hanger, who has served as program chairman for the present congress, is regarded as possessed of executive ability.

Among the newly elected State regents and State vice regents installed were Mrs. George Madden Grimes, State regent of the District, and Mrs. Jean Labat, State vice regent. They were sworn in yesterday. Mrs. Harry C. Grove, the retiring State regent of the District, was given a brecelet in addition to the ex-regent's pin. The presentations were made by Mrs. A. B. Hansman.

Near the close of the session the newly elected reporter general to the Smithsonian Institution, Mrs. Emmet Wilson, of California; the seven newly elected vice presidents general and new State regents and State vice regents were installed. The oath of office was administered by the chaplain general, Mrs. Raymond Kimbel.

Among the newly elected vice presidents general installed was Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, retiring State regent of Indiana.

Humor at Banquet.

Mrs. Bonnie Farwell, of Terre Haute, Ind., State regent of Indiana; Mrs. Wilbur Clark Johnson, of Indianapolis, State vice regent, and Mrs. Gary Hogg, of West Virginia, State regent of West Virginia, were inducted.

Repartee and hilarity reigned at the concluding banquet at the Mayflower Hotel last night. Pitched in a humorous vein, the program included a take-off on commencement exercises and featured musical numbers.

State songs and speeches added to the gaiety. It is an unwritten law in the D. A. R. that the closing banquet be far removed from the serious discussions and consideration that mark the conventions.

2 Youths Held for Jury In Restaurant Holdup

Two colored youths, charged with armed holdup and robbery Monday night, were held for grand jury action on bonds of $10,000 each after a preliminary hearing by Judge Ralph Given in Police Court yesterday.

The defendants were accused of entering the restaurant of Thomas Ceresta in the 1200 block of Seventh street northwest, and robbing Wilson Brawn, an employe, of $29. They gave their names as Lee Miller, 23, 1300 block of P street northeast, and James Beecks, 20, of the 1500 block of Marion street. The men were apprehended a few hours after the robbery.

Sugar Surplus Added To Philippine Worries

Manila, Philippine Islands, April 20 (AP).—A prospective Philippine sugar surplus of more than 300,000 long tons this year as a result of expected quota limitations under the Jones-Costigan act has aroused Philippine planters and politicians already worried over the forthcoming coconut oil tax and independence.

Two Chambers of Commerce of Illoilo jointly petitioned Governor General Frank Murphy to urge that the Jones-Costigan limitation not be made retroactive to January 1.

Special Memorial Plans laid.

Westiminster, Md., April 20 (Spl.). Under direction of a committee headed by Lewis Boyd, arrangements are being made for a special observance of Memorial Day at Taneytown.

Railroad Debt Refunding Aim Of President

Cabinet Group Named to Study Revision of Capital Set-up.

placed the whole rail situation before a meeting of the Cabinet and asked Secretaries Roper and Perkins, and Attorney General Cummings to study it further.

He was represented as believing that the high fixed charges incurred by bond issues for double trackings, new stations and maintenance during 1915-29, is at the bottom of the railroads' present embarrassment. Only by reorganization of this capital structure, perhaps by conversion of some bonds to noninterest bearing stock, does he believe they can work out under private operation.

As an example, the case was cited of railroads which constructed four tracks during "boom" times and now find they need only two, while paying interest on the four. The President feels that bonds floated for unused and unnecessary property might well be converted to stock, in effect changing mortgage holders into owners.

The only two alternatives, he believes, are reorganization of the capital structure to avoid the constant threat of receivership and place wages and labor on a fairly permanent basis, or Government control. This later possibility, it was said, Mr. Roosevelt would favor only if the first plan fails.

Against Mergers.

Consolidations do not answer the problem, he feels, since none have been proposed that take into account the human element. In fact, he is impressed that mergers would mean another 30 per cent cut in employment, which now is only 50 per cent of normal.

The Cabinet members will look for a more immediate solution in conferences with the Interstate Commerce Commission and Mr. Eastman.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter to the coordinator followed a conference he had with Chairman A. F. Whitney and 22 members of the Railroad Labor Executives Association, which is pressing for a 10 per cent increase above the basic wage scales. Earlier in the week he conferred with the railroad managers.

Disclosing that he had studied the problem extensively during his vacation, Mr. Roosevelt declared, "No one who knows the facts can fail to be moved by the suffering which the depression, in combination with the great increase in competition from other forms of transportation, has inflicted on the employes."

Deplores Conditions.

He said that wage rates "tell only part of the story," that the "vital thing" is the welfare of those suffering from only occasional work, demotions and furloughs, and that if it came to a choice between correcting this condition or restoring the former wage scale the first alternative should be favored.

Mr. Roosevelt, in holding that the railroads should have at least six months more to get to firmer ground, said he was convinced his original proposal was "sound" and that an extension of the present status "is what the welfare of the railroads, of their employes, and of the entire country demands."

Emerging from his conference with the President earlier in the day, Mr. Whitney answered a question as to whether he was hopeful of an agreement by saying, "I'm an optimist; I always believe the right will prevail, and we're certainly on the right side." He added that no definite understanding had been reached.

Landing Device Failure Causes Plane Damage

Toledo, April 20 (AP).—An Army bombing plane, flying from Cleveland to Chicago, was damaged last night at the Toledo Transcontinental Airport when a signaling mechanism in the ship failed to indicate its retractible gear was not in position for landing.

The pilot, Lieut. Merl Estes, Cleveland, chose the field for a landing place after motor trouble developed near Toledo. He was not injured. Motor and fuselage were damaged.

Roosevelt's Letter on Rail Pay

President Roosevelt's letter to Railroad Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman, reiterating his recommendation for a continuance of existing wage scales for the benefit of both management and labor, follows:

"Dear Mr. Eastman:

"As you know, I have recently conferred with representatives of both the railroad managements and the railroad employes in regard to the wage controversy, and have given this matter further consideration. No one who knows the facts can fail to be moved by the suffering which the depression, in combination with the great increase in competition from other forms of transportation, has inflicted on the employes. The 10 per cent deduction from basic wage rates, which the employes voluntarily conceded in 1932 for the good of the industry, has not been the major cause of this suffering. Furloughs, part-time employment, demotions and pay below a reasonable minimum have been more important factors. Wage rates tell only a part of the story; the whole story is told by what a man has in his pay envelope at the end of the week or month.

"Realizing this suffering, as I do, I have felt that the welfare of the employes, and particularly the welfare of those at the bottom of the heap, is the vital thing to have in mind in this wage controversy. The question is whether the elimination, in whole or in part, on July 1 of the 10 per cent deduction from basic wage rates is the thing which their best interests demand. If it is necessary to choose between some measure of relief from furloughs, part-time work, demotions, and low minimum pay and the elimination, in whole or in part, of the wage deduction the choice should certainly favor the first of these alternatives. The traffic and earnings of the railroads are improving, but they are still below the 1931 level, a very large amount of deferred maintenance exists, and maintenance expenditures are still on a subnormal basis. I can not avoid the conclusion that during the remainder of this year, it is very important that increased earnings should be used in the rehabilitation of the properties and in providing such added and improved services as the increased traffic may demand. This will not only decrease part-time employment but it will add materially to the total number of men employed. An increase in wages will help men now at work, but it will be of considerably less advantage to the employes as a whole, and it will also operate to defer the rehabilitation of the properties and the provision of good service which are essential to the good health of the railroad industry. The employes are part of the railroad industry and are tied to its future. It is essential that the railroads should be able to meet effectively the severe competition by which they are now faced, and inability to do this will inevitably react on the men. The railroads need the next few months to put their houses in order for this purpose.

"After careful consideration of existing conditions, therefore, I am fully persuaded that the position which I took in my letters of February 14 and March 20, addressed jointly to the railroad managements and the labor executives, was sound, and that an extension of the present wage status for at least six months is what the welfare of the railroads, of their employes, and of the entire country demands as the immediate and temporary disposition of this matter. This includes, of course, the recommendation in my letter of March 20 that the minimum wages of railroad employes should be brought into conformity with the standards followed by the National Recovery Administration.

"I shall be glad, therefore, if you will undertake to effect a settlement between the employes and the management along these lines. In that connection, however, I desire to emphasize three things:

"(1) Everything practicable should be done to see to it that increased earnings of the carriers during the period of the extensions are used to help the more unfortunate employes who have suffered from unreasonably low minimum pay, furloughs, part time, and demotions. I can not too strongly urge upon the managements the necessity of devoting any increased earnings to the rehabilitation of their properties, better service, and additional employment. That will be good business for them. Whatever safeguards are feasible to assure such use of funds should be applied. It must be frankly recognized that there is little prospect that the railroads will be able to employ in the future the number of men they have employed in the past, and that they must operate with the utmost efficiency and economy; yet unemployment and part-time work can be reduced materially. It must also be recognized that certain classes of employes will be affected more than others by rehabilitation and improved service; but all will benefit as the health and efficiency of the industry are restored.

"(2) Provision should be made, so far as practicable, to avoid the renewal of the controversy next August or at any other time during the period of the extension. I see no reason why the deduction should not be put upon the same basis as it was originally, so that further controversy may be deferred until at least January 1. I make only the one exception that it may be desirable to provide for a reopening of the matter before that date in the event that increased earnings are not put, within reasonable limits, to the use which I have indicated above.

"(3) Negotiations should be brought to an end, one way or the other, without delay, so that if a present settlement should prove impossible, which I sincerely trust will not be the case, there will be opportunity for a thorough investigation by a fact-finding commission prior to July 1. In order that there may be no apprehension as to possible bias in such an investigation, I may say that I shall make appointments to any such commission upon the definite understanding that no regard shall be paid to personal opinions that I may have expressed, and the conclusions rest solely upon the facts developed. Such a commission would, I presume, examine into the merits of the wage rates of the different classes of employes, a subject which I have not considered. I have considered only the wise disposition for a temporary period of the immediate issue.

"Very sincerely yours,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Frederic P. Lee Takes Lowry's Post in FACA

Well-Known Washington and Maryland Lawyer Roosevelt's Choice.

President Roosevelt yesterday appointed Frederic Paddock Lee, well-known Montgomery County and Washington attorney, to succeed Edward G. Lowry, jr., as a member and general counsel of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration. Mr. Lee will take office May 1.

The appointee is a law partner of William P. MacCracken, who figured prominently in the Senate's air-mail investigation two months ago.

Mr. Lee has specialized in Congressional legislation since 1919 and is a professor of statute law at Georgetown University.

He was the personal representative of George Peek at the time the latter was at the head of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. As legislative draftsman in both the House and Senate, he was closely associated with agriculture problems.

In addition to his activities in legal circles, Mr. Lee is widely known in Montgomery County civic and welfare work. He is a former president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation and a member of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee and their four children reside at 6915 Glenbrook road, Bethesda, Md.

Mr. Lowry resigned this week to enter private business.

Rockets' Glare Blazes Vivid Cherry Scene

These floats, which many termed the best ever seen in a Washington parade, were symbolically related to cherry blosoms. Several used cherry blossom colors to decorate scenes exemplifying industrial progress.

The spirit of spring was the theme of others, while many depicted scenes such as George Washington's cutting of the cherry tree, birth of the American Flag, landing of Admiral Perry in Japan, and Dolly Madison serving ice cream at the White House.

How Paraders Were Divided.

By actual Police Department count, there were 3,667 participants in the procession. Of these, 3,049 marched, 367 rode horses and 251 rode on either horse-drawn or motor vehicles. There were 18 automobiles, 34 floats, 34 units of horse-drawn artillery, 36 of motor-drawn artillery and 12 bands, including the Army, Navy, Elks and high school cadet bands.

When Gen. Fries passed the reviewing stand, he dismounted and joined District Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and George E. Allen and Claude W. Owen, president of the Board of Trade, who heads the general festival committee.

The crowd at the fireworks display was estimated as the most numerous ever to watch such a show in Washington. Previous attendance records at Fourth of July exhibitions were broken, due to the fact that there are many more persons here for the festival than at that season.

Interest of the crowd was divided from craning heads skyward to see the various color combinations revealed as hundreds of rockets broke with blasts of noises, to watching the scenes depicted in fire on the "set" pieces.

These pieces were the fine art of pyrotechnics, and displayed such pictures as the Japanese and American flags draped together in good will, and a portrait of President Roosevelt. Another was of a blooming cherry tree.

Again the cherry blossoms themselves provided greatest interest to the Capital's visitors. The basin was rimmed all day and night by pedestrians who walked under the spreading, blossom-covered branches, while a steady stream of motorists saw the spectacle from their cars.

Jumper Lands in Basin.

As the event ringing down the curtain of the fireworks spectacle, Eddie Butler, Washington parachute jumper, floated down from the sky to a landing in the basin. Speed boats were waiting and he was fished out a little damp, but none the worse for the experience.

Butler, dressed in white, drifted down in a flood of light provided by a great flare. He bailed out at 2,000 feet. There was a wave of applause as his feet slipped into the dark water, and he merged with his reflection.

Special permission from the Department of Commerce was necessary for this "stunt." It is unusual that a jumper is permitted to make his leap from a plane flying over a city.

The fact that Miss Roosevelt, queen of the festival, was neither in the parade nor in the reviewing stand is not her fault, Gen. Fries said last night. She was not expected to be there, he said.

It was learned that the controversy which was said to have occurred early in the week had changed plans and that it was not intended that she attend. Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, who is in charge of the queen's engagements, said that Miss Roosevelt was not asked to take part in the parade.

Chart, Made in Ohio, Fixed Age of King Tut

Cleveland (U.P.).—The fact that King Tutankhamen was only 18 was determined by researches conducted here by men who never even saw the pharaoh's mummy, Dr. T. Wingate Todd, of the Western Reserve University Medical School, told members of a scientific fraternity in a lecture.

He explained that he and Howard Carter, leader of the Carnavon expedition, which unearthed the mummy, were walking around the campus in 1923 when they hit upon the method.

A key chart was prepared, identifying skeletal features associated with age. The chart was then sent to Cairo and used as a guide in examination of X-rays.

6 Named in Tennessee Insurance Indictments

Nashville, Tenn., April 20 (AP). The county grand jury, which considered charges of perjury and conspiracy to defraud growing out of the recent grand larceny trial of former Insurance Commissioner Joseph I. Reece, today returned six indictments.

Perry Debusk, who was employed by the insurance department during Reece's regime, was indicted for perjury and conspiracy, but names of the other defendants were withheld.

Gen. Langfitt, Engineer, Dies At Walter Reed

Maj. Gen. William C. Langfitt, retired, former member of the Army board of rivers and harbors engineers and in charge of the Washington harbor district from 1910 to 1914, died in Walter Reed Hospital yesterday following a two-year illness.

Ailing since his return from France in 1919, Gen. Langfitt's health declined following an operation for a bronchial infection two years ago. He was removed to the hospital two weeks ago from the home of his son-in-law, Col. Francis B. Wilby, 3010 Albemarle street, where he spent the winter. His home was in Geneva, N. Y.

Following his retirement in 1920 after 40 years' service, Gen. Langfitt entered business as general manager, secretary and treasurer of David Belais, Inc., New York, gold alloy manufacturers. From 1927 to 1929 he was consulting engineer for Coolidge Dam, Ariz.

West Virginia's Native.

Gen. Langfitt was born in Wellsburg, W. Va., August 10, 1860. He was graduated from West Point in 1878. His first major post was in Cuba, where he served as chief engineer of the Army of Pacification. He served on the rivers and harbors board in the War Department from July, 1907, to January, 1914.

In July, 1917, he sailed for France in command of the Thirteenth Engineers. He was chief of staff, lines of communication; chief of utilities and chief engineer, American Expeditionary Force, from August, 1917, to July, 1919. Upon his return to the United States he was placed in charge of the New York and Puerto Rico engineer districts, a post he held until retirement.

Held Many Decorations.

His French service won him the decoration of Commander of the Legion of Honor, Companion of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, Commander of the Order of the Crown of Belgium and the Distinguished Service Medal.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Anne B. Langfitt, who was with him at his death, and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Langfitt Wilby.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. today at the Fort Myer Chapel, the Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiating. He will be buried with full military honors in Arlington Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Maj. Gen. Omar Bundy, retired; Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, deputy chief of staff; Brig. Gen. George B. Pillsbury, assistant chief of engineers; Brig. Gen. Edward Burr, retired; Harry G. Meem, president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Lieut. Col. John C. H. Lee, Lieut. Col. Earl North and Col. William J. Barden.

New Law Endangers Entry of 160 Filipinos

Manila, Philippine Islands, April 20 (AP).—The question of whether 160 Filipinos aboard the liner President Hoover will be admitted to the United States was raised here today because of the likelihood the Philippine independence law will be accepted before they reach San Francisco.

The act provides an immigration quota of 50 Filipinos annually. It becomes effective immediately upon acceptance of the act by the Legislature, which is expected to approve the law a few days after it convenes April 30.

Defeat Feared For Indians' 'New Deal' Bill

Collier Assails "Interests" and Rep. Werner for Opposition.

Classified as an "anti-Christian scheme" by missionaries and private interests, the Wheeler-Howard Indian bill is reported facing defeat in Congress.

The measure, backed by Indian Commissioner John Collier and the Administration as the New Deal's contribution to the welfare of the American Indian, may be shelved because of opposition in the field for months, which has shifted to the House Indian Affairs Committee.

"Those attacking the bill are threatening the very lives and existence of the Indians," Collier said.

Collier classified certain cattlemen, job-seekers, real estate interests, attorneys and missionaries as the chief objectors to the reform program. The bill has been indorsed by tribal conferences.

The chief opponent in Congress, Collier asserted, is Representative Theodore B. Werner (Democrat), South Dakota.

"He has succeeded for two weeks in blocking hearings before the Indian Affairs Committee," said Collier.

"I consider the bill of far-reaching importance to a great race of people and it should not be railroaded through merely to suit the whims and fancies of a bureaucracy," Representative Werner explained. "As far as I am concerned, I do not intend to permit the bill to be railroaded."

"If this bill doesn't go through," the commissioner said, "all the land alloted by the Government to individual Indians will pass to whites."

The bill seeks to return self-government to the Indians and end depredations by selfish white interests.

Scientsits Will Study "Blue Flame" Woman

Rome, April 20 (AP).—Trieste's "electric woman" came to Rome today at the request of Guglielmo Marconi, who, as president of the National Research Institute, wanted to give specialists an opportunity to study her.

This strange woman, Anna Monaro, from whose breast emanates a mysterious blue light several times a night, was met at her train by Prof. De Sanctis, director of the nervous ailments clinic of Rome University.

Rebellious Tammany Ousts Veteran Curry as Leader

the presence of anyone not holding a vote were raised.

The motion to depose Curry was introduced by William L. Kavanagh and was seconded by Clarence H. Neal, jr.

The meeting was attended by a complete representation of the executive committee with the exception of Martin J. Healy—and it was the first time in 145 years that historic Tammany Hall has ousted its chosen leader.

A few minutes after he had closeted himself in a private office, Curry, gray haired, suave and apparently unaffected by his defeat, emerged.

"Hello, boys," he said, "everything is all right."

Met by Wife.

He stepped into an elevator which carried him down to the exit on Union Square. At the ground floor Curry was met by O'Brien, who was defeated last year for reelection and for whose defeat and consequent loss of patronage Tammanyites bitterly assailed Curry.

Waiting with the former mayor was Mrs. Curry, attractively dressed—she had been waiting in the Curry limousine for more than three hours to learn the fate of her husband.

She stepped from the car, took her husband by the hand and helped him into the car. She smiled at him and Curry returned her smile.

Amid drama that recalled the remarkable fight of William Marcy (Boss) Tweed in 1870 to retain his grip on the "Society of Tammany or Columbian Order," the committee gathered to vote on whether he should be ousted.

Both Sides Claim Victory.

Stately Tammany Hall—overlooking Union Square, battleground for the Marxists—was thronged with district leaders, captains, ward heelers, all awaiting news of the decision.

As the 70 committeemen began assembling in the late afternoon, the insurgents claimed that Curry, whom they described as a "man of blunders," would be forced to abdicate. Curry's forces claimed that 14 of the 25 votes that can be cast would sustain his leadership.

Into town came James J. Hines, who marshaled Curry's forces when he was named leader in April, 1929, as the dramatic struggle approached its climax.

His arrival from Hot Springs, Ark., cheered the Curry forces, but their happiness was tempered by a chance remark he made as he alighted from the train.

"You're going to vote for Curry, aren't you?" he was asked.

"Yes," said Hines, in a voice that was scarcely audible.

"How many votes are you going to control?"

"I'm not going to control any vote but my own."

Fails to Control Votes.

He was asked if he would swing the votes of three leaders, whom he is said to control. Curry's backers had hoped he would do so and stem the tide of revolt.

"They're all free, white and 21," Hines replied. "They're old enough to know how to vote. I'm not putting any pressure on anybody."

Later, Hines was said to be closeted with Curry—the man credited with three bad political guesses, when he stood by Mayor James J. Walker, opposed President Roosevelt at Chicago, and fought Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's nomination.

In Tammany's eventful career the Curry outster fight is rivaled in drama only by the Tweed fight. He, too, faced an executive committee meeting.

By the simple expedient of surrounding the old hall with 500 policemen—blocking the committeemen from entering—Tweed averted a meeting. The next day the insurgents found that many of their co-revolters had deserted. He was credited with whittling the opposition down to a minority by the judicious use of his great wealth.

Tweed's Position Stronger.

Tweed's position was reputedly stronger than Curry's. He controlled Gov. John T. Hoffman; Gov. Lehman is against Curry. Tweed bossed Mayor A. Oakey Hall, "the elegant Oakey;" Curry's forces lost the mayoralty to Fiorello H. LaGuardia, "the fiery Fusionist."

It was a generation after the Tweed fight before Tammany was thrown into another major revolt. Richard Croker, another colorful leader, had lost the mayoralty to Seth Low toward the turn of the century. He heard the bitter mutterings of the district leaders and quit.

But since Tammany—the "Patriotic and Benevolent" Society—was founded in 1800, no leader has ever actually been deposed by the executive committee.

Patronage, or the loss of it, has been responsible for every major revolt against the power in control of the wigwam.

With Tweed it was a fight with Sheriff James ("Prince Hal") O'Brien over spoils. Croker lost the mayoralty and the accompanying patronage. Curry has committed the same "blunder"—as his opponents view it—and in addition is accused by some district leaders of having "double-crossed" them.

Farley Is Silent On Curry's Ouster

Postmaster General James A. Farley, who, as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, long has favored the ousting of John F. Curry as leader of Tammany Hall, declined last night to comment on the fall of the anti-Roosevelt chief.

"No comment to make," Farley said when informed by The Washington Post of the action of Tammany. He left shortly thereafter for New York. He dedicates a postoffice building in Newark, N. J., today and will speak tonight at a dinner in his home town, Rockland, N. Y. He said he had no plans for conferring with Democratic leaders tomorrow. However, he expects to remain in New York over Monday.

Farley and his associates began to move quietly against Curry after the Tammany leader opposed the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932.

Black Willing To Call Astor In Mail Probe

Republicans Are Welcome to Quiz Roosevelt's Host, Kin Also.

Republican Senators were informed yesterday that they could question Kermit Roosevelt and Vincent Astor, cruising companions of President Roosevelt, about shipping subsidies, should they so desire.

This promise was given on the Senate floor by Chairman Hugo L. Black, of the special investigating committee on ocean and air-mail contracts, in response to assertions by Senator Arthur Robinson (Republican), Indiana.

The Indianian said reports had come to his attention linking Astor and his yacht Nourmahal, on which President Roosevelt was a guest during his recent Southern fishing cruise, with the ocean-mail contract.

When the names of Mr. Astor and Kermit Roosevelt, president of the International Mercantile Marine and a cousin of the President, were mentioned by Senator Robinson, the committee chairman said he would produce any witnesses the Indianian or Republicans might want to question. Mr. Astor is reported to be a large stockholder in Roosevelt's company.

Copies of Instructions Held.

Senator Robinson said he had heard the committee had copies of radiograms sent to Kermit Roosevelt aboard the yacht at the time President Roosevelt was a guest, containing instructions on information to be conveyed to the President.

Senator Black also promised witnesses would be called to testify regarding the International Mercantile Marine. He explained that the committee's funds were almost exhausted after the air-mail inquiry and that he wanted to get the ocean subsidy investigation under way before the money was all gone.

Senator Robinson asked if the chairman thought Mr. Astor ought to be called as a witness.

Senator Black said he had found from experience that it was not wise to tell the committee's plan to "various people who are interested in concealing the facts rather than bringing them out and exposing fraud." He referred, apparently, to the committee's critics rather than to possible witnesses.

Ready for All Phases.

Declaring he was ready to go into all phases of the air and ocean mail inquiry, Senator Black said: "They all look alike to me."

In New York, the Associated Press quoted Kermit Roosevelt as saying he had not been in touch with his office while he was aboard the ship with President Roosevelt.

"I can very emphatically state that from the time I left New York Monday, March 26, until I returned on Friday, April 13, I received no business communications whatsoever from my office or any of the staff, either by radio or otherwise, and it can be readily understood how greatly I resent any such implications," he said.

3 Killed When Auto Collides With Truck

Chicago, April 20 (AP).—Three men were killed and a fourth injured today when their automobile crashed into a heavy motor truck. The automobile was pinned between the truck and a pole.

The dead are Matthew Grogan, 33, sanitary district engineer; Anthony Gaughan, 30, tavern owner, and Edward Penders, 60, employed by Gaughan. John Gill, 28, driver of the car, was hurt.

N. Y. C. Loan Authorized.

The New York Central Railroad Co. was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday to borrow $2,500,000 from the Public Works Administration for buying and laying new rails, according to the Associated Press.

Cannon Notes To Stock Firm Read in Court

Former Senator Is Called to Tell Gifts; "Little Tin Box" Bared.

the time, in December, 1927, when he foresaw the nomination of Smith by the Democratic party and decided to lead the fight to "break the South" for the Republican nominee.

Tells of "Little Tin Box."

The bishop told of augmenting a slender bank balance at Blackstone, Va., with "about $5,000 in cash" in a Richmond safe deposit vault and additional thousands in cash in "a little tin box" in this city. He explained he was gathering these moneys early in 1928 for a premeditated campaign against Smith.

At the same time, the prosecution showed, Cannon was writing to a brokerage house operator in New York City, saying he had "made a great effort and obtained an advance on my salary."

The bishop also wrote of "my secretary, Miss Burroughs, who keeps tabs on such matters."

Cannon said he thought he had obtained a $2,500 advance from the church.

Regarding his use of the campaign contributions, the bishop testified to spending $4,000 to bring the question of Al Smith's religion into the fight in Virginia. He said he caused to be circulated 200,000 pamphlets entitled "Is Southern Protestantism More Intolerant Than Romanism?" and paid the cost out of "Jameson money."

Calm on Stand.

The prosecution sought repeatedly to trip up the bishop by quoting from testimony he gave United States Attorney Rover in 1931, but Cannon proved a capable witness on his own behalf. Frequently he advised Wilson that seemingly conflicting answers were "entirely consistent." The churchman was calm and assured throughout the cross-examination.

It was only when he was asked if he knew Goldhurst that Cannon attempted to avoid a direct answer. He said he did, and that he understood Mr. Goldhurst was a clerk in a New York hotel.

"What was he in 1927 and 1928?" shouted Wilson, and the bishop had to agree the gentleman had been with Kable & Co. then.

"No," said the bishop.

Cannon's handling of the funds of the Moore estate, of which he was residuary legatee, were gone into at length. The bishop finally admitted he got less from the estate than the $1,500 or so shown in an inheritance-tax report.

Explains Check Exchanges.

"Isn't it a fact that you only got $900?" he was asked.

Questioned in detail about the exchange of checks with Miss Burroughs on February 11, 1929, referred to by the prosecution as "check kiting," Cannon explained the transaction deftly.

Admitting he had a balance of only $500 or so when he gave his former secretary checks for $18,000, he explained he knew his checks would be good because she had given him others, within an hour, for approximately the same amount. Miss Burroughs, at the time, had an overdraft at her bank.

"It was to close up our transactions, before I sailed for Europe," said the bishop. "Her checks represented disbursements, mine receipts."

House Hearing Told Defense Is Inadequate

MacArthur Urges Larger Army; Senate Speeds Munitions Quiz.

Gen. Douglass MacArthur, Army Chief of Staff, yesterday told a House committee that the American Army is "dangerously inadequate." At the same time, a Senate committee was preparing to begin an investigation of the munitions industry.

MacArthur appeared before the House Military Affairs sub-committee in behalf of a bill to add 48,000 men to the Army personnel.

"Enactment of this bill would enhance the security of the United States," MacArthur said. "It would lift the American Army above the danger line."

He pointed out also that it would provide employment for young men suffering from the results of the depression.

Senator Pope (Democrat), Idaho, temporary chairman of the Senate committee appointed to investigate the munitions business, said the committee also would go into "war-scare propaganda." He said such propaganda always appears just before Congress takes up military and naval appropriations. Pope intends to call representatives of all the large munitions manufacturers.

Pope charged that "high-powered" lobbyists are always present asking for larger military appropriations and that he proposed to find out who pays them. Among other things, Pope said he intended to find out the source of talk of a possible war with Japan.

Meanwhile Representatives W. D. McFarlane (Democrat), Texas, declared that an investigation by the House Naval Committee of airplane purchase was a "whitewash" and that the committee was "stifling" evidence. These charges were contained in a minority report by McFarlane, a member of the committee.

Roosevelt Approves Loans to Industries

serve banks would be authorized to discount for, or purchase from, any bank, trust company, mortgage company, credit corporation for industry, or other financing institution obligations having maturities not exceeding five years "entered into for the purpose of obtaining working capital for any such industrial or commercial business."

The banks also would be empowered to make loans or advances to financing institutions on the security of such obligations, provided that each institution obligate itself for at least 20 per cent of any loss which may be sustained by the Reserve bank in accepting such obligations.

In "exceptional circumstances" the Reserve banks, with approval by the Reserve Board, may make loans directly to, or purchase directly, obligations of an established industrial or commercial business unable to obtain requisite financial assistance on a reasonable basis from the usual sources. Such loans or advances must be to provide working capital and can not be for periods in excess of five years.

Permanent Feature.

The measure as originally drawn contained a provision that this authority for the Reserve banks should terminate when the President by proclamation should declare that the banking emergency had ended. This was stricken out at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, making the new powers for the Reserve banks permanent legislation.

The aggregate amount of industrial loans, advances or commitments the Reserve banks may have outstanding at one time shall not exceed the combined surplus of the banks as on July 1 next. It is estimated that this surplus, on the present basis, will be between $140,000,000 and $150,000,000.

Naval Reserves To Give Air Show

Exhibit Battle Maneuvers At Anacostia Today.

A demonstration of aerial tactics to include a sham bomb attack and one of the most elaborate combat flying programs ever undertaken by a Reserve organization will be a part of the inspection of VN-6R, the District's Naval Aviation Reserve Squadron, at Anacostia, this afternoon.

This flying display is scheduled for 2:30 p. m., following inspection of ground equipment and personnel at 2 p. m. It will open with the "bombing" of an area of the field staked out to simulate in size and shape the deck of an airplane carrier by four Curtiss "Helldivers." A radio-equipped scouting plane will operate from the "carrier" to warn of the coming attack. A flight of four planes will defend the "carrier."

Following the bombing operations, nine of the unit's planes will fly a series of maneuvers controlled by radio from the ground. Landings on another staked-out "carrier" deck will conclude the demonstration.

Election Will Be Held By Vermont Association

The Vermont State Association, oldest organization of its kind in the District, will hold its annual election of officers Monday at 8 p. m. in the Roosevelt Hotel.

A reading of his own poems will be given by Dr. Louis H. Flint. It is expected C. E. Fairman, the oldest member of the association, will attend. Mrs. Mabel R. Pierce is moderator.

Club to Present Play.

"Journey's End" will be presented by the Cue and Curtain Club, dramatic organization of George Washington University, Thursday and Friday at the Wardman Park Theater. It will be the club's final presentation of the season.

Alumni of Syracuse To Dine This Evening

Alumni of Syracuse University will hold a dinner in Barker Hall of the Y. W. C. A. at 6:30 p. m. today.

Two one-act plays, given by graduates of the university, will follow the dinner. These are "The Patchwork Quilt" and "Tea With a Wicked Lady."

Rabbi Will Be Honored At Dinner Tomorrow

Dr. Gedalia Silverstone, for 30 years one of Washington's foremost rabbis, will be given a testimonial dinner at Tifereth Israel Synagogue tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Taking as his topic "The Talmud," Dr. Silverstone, who will leave soon for a vacation of several months in the Holy Land, will be the principal speaker. The Rev. M. Goldman also will address the banquet. Others speakers include L. Schiller, Simon Belloss, Abram Swartz and Jeremiah Weitz.

G. W. U. Law Making Alumni to Be Honored

George Washington University graduates will honor fellow alumni who are members of Congress at a luncheon this afternoon at 1:15 at the Mayflower Hotel, sponsored by the General Alumni Association.

Guests of honor will include Senators Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, and Daniel Hasting, of Delaware, and Representatives Donald Clark Dobbins, of Illinois; Stephen Gambrill, of Maryland; Arthur H. Greenwood, of Indiana; Donald H. McLean, of New Jersey, and Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania.

Association for Blind Meets Tuesday Evening

Blind persons and their friends in Washington have been invited to attend the meeting of the District Association for the Blind in Wilson Normal School Auditorium Tuesday at 7:45 p. m.

A rehearsal of "Ronald's Wild Oats" will be presented by the Players' Club under direction of Mrs. Morse.

City's Newest Cocktail Salon Opens Today

Washington's newest cocktail rendezvous, the Colonial room at the New Colonial Hotel, Fifteenth and M streets northwest, will be formally opened at 4 p. m. today.

Woman Sues District After Fall on Sidewalk

Charging that she had fallen into a hole in the sidewalk, Maroe M. Connor, 917 Tenth street northwest, yesterday brought suit against the District Government for $25,000 damages.

She alleged that the municipal government permitted a hole to remain in the sidewalk near Second and S streets southeast last summer. While walking along the pavement, she said, she tripped and fell into the depression and was seriously hurt.

Bereft by Park, Families May Get U. S. Tracts

Homesteads Expected to Be Offered, Without Cash Payment.

Luray, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Rehabilitation of families now resident in the Shenandoah National Park area will be continued after their removal November 1 by means of planned communities in which each family may purchase "subsistence homesteads" without making an initial cash payment, according to I. Ferdinand Zerkel, supervisor of the Shenandoah Evacuation Survey, CWA project.

Permission to remain in the park area until November 1 will be granted those families signing a permit, which will give them the privilege of using for this crop season buildings and land utilized last season.

Tracts to Sell Cheaply.

Under the "subsistence homestead" plan, small tracts will be sold to the homesteaders at the low rates made possible by the large-tract purchases of the rehabilitation officials. Savings also will be effected through the wholesale purchase of building materials.

Families will not be required to make an initial payment to secure land, but must be willing to perform work. The balance due on a property at the time of acquisition will be paid off at the rate of $6.60 per $1,000 indebtedness.

Costs of houses and land will vary from $750 to $4,000.

Locations of the proposed homestead areas have not been decided. Probable sites will be on the edge of the Blue Ridge Mountains near here.

No Limit on Tracts.

Tracts of 400 to 600 acres will be purchased in each location and subdivided into parcels of from 6 to 20 acres. No limits have been placed yet on the sizes of homestead tracts.

Work will not be guaranteed, but the evacuation committee will assist in securing jobs so families may meet operating expenses and make payments on their homes.

Special instructions also will be given in handicraft arts. Aid will be provided in securing materials and in selling the products. Production of berries and small fruits also is being considered.

Tentative plans have been considered to establish church and school facilities.

Harper Services Scheduled Today

Berkeley County Resident Dies in Martinsburg.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Rites will be conducted tomorrow for Lewis Grantham Harper, 75, retired farmer and former deputy sheriff and deputy assessor of Berkeley County, who died yesterday at the home here of his son, R. G. Harper.

For several years Mr. Harper was chairman of the Republican county executive committee. He served as deputy assessor in Berkeley County from 1908 to 1912 under the late Otho Williams, and as a deputy sheriff for four years under William Dean.

Surviving also are two daughters, Mrs. Alonzo Shriver and Mrs. Alonzo Albright, Martinsburg.

Somerset School Meet Unchanged

Doctor Denies Crisfield Classes to Close.

Princess Anne, Md., April 20 (Spl.).—County Superintendent of Schools W. Stewart Fitzgerald and the Somerset Board of Education today denied a rumor that the board contemplated changing the annual field and track events on May 8 from Crisfield to Marion Station.

Reports of the closing of Crisfield schools also were denied by Dr. Johnson, county health officer, who said the "epidemic" of scarlet fever only consisted of seven cases.

The athletic contests were to have been held at Princess Anne this year, but because the grounds are unfinished the meet was moved to Crisfield.

Publisher Nips Rumor He Is in Congress Race

Bristol, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Mentioned in a correspondent's press dispatch yesterday as being a possible candidate for Congress in the Ninth Virginia District, Bruce Crawford, of Norton, publisher of Crawford's Weekly, said last night he had always been "deeply interested in public affairs, but I have never pictured myself as running for office."

The special article said Crawford may run on an independent Farm-Labor ticket against Representative John W. Flannagan, jr., Democratic incumbent. Mr. Crawford said he had not given the matter serious thought.

2 Hunting Ground Men Held in Postal Robbery

Franklin, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.). Everett Sponaugle and Hubert Sponaugle, both of Hunting Ground, were arrested yesterday and charged with breaking into the Hunting Ground postoffice and stealing $27.60 in stamps.

8 U. D. C. Delegates Scheduled.

Roanoke, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—The William Watts Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, is planning to send eight delegates to the first district meeting at Abingdon, May 21 and 22.

Harris Named Engineer.

Berryville, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—J. J. Harris, of Berryville, has been appointed projects engineer of the works division of the Clarke County, Va., Emergency Relief Administration.

Honored at Fredericksburg

Virginia Shifts Relief Work as Demands Grow

Burden Placed Upon U. S. Local Governments, Private Charity.

Richmond, April 20 (Spl.).—The burden of relief in Virginia has been placed on the Federal Government, the local government and private charity, according to William A. Smith, VERA administrator, who said no funds for relief can be expected from the State.

"Virginia will provide some work for the unemployed on its road program, but this money can scarcely be classified as spent for relief or work relief," stated Mr. Smith.

Meanwhile, city and county relief directors are receiving twice as many applications for relief and work relief now as when the CWA was at its peak, according to Miss Margaret Woll, head of the social service division of VERA. She attributed this to complete abolition of the CWA. "Many of those seeking relief and work relief are not entitled to it, because they have other means of assistance," she said, "and when they are fully investigated by relief directors this condition will be discovered.

"Many formerly had CWA jobs and now think the new work division of VERA will provide them with work.

"The work division is designed to provide work relief for men and women in absolute need of work to support their families. It is not designed to provide employment to the unemployed as under the CWA."

Business Men Protest Prison Manufacturing

Richmond, Va., April 20 (Spl.). The Chambers of Commerce of Alexandria, Norfolk and Richmond have protested to Gov. Peery against the movement to provide prison-made shelving for the stores to be operated by the alcoholic control beverage board.

The chambers oppose the installation of manufacturing equipment at the State Penitentiary to compete with private business.

7 High Schools To Graduate 378

Frederick, Md., April 20 (Spl.).—Approximately 378 pupils will be graduated from the Frederick, Middletown, Thurmont, Emmitsburg, Libertytown, Walkersville and Brunswick High Schools, it was announced yesterday by Eugene W. Pruitt, superintendent.

In addition, 900 seventh grade pupils will be graduated from the elementary schools.

High school commencements will be as follows: Thurmont, June 4; Brunswick and Walkersville, June 5; Middletown, June 6; Frederick and Libertytown, June 7, and Emmitsburg, June 8.

Roosevelt May Visit Roanoke in September

Roanoke, Va., April 20 (Spl.). Roanoke citizens are interested in the possibility of a visit by President Roosevelt in September for the laying of a corner stone to the veterans' hospital under construction near the city.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Roanoke, has informed the local chamber of commerce that the President has the invitation under consideration.

20 Beauties in Legion Contest at Danville

Danville, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—The American Legion beauty contest will be held in the city auditorium Tuesday night, when 20 candidates will be judged.

The winner will be given a trip to the American Legion State convention this summer at Lynchburg to compete for State honors.

Grid Player in Hospital.

Bristol, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Frank Thomas, 17, Virginia high school student, was in a serious condition at a hospital here today, the result of injuries suffered in a spring football game Wednesday between Bristol and Elizabethtown, Tenn., high school teams.

Board Refuses 46 Uncontested Wine Permits

Applicants Fail to Meet Liquor Requirements in Virginia.

Richmond, April 20 (AP).—The Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board here today reported that 46 uncontested applications for retail wine or beer licenses, 24 of them in Richmond, had been turned down by the board. In most cases the applicants had failed to qualify as bona fide restaurants, the board explained.

Other applications were refused because applicants had not heeded the board's instructions to remove advertising signs extolling particular brands of beer. The rule is similar, the board said, to rules in other control States. Even New York, with the most liberal liquor law yet enacted, bans brand signs, the board pointed out.

In addition to the 24 Richmond permits refused, the board disapproved 9 applications from Norfolk, 6 from Roanoke and 1 from Lynchburg.

In some cases the cancellations resulted from information that the applicants had in the past, or were now, engaged in illegal liquor traffic.

The board also said that it planned to register all wine salesmen in order to prevent any illegal sales to licensees. Cards will be issued to the wine salesmen some time next week after they present identification from the firms they represent.

The board has issued 223 wine and beer licenses to date and has received $11,310 in fees.

Lynchburg Sends Six to Conference

Lynchburg, Va., April 20 (Spl.). Lynchburg district of the Virginia Conference, with six delegates, will have a larger delegation than any other division of the State conference at the general conference of the Methodist Church, scheduled to open next Thursday in Jackson, Miss.

The Lynchburg district delegation will be composed of Dr. H. P. Clarke, Dr. H. P. Myers and Dr. J. Calloway Robertson, ministers, and B. C. Baldwin, O. R. Pettyjohn and W. R. Phelps.

The Virginia Conference will have a delegation of 22, divided equally between laymen and clergymen.

Danville's 'Five Point' Children Will Parade

Danville, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Danville's "five-point" school children, girls and boys who have good teeth, sound vision and hearing, good nutrition and sound throats, will parade May 11.

City school nurses now are engaged in checking pupils to find how many are entitled to the Gold Star certificate. It is estimated that 2,000 children will march through the city.

College Freshmen Dance.

Baptists Pick 12 for Mission Work Abroad

Appointment Roll Largest Since 1925, Ends Long Money Drouth.

Richmond, April 20 (AP).—The Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention tonight announced appointment of 12 new missionaries. This number exceeds all marks since June, 1925, and notes a break in the long financial drought which prevented reinforcement of the thinning ranks.

Five will go to Africa, three to Japan, two to Brazil and two to China. Two other reappointments for China were made in March. The new roll includes:

For Africa, Dr. Leonard Long, of Prague, Okla.; Mrs. Leonard Long (nurse), of Fenton, Mich.; Miss Ruth Walden, Norfolk, Va.; Miss Elizabeth Routh, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Dr. J. C. Pool, of Grapevine, Texas. The three going to Japan are: Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Ray, St. Louis, Mo., and Dr. W. Maxfield Garrott, Conway, Ark. Mr. and Mrs. R. Elton Johnson, Girard, Ala., will go to Brazil.

The four assigned to China are: Miss Elizabeth Hale, Louisville, Ky.; Miss Helen Yates, Harrisonburg, Va., and Dr. and Mrs. S. Emmett Ayers, of Orlinda, Tenn.

Eight missionaries will be fostered and supported by the Womans' Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention. At the annual meeting in Fort Worth, Texas, on May 14 it will consider these eight, finally pass on them and arrange for their expenses out of the Lottie Moon Christmas offering, which exceeded the goal by approximately $40,000.

Mother Hubbard's Dog Gets 'Justice'

Fredericksburg, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Old Mother Hubbard was sued for false pretenses in leading the dog to the cupboard and giving him nothing in court proceedings here.

A jury of spectators of "The Birth of a Celebrated Expression," presented by the Young Men's Bible Class of the Fredericksburg Methodist Church, gave a verdict of guilty.

Those taking major parts in the entertainment were Sidney Armstrong, Frances Liebenow, Bladen Bryant and Frank Jenkins.

Inwood Club Wins 4-H Tournament

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Inwood Club won Berkeley County's first 4-H information tournament, staged under the direction of Assistant County Agent Neil Bolton and Home Demonstration Agent Esther S. Bruchlacher, in the finals here last night by defeating Billmyer's Mill Club.

Members of the winning team were Nellene Staub, Elsie Shirley, Evelyn Laise, Jean Prettyman and Helen DuBreuill.

Each team won the right to appear in the county contest by defeating other clubs in sectional games. The five in the finals were Billmyer's Mill, Marlowe, Golden Rule, Little Women and Inwood Clubs. Nineteen of the 22 clubs in the county, having 281 members, entered the sectional tournaments.

Romney Band Elects Daugherty President

Romney, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Grover Daugherty was named president of the Romney Concert Band yesterday.

T. E. Dicken was named vice president; John L. Lehman, business manager; Benjamin C. Daugherty, director; Eugene Arnold, assistant; the Rev. J. S. Schwartz, secretary; Harry Snyder, treasurer, and Boyd Carpenter, librarian. The band made plans for open-air concerts during the spring and summer.

Wicomico Bridge Job To Start in Summer

Reedville, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Work on the bridge to span the Great Wicomico River, between Glebe Point and Typers, in line with the main highway between Reedville and Kilmarnock, will begin early this summer, State highway department officials announce.

The bridge will be similar in construction to the Downing Bridge, which spans the Rappahannock River at Port Royal and Tappahannock. The Federal Government has allocated about $117,000 for the Great Wicomico Bridge.

Clifton Forge Posts Filled.

Clifton Forge, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—L. F. Pendleton has been reappointed by Judge Benjamin Haden as a member of the city electoral board, his term to expire March 1, 1937. J. Irvine Jones has been named to fill a vacancy caused by the death of F. L. Spinner. His term will expire March 1, 1936.

Radio Waves and Ripples

IRVING BERLIN, monarch of Tin Pan Alley melody, comes to the George M. Cohan show May 6 to play his own music and to give intimate little glimpses into his song-writing methods in what is understood to be his first broadcast.

Berlin's speech is vibrant and quick and his press agent writes that his boss is in a high state of excitement, though an early and severe case of mike fright died down to a mere flutter after his first audition.

"It's wonderful," he is quoted as saying of radio. "It's an opportunity, and I'm thrilled about it. Really, you know, I am."

"GREETINGS around the world."

That was the telegram Col. Sosthenes Behn, president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., sent to William S. Paley, president of Columbia, the message that lowered the round-the-world communication record by 24 seconds.

The route was New York to San Francisco by telegraph, San Francisco to Shanghai by cable, then 9,000 miles to London over the line of the Great Northern Telegraph Co., through Mongolia, Siberia, Russia, Denmark, Sweden and under the North Sea, and from London via cable back to Mr. Paley. The message traveled twice around the clock, jumped from today into tomorrow and back into today again, all in the space of 3 minutes 46 seconds.

The time probably would have been a lot shorter if Mr. Behn had just said, "Hi!"

Or Mr. Paley might still be waiting, had it been necessary for Mr. Behn to call a messenger boy.

We must be getting deaf, for we could have sworn that the young man who was telling us about the "Little Congress" broadcast on N. B. C. tonight said the name of the Congressional secretary who is supposed to look and act like Mayor LaGuardia was spelled F-a-l-z-a-d-o-r-e. But it isn't.

The young man called us yesterday to say that it is S-a-l-v-a-d-o-r-e. He also said that Mr. Salvadore's boss, Representative Donald H. McLean, is a Republican, not a Democrat. We should have looked that up, because Mr. McLean comes from New Jersey, where there are still a lot of Republicans.

Otherwise, the young man said, we were quite right.

AT many a prep school and college this month and next padded and helmeted young men begin to accumulate sprains and bruises that may lead to the ultimate in undergraduate glory next fall . . . or to complete obscurity on a sideline bench.

Normally, spring football practice is a matter of interest to the accumulators of sprains and bruises and the men who coach them.

At Colgate, however, Coach Andy Kerr has plans for experimentation with football's 1934 rules which has drawn sufficient attention from other coaches to call for an N. B. C. broadcast.

At one end of the gridiron Kerr will line up the pick of his 1934 squad. At the other end will be 11 young men who played their last football for Colgate in the 1933 season. For one quarter the 22 young men will play under the present rules. Their second quarter play will be modified by proposed rule changes. And in the third and fourth periods two 12-men teams, each directed by a nonplaying "field general," will be opposed.

The usual between-the-halves noise and postmortem chatter of announcers will be supplanted by a speech by Colgate president and Yale all-American center in 1897, Dr. George Barton Cutten, and music by the Colgate band.

Getting Personal . . .

The Pickens sisters, N. B. C. harmony trio, are ready for almost any emergency like illness or sudden marriage for one of them . . . they carry a spare . . . Grace Pickens . . . who is supposed to be as good as any of the regulars . . . Bing Crosby and Lennie Hayton are practically maintaining the telephone company's lines between New York and Hollywood . . . twice a week Crosby phones Hayton, N. B. C. orchestra leader and pianist, from his West Coast home for a friendly chat and to clear up certain angles about his movie music . . . Harry Horlick's Gypsies is radio's oldest commercial . . . working for the same sponsor for more than eleven years . . . Harry has just written "The President Roosevelt March" and sent copies to the White House and to the Army and Navy . . . when Jimmy Durante and Dave Rubinoff go back to Hollywood next week they will buy three Pullman tickets . . . a lower for Jimmy, one for Dave and another for Dave's $50,000 violin . . . the memoirs of Baby Rose Marie have been written for a national magazine weekly under the title "A Veteran at 9" . . . will she tell all? . . . Lee Sims, of the piano-vocal team of Sime and Bailey, has sold more than 3,000 copies of his compilation of piano solos . . . for the first time in her career, Frances Langford caught cold last week . . . a lot of us probably would like to be Cal York, commentator for "Forty-five Minutes in Hollywood" . . . he spends most of his time catching previews of new films in Hollywood studios so he can tell directors of the program what cinemas will make the best material for their Saturday night previews . . . Gene and Glenn are radio's earliest risers . . . they tee off every morning at 7 on a course an hour from New York . . . the first week Babe Ruth was on the air, 12,500 requests for tickets to his broadcasts were received.

Presbyterial Elects And Ends Meeting

Mrs. C. S. Roller New Head of Lexington Body.

Waynesboro, Va., April 20 (Spl.). The election of Mrs. C. S. Roller, jr., of Fort Defiance, as president and the choice of Harrisonburg as the meeting place for 1935, featured the closing session of the Lexington Presbyterial here today.

Other officers chosen by this division of the Women of the Presbyterian Church are Mrs. Frank Moore, Lexington, first vice president; Mrs. Sidney Syron, Churchville, second vice president, and Mrs. Frank Patterson, Fort Defiance, corresponding secretary; Miss Virginia Smith, Staunton, recording secretary, and Mrs. C. D. Christie, Waynesboro, historian.

Mrs. R. D. Hull, Harrisonburg; Mrs. W. C. Curry, Monterey; Mrs. J. E. Altaffer, Cross Roads; Mrs. C. D. Smith, Harrisonburg; Mrs. R. E. Christian, Staunton, and Mrs. H. H. Lamb, Franklin, W. Va., were named district chairmen and secretaries of various activities.

Woodstock Scans Manager System

Success in Other Towns Attracts Attention.

Woodstock, Va., April 20 (Spl.). Adoption of the town manager plan of government in Woodstock is being urged by many citizens who have studied the results other small municipalities are obtaining from such government.

The Woodstock Rotary Club instructed its community service committee to furnish information on the operation of the town manager plan. The committee comprises Joseph B. Clower, Dr. F. Wilson Gearing, Herbert Trotter and Hunter B. Chapman.

Front Royal, a town about the size of Woodstock, and the county seat of Warren, has had the town manager plan several years. Recent finacial statements have indicated marked savings and a substantial reduction in taxes.

Presbytery Picks Fall Session Place

Winchester Body to Meet At Charles Town.

Romney, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.). The Winchester Presbytery will hold its fall session at Charles Town Presbyterian Church, starting October 23, it was decided at the three-day spring session which closed here yesterday. The Rev. Dr. G. G. Sydnor is pastor of the Charles Town church.

Closing business included selection of delegates to the general assembly, which meets at Montreat, N. C., next month, as follows:

Ministers: The Rev. L. A. McMurray, returning to America this week from mission work in the Belgian Congo, and the Rev. N. A. Parker, of Mount Storm, W. Va. Elders: Dr. C. R. Dyer, of Petersburg, W. Va., and Stewart Bell, of Winchester, Va.

U. Va. Gets $60,000 From N. Y. Estate

Kin's Trust Also May Go to University.

New York, April 20 (AP).—Edward Dean Richmond, investment banker, left a net estate of $829,668, a transfer tax appraisal today showed.

The University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., was left $60,000, and $3,000 was bequeathed to the Baylor School, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The residuary estate was distributed equally between a sister and a niece, both of Chattanooga, Tenn. The niece's share was left in trust, to pass to her issue at death, and, in the event she leaves no issue, to be divided equally between the University of Virginia and the Salvation Army.

Virginia 'Corn' Prices Slashed By Bootleggers

Rum Sellers Keeping Busy With Liquor Board Slow in Action.

Richmond, April 20 (Spl.).—Virginia bootleggers, especially those around Richmond, have not let the grass grow long while the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board ends its fifth week of organization, with no legal liquor available and none likely until next month.

Illegal distributors hereabouts are cutting prices slightly, with quantity and quality the same, available in any amount 15 minutes after order is placed.

The only product is "corn," with a little rye available. This is sold principally in "case" lots, a case holding 12 half-gallon jars. The price has been pretty steady at $12 a case for several years, but now one or a dozen cases can be bought for $10.

The liquor board hopes the Government will cut the excise tax, thus opening the way for it to beat the bootlegger in quality and almost equal his price.

The board still is open-minded on the question of State manufacture, and if it can not obtain the right whisky at the right price from private distillers, may decide to manufacture its own.

The Virginia A. B. C. Board today continued to rush its wine distribution machinery, and it is hoped that when wine is generally available, the bootleg traffic will receive a heavy preliminary blow. It is apparent that the public has only so much to spend for "whoopee," and that every dollar invested in table wines will deprive the illicit tradesman of that much revenue.

It was stated by a reliable source close to the board that a plan is under consideration by that body to make proposals to certain distillers looking toward the manufacture of a special grade of corn whisky for the Virginia market.

Fire Hazard Seen At Transient Camp

Conditions Are Criticized at Yellow Sulphur Springs.

Richmond, April 20 (AP).—George A. Bowles, superintendent of insurance of the State bureau of insurance and banking, said today that a fire hazard existed at the Federal transient camp at Yellow Sulphur Springs, near Blacksburg.

But M. S. Burchard, director of the State transient bureau, said that the building Mr. Bowles mentioned was not used as sleeping quarters.

"The camp is not overcrowded as was the Lynchburg home at the time of the disaster there, but under some conditions it could be a fire trap," Mr. Bowles reported. "In the improvements to the building a number of changes from the standpoint of fire prevention should be made." Mr. Bowles' statement was made after he returned from a tour of transient camp inspections ordered by Gov. Peery. He found other camps safe.

8 Enter Culpeper Race for Council

Mayoralty Also Contested In June Election.

Culpeper, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Eight candidates are contesting for four vacancies on the Town Council. The election will be June 12.

The candidates are L. Frank Smith, Floyd H. White, Giles H. Miller, E. A. Walter, Robert W. Huffman, Charles W. Hoffman, T. R. Connlain and W. A. Smith.

Atwell Somerville, for many years active on the council, has announced himself a candidate for mayor and is opposed by Richard C. Thompson, attorney.

Fred P. Hudgins, candidate for recorder and assessor, has no opposition, nor has Sayre N. Thompson, campaigning for treasurer to succeed his father, Gregg A. Thompson, who declined to run.

Many Visit Historic Houses.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—The Mary Washington House, Fredericksburg home of Washington's mother, and Kenmore, colonial mansion of Washington's only sister, Betty Washington Lewis, report a registration of visitors far in excess of the normal season figure.

Four Historic Cities Plan Joint Campaign to Attract Tourists

Fredericksburg, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—A cooperative movement to advertise Fredericksburg, Williamsburg, Charleston, S. C., and St. Augustine, Fla., as "the four most historic cities of America" is planned by officials of the four cities.

City Manager Levin J. Houston, jr., and Benjamin T. Pitts, president of the Chamber of Commerce here, motored to Charleston yesterday to confer with officials of the other cities.

It is planned to have each of these cities cooperate in bringing to the attention of tourists the attractions of the other three. Thousands of visitors would be attracted to the four centers, officials believe, by distribution of literature and erection of signboards and advertisements on the highways.

For many years Fredericksburg and Charleston have disputed over the slogan, "America's Most Historic City." Both use the phrase in their publicity programs and on Chamber of Commerce stationery. Civic authorities feel that a combination with Williamsburg, restored by the Rockefeller millions, and St. Augustine, oldest settlement in the United States, would be of mutual benefit by uniting their resources and ending their disputes.

The Boy Who Made Good.

A new way to solve the crime problem has been evolved by the citizens of Mooresville, Ind., home town of John Dillinger. For weeks Federal and other police authorities have been searching the country for the notorious criminal who brandished a wooden pistol and walked out of a jail presided over by a female sheriff. As elusive as a sea serpent, the alleged bandit and murderer has hopped, skipped and jumped around the countryside until everyone is tired of hearing about him. The people of Mooresville are no exception. Therefore, they are circulating a petition for Dillinger's pardon.

They believe that this move alone would call off the hounds of pursuit and thus end what is becoming a wearisome performance. Dillinger, pardoned, would surrender to the nearest peace officer and promise to abide by State laws and be a good boy forever more. He would then be left alone, Mooresville might even erect a statue in his memory, and he could start a small factory for the manufacture of wooden pistols for visiting tourists.

Mooresville, by this action, takes place with a type of American town, of which Dayton, Tenn., used to be an outstanding example. That any community could circulate such a petition seems almost unbelievable, until we stop to recall the incredible forms which are taken by civic pride. Baltimore, if memory serves, once issued a pamphlet giving reasons why citizens should "enthuse" over the Monumental City. One of them was the number of its fertilizer factories.

In Questionable Taste.

Long lines of armed soldiers, accompanied by cannon, machine guns and other instruments of modern warfare, marched up the Avenue to the blare of martial music yesterday. Washington is accustomed to such pomp and circumstance. It has its place and time. But Washington had not been led to expect that the dominant note of the Cherry Blossom Festival would be a military demonstration in which the distinctive note expected was subordinated to warlike display.

It had been announced that the parade would be kept free of all kinds of propaganda. For that reason certain floats suggested by pacifist organizations were barred from participation. It is understood that from the viewpoint of good taste these banned designs left much to be desired. But what shall be said, on the score of good taste, for making a military demonstration out of the Cherry Blossom Festival? After all, it was the ideal of international peace which lay behind the presentation to Washington of those exotic trees whose annual blossoming has become a happy excuse for a festival of simple merriment and good will.

Realism In Wheat.

A sharp break in the price of wheat this week is attributed to a disposition on the part of the Department of Agriculture to let that commodity find a more natural level. For several months domestic wheat prices have been substantially above the Liverpool price, and exports have been moving abroad only as pushed by a Government subsidy. This artificial situation was created by the very short crop of last year and the efforts of the Government to improve the status of the farmer. It is not surprising, therefore, that adjustments are now taking place.

Secretary Wallace has taken a realistic view of the situation. "The real cause of the break," he says, "is that we have in prospect a winter wheat crop 140,000,000 bushels in excess of last year and sooner or later it was inevitable that Chicago and Liverpool wheat prices would work closer together." Obviously it would be impossible to maintain the American price 20 cents or more above the world price for any length of time if farmers keep on producing more wheat than can be absorbed by the domestic market.

A considerable reduction of acreage has been achieved under the voluntary contract system. Even so, present estimates indicate production this year of at least 50,000,000 bushels in excess of normal domestic consumption. When this is added to the prospective carry-over of 275,000,000 bushels it is apparent that we will have a large surplus available for export. If there is to be a resumption of foreign shipments on a normal scale a prerequisite is closer relationship between Chicago and Liverpool prices.

Some hope for better wheat prices is based on the World Wheat Conference. Last year an abundant crop in Europe erased most of the benefits expected from the curtailment programs in other parts of the world. At the recent session of the advisory commission in Rome, however, plans for the establishment of minimum export prices, for "denaturing" inferior wheat to make it unfit for human consumption, and for reduction of acreage were discussed. These proposals will be laid before the interested governments for definite action. Gradual stabilization of the world wheat market may be achieved in this way. Even if this international objective should be attained, however, it will be no guarantee of "parity" wheat prices in the United States.

Behind "Planned Economy."

Prosecutions of employes of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation for levying political assessments upon workers, and for many other infringements of public trust, are at long last in prospect. Instances of bribery, collusion, appointment of untrained persons to positions requiring expert training and a long catalogue of evils directly traceable to the spoils system have accumulated to the point where Chairman Fahey is forced to act. It is the experience of the CWA all over again, and it is an experience the significance of which the country is beginning to appreciate.

The HOLC may be temporarily purged of conspicuously inefficient and dishonest officeholders, though so far the mild proposal of Senator Norris to place its appointments on a merit basis has been checked by the politicians. But so long as the spoils system prevails in this and other branches of the Government service established for the ostensible purpose of economic recovery, waste and incompetence will prevail. Under such circumstances there is intolerable hypocrisy in references to these inefficient and graft-ridden agencies as instances of "social engineering" or "planned economy."

If the Government is to become the regulator and supervisor of private business on an increasing scale, and a source of loan funds for private use, the essential prerequisite is creation of a body of trained public servants, selected under civil service rules and protected against arbitrary dismissal for political reasons. There never has been a time when recognition of the civil service principle was as essential as at present, yet not since the days when the spoils system was supreme has Congress shown such complete indifference to the claims of merit and such insistence on opening all doors to spoilsmen.

The HOLC is merely an outstanding example of a widespread evil whose eradication calls for Congressional action. Instead of curtailing the evil, the tendency is to extend it. Thus the pending bill to regulate the stock exchanges provides that:

> For the purposes of this act and of the Securities Act of 1933, the Federal Trade Commission may select, employ and fix the compensation of such attorneys, examiners and other special experts as shall be necessary for the transaction of the business of the commission with respect to such acts without regard to the provisions of other laws applicable to the employment and compensation of officers and employes of the United States.

Disgraceful as they are, the HOLC disclosures may be constructive if they serve to check the increasing subordination of our economic life to machine politics. There is growing realization that measures which are heralded as eliminating abuses are in reality calculated to fetter far worse evils on the country. There is a healthy appreciation of the way in which talk of a "planned economy" is being used to mask an unprecedented extension of the spoils system.

British Budget Lessons.

Two qualities are needed to establish and maintain sound fiscal policies. One is tenacity in seeking and collecting revenues; the other is restraint in spending them. The British have demonstrated their capacity in both respects and their reward has been a budgetary surplus about which the Chancellor of the Exchequer is pardonably complacent. "Where else, outside the British Empire," Mr. Chamberlain asked the House of Commons, "where else in the world can you find a country which has been able to show a substantial surplus in its budget for two successive years?"

Some fortuitous savings and omission to which this country takes exception—though these are offset by failure of Britain's debtors to pay her—have assisted the government to achieve its surplus. However the outcome is due primarily to a taxation program and an economy plan which have strained the economic resources and tested the political endurance of the British people in ways that other governments have not had either the courage or the wisdom to attempt.

The Government has not only succeeded in obtaining a substantial surplus, but it has successfully resisted the temptation to dissipate it by an unwise expansion of appropriations. On the other hand, it has recognized the desirability of easing the strain on the taxpayers and recipients of relief funds upon whom the pressure of fiscal reforms has weighed most seriously. The chancellor has chosen the safe middle ground of reducing the standard income-tax rate a half-shilling, of partially restoring civil service pay cuts, and of fully reestablishing the old scale of transitional relief and benefits for the unemployed.

Another lession taught by British budgetary experience is the importance of accurate advance estimates of receipts and expenditures. A carefully prepared budget statement assists the authorities to enforce restraint in appropriations. When, as is the case in the United States, government officials are unable to guess within hundreds of millions of dollars what will be spent or received in the next fiscal year, it is the more difficult to silence demands for fresh outlays.

It is interesting to note that the actual ordinary revenues of the British budget during the fiscal year just closed exceeded estimates by only £25,700,000, with total receipts amounting to £724,450,000. Over £10,000,000 of the discrepancy is accounted for, moreover, by an addition to estate duties following the death of one of England's richest men. On the other hand, expenditures fell just £4,100,000 below estimates. This showing is more than evidence of expert judgment. It indicates a degree of stability in economic and financial affairs that augurs well for the future. Without such stability, advance planning is largely waste effort and struggles to attain balanced budgets become a battle with unknown forces.

Capital Baiting.

No one familiar with the attitude of that small clique in the House which takes charge of the District budget was surprised at its performance Thursday. Several years ago the House ceased to function as a legislative body in considering District appropriation bills. Such measures are now left almost entirely in the hands of a few Congressmen who are inclined to regard the National Capital as a target for any sort of attack which can be capitalized in their constituencies.

In spite of the glaring defects of the 1935 appropriation bill as it passed the House, the manner of its consideration seems more important than the measure itself. The $5,700,000 Federal contribution was placed in a paragraph with the tax reduction proposal. When the latter item was stricken from the bill on a point of order, foes of the District were in a position to insist that the entire paragraph be cut out. Having thus entirely eliminated the Federal contribution, they permitted its reinstatement only after it had been reduced to $4,364,295. Out of 435 members of the House an average of about 30 were on the floor while this bill was under consideration.

Some excuse might be offered for a performance of this kind if the Appropriations Committee had drafted a reasonably satisfactory bill. But even in the drafting the measure sought to cripple the Public Utilities Commission by a 43 per cent cut in its allowance. It left the public schools without sufficient fuel, and kept this rapidly growing city on a subsistence basis. The House as a body gave no consideration to these problems. It refused to consider an equitable division of the expense of maintaining the Nation's Capital. With either profound ignorance of local conditions or complete apathy toward the welfare of a community that can not produce votes, the great majority of Congressmen resigned their responsibility into the hands of the Capital baiters.

To this group the act of bad faith involved in reduction of the Federal contribution apparently means nothing. Funds for the construction of sewers were accepted by the Commissioners from the PWA as an outright grant. If there had been any intention of deducting this sum from the so-called "lump sum" the District would not have accepted it. Except for the trickery involved in this move, District taxpayers probably would not protest against this particular reduction. Yet it is only one phase of the persistent drive to force residents of Washington to pay the full cost of maintaining a National Capital.

What the District seeks is not special gifts from the PWA or any other Federal agency, but an equitable division of the responsibility for supporting this Federal City. A firm attitude on the part of the Senate will be necessary to prevent a complete breakdown of the sound theory on which the District was formerly financed.

Down To Fundamentals.

Echoes of deep-rooted opposition to certain aspects of the New Deal are reaching Washington from various parts of the country. Citizens of Lexington, Mass., chose the anniversary of the first battle of the Revolution to protest to Congress against "unreasonable interference" by the Government "in the affairs of a free people." Almost at the same time a member of the Southern Industrial Council, meeting in Birmingham, Ala., was comparing the effects of Governmental policies with those of Sherman's march to the sea.

Such protests are somewhat over-dramatized and are as yet an exaggerated reflection of the general public attitude. But they indicate that significant groups are beginning to regard the experiments undertaken by the Roosevelt Administration in the light of basic principles. Day by day the tendency to give the recovery program critical analysis gathers strength. Day by day there is clearer realization of the fundamental changes involved in some of its objectives. Indeed, it is time to think when a Southern manufacturer, speaking in a stronghold of the Democratic party, sees fit to sound a warning of "secession." The language is emotional, and perhaps inspired only by self-interest. But it is to be remembered that extreme measures give rise to extreme reactions.

A cavalier attitude toward rights which the American people have come to regard as fundamental, and much ill-considered legislation masquerading as recovery measures, are beginning to produce their logical effect. For a brief period the American people may have been apathetic toward the regimentation idea. But they have not yet subscribed to any New Deal which involves the subordination of personal liberty to an unlimited extension of bureaucratic control from Washington. In the protests from New England and the far South the Administration may read a timely warning that its activities are being scrutinized from a much more fundamental viewpoint than has heretofore been the case.

Washington Parks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post recently carried a news item to the effect that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia were proposing to ask the chairman of the Senate and House committees on the District of Columbia to sponsor an amendment to the Capper-Cramton act, passed in 1930, with the indorsement of the American Civic Association and a long line of National organizations, as well as most of the important organizations in the District of Columbia. This act, among other provisions, contained an authorization of $16,000,000 to be made available as appropriated by Congress to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for the purchase of parks, parkways and playgrounds (not for laying out bridle paths and similar activities). About $3,500,000 has been so appropriated by Congress and expended, leaving a general authorization (such as is necessary before an appropriation can come before the Budget Bureau).

These expenditures on the part of the Federal Government were to be repaid, without interest, at the rate of $1,000,000 annually. The proposed amendment would transfer this authorization from the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and presumably Congress would be asked actually to appropriate the sum for a program of public works which could be supplemented by Federal funds appropriated under the public works program.

Only those who worked so hard and so long for this authorization, which also contained authorizations for the extension of Rock Creek Parkway and Anacostia Parkway into Maryland, largely an accomplished fact, and for the George Washington Memorial Parkway from Mount Vernon to Great Falls to supplement the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, can appreciate the extent of this threatened calamity.

From our point of view it would be most unfortunate to set a precedent for diverting this authorization from the planning and park authority to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and to substitute for an authorized park, parkway and playground program a miscellaneous program of public works, however worthy and needed the latter may be.

Considering these existing National Capital Park and Planning Commission authorizations as "watermillions" we might well say to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia: "Why don't you wish for you own watermillions?"

Rifles and Blossoms.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post reports that officials in charge of the Cherry Festival parade claim that no propaganda is to be allowed in subjects displayed on the floats. How about the float of the National Rifle Association, which has been permitted to enter? Or is Gen. Fries lacking in humor? How about the humor of his being in charge of a cherry blossom parade, anyhow?

Back to the Simple Life.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read in a paper that a man committed suicide because, he said, "I can't carry on and keep an automobile running." This news item gives point to the truth that the trouble with our life is not the high cost of living, but the cost of high living.

Poverty in America does not mean the actual poverty of lack of food, clothing and shelter, but the fictitious poverty of lack of an automobile, radio, washing machine and a hundred other luxuries.

Men and women of America, let us return to the simple life! "Man needs but little here below, nor needs that little long." Great men of the past used to mine the soul for treasure. That mine, though now abandoned, is still rich in gold. Let us seek it!

From Bad to Wirt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Said Mr. Wirt to Mr. Rand:
"The Reds I see on every hand,
Behind the door, beneath the bed,
Where'er I look my eyes see Red.
And if the truth were known, I bet
You'd find them in the Cabinet.
These Brain Trust fellows told me so
And surely they are in the know.
They say that every man with sense-sky
Knows Roosevelt's only a Kerensky—
And so they plan to revolute
And get a Stallin substitute—
A Tugwell or a Raymond Moley,
Fomenters of this plot unholy."
Said Mr. Rand to Mr. Wirt:
"These fellows plan to do us dirt.
To Washington I'll quickly hie
And loudly raise a hue and cry.
These Bolshies we must put to rout,
These wicked Reds we'll smoke 'em out;
For if the country needs dictation,
There's my Committee for the Nation.
I've waited for a chance for ages
To see my name on the front pages."
Said Mr. Writ to Mr. Rand:
"I think your idea's simply grand.
My patriotic fervor's rising.

A Tribute.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Republicans who believed and still believe that Theodore Roosevelt carried on the current of political democracy of Abraham Lincoln and renewed its spirit will forever cherish the memory of Theodore Douglas Robinson, who died recently at Warren, N. Y. He was in the van of the Bull Moose movement in the Republican party. His kindly, genial good nature endeared him to all who came in contact with him. He earnestly and fervently believed in the mission of his illustrious uncle to rebuild and reorganize a new Republican party upon foundations dedicated to the service of all Americans. In his idealism and sincerity of purpose Mr. Robinson was a true scion of the race of Roosevelt.

His untimely death is a distinct loss to the politics of New York State, and he will be mourned by those who, like the writer enjoyed his personal acquaintance.

HENRY SALANT.

Economy in Government.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What America needs is economy in government. When Grover Cleveland was President, the gold reserve of America was $500,000,000. Now our gold reserve is $5,000,000,000, or was in President Hoover's Administration. This shows that America has advanced financially. We are likely to advance to still greater prosperity, if we hold fast to American methods and economy.

A great saving of Government money could be made by finding all the unemployed work, and disbanding the charities. If America has 1,000,000 towns, and we have 13,000,000 unemployed, if they were scattered into the different towns, there would be only 13 people unemployed in each town. Shops and stores could take care of their quota of 13 and stop unemployment.

The Ungrateful Guest.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable occurs the following, which seems to have a bearing upon the recent raid by the Legion lobby upon the U. S. Treasury.

Ungrateful. The Ungrateful Guest. A Macedonian soldier, being wrecked, was hospitably entertained in the house of a villager. When he appeared before Philip, the king asked him what service he could render him, and the soldier demanded the house of his entertainer; but the circumstance being known, Philip ordered him to be branded on the forehead with these words: "The Ungrateful Guest."

An Ironic Critic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Controversy still continues over the question of whether classicism or realism should dictate those murals which are to decorate the interior of the new Federal Postoffice Department Building. May I make one more suggestion? A fresco of some of our comic-strip characters which are typically American could be used with good effect: Tillie the Toiler, Bringing Up Father, Three Little Pigs or Krazy Kat. That seems to me to be a jolly idea for the children—large and small.

MRS. LELIA KESTLER.
Washington, April 19.

Mr. Koki Hirota.

Within a fortnight after the resumption of the present Diet session Mr. Koki Hirota, the foreign minister, made himself a prominent figure in the cabinet.

When he delivered his maiden speech in the Diet he gave the impression that, though he is not so eloquent in words as many of his predecessors, he is firm in his convictions and determined to settle all the difficult questions which confront Japan by peaceful diplomatic means. It is generally admitted, according to International Gleanings from Japan, that it is reassuring to return to Hirota's "peaceful" diplomacy after the so-called "rack and ruin" diplomacy of Count Yasuya Uchida, the former foreign minister, who said in the Diet in reply to an interpellation that he would see Japan go to "rack and ruin" rather than sacrifice its vital interest.

Mr. Hirota as foreign minister answers the interpellations put to him with rare frankness and candidness, gives an impress of strength of character and reliability as to words.

Until February the foreign minister has made plain in the Diet, among other things, the following points in his policy:

1. That he will settle all questions by peaceful diplomatic measures.

2. That Japan should bear the entire burden of responsibility in keeping the peace in East Asia.

3. That he does not consider that Japan's "crisis" will come in 1935-36, though that cry is being raised by some people.

4. That he is not satisfied with the present naval ratio given to Japan, and that he does not consider the idea of fixing ratios as a just and permanent basis for naval disarmament.

5. That there is no reason to return the South Sea mandatory islands to the League of Nations when Japan definitely leaves the league in 1935.

When Mr. Hirota made the last declaration in the House of Peers, there was applause, a very rare thing in that house.

The Post Impressionist

Gray—

Postoffice, Saturday.

NOW is the time for all good critics to rally to the support of their Theses. This is the season when fiction-weather forecasters put forth their predictions of summer and autumn literary "tones."

Are we to have a continuation of those bleak skies loved by super-realists? Or the baby-blue of ultra-romance? And what happens when, to shift metaphors, doctors disagree?

* * * *

For instance, Louis Bromfield hopes for the worst—what romantics consider the worst. He still holds to the faith that fiction should be "scientific" rather than artistic.

"Science is honest," he said in "Twenty-Four Hours" some while ago, "and honesty is the great liberator." He does not demonstrate how much freer our world has been made by the realistic regime of the dictators. Being a realist, he is credulous. He is all for realism; so he is sure it will go on.

You object that Mr. Bromfield is a novelist, not a critic. Turn then to Thomas H. Uzzell, compiler of "Short Story Hits, 1932," "Short Story Hits, 1933," undoubtedly at this moment collecting the home-runs of 1934. Having cited Ernest Hemingway's latest volume and William Faulkner's, having declared Erskine Caldwell "the most talked-of story-writer" today, Mr. Uzzell predicts longer life for "the story of guts"—a phrase which, forgetting old-fashioned Kipling, he assures us he borrows "from current literary slang."

Mr. Uzzell believes this type will endure for some time. And what adds weight to his words is the evidence that he himself is no convert to the cult. He well points out that other literatures of despair have risen ere the present—and passed away just as literatures of optimism have passed. He quotes Chateaubriand on the aftermath of the French Revolution and adds that our National "story of guts is comparatively tame." American naturalism, at all events in short fiction, "has hardly begun to explore" human nature's "possibilities of depravity" known to such Europeans as Dostolevsky, Huysmans and Mirbeau.

But, such as our native product is, Mr. Uzzell seems to think that we are sure to have more of it before we have less. And, says he, "the easiest advice is not to read macabre stories if you don't like them."

* * *

He is talking in a trade-paper, too—in "The Author and Journalist," which gives writers advance news of their markets. But this magazine gets another sort of prediction from usually far-sighted Magda Leigh.

Mrs. Leigh quotes, out of the New York "Herald Tribune," our old friend Walter Prichard Eaton (Harvard, 1900), who succeeded ex-Harvard George P. Baker as director of Yale's University Theater:

"There come times . . . when the race wants romance to temper the harshness of reality. . . . Is the present such a time? . . . There are certainly plentiful evidences that . . . over-sophisticated realism has begun to pall."

Eaton speaks chiefly of the theater and the screen, but his implication covers fiction, too. Having mentioned the success of "Little Women" and "Alice In Wonderland" on screen and stage—having mentioned as well the motion-pictures' triumphant "Three Little Pigs"—he concludes: "After the gangsters, after the naked females . . . the truthful, vivid and emotional" depiction "of wholesome, sentimentally warm life in an earlier and simpler America comes like a balm."

* * *

Like a balm to the weary romantics comes also another voice. It tells what the "wild (air) waves" will soon be saying and hints that the writers of fiction will follow suit. It is the voice, filtered through the New York "Times," of Mr. John Royal, program-director of the National Broadcasting Company.

"Mr. Royal," a commentator records, "is planning on the theory that Americans will relax a bit. . . . Wines and beer may mean sentimental things." Mr. Royal asserted that "the lilting waltzes are coming back."

* * *

Mrs. Leigh calls "Anthony Adverse" to the witness-stand. She calls E. M. Delafield's "Provincial Lady" and that "escape from sordidness" the popular "Twenty Years Agrowing." She calls the experts in women's fashions. And thus does she end her prediction:

"From realism to romance is a natural step. There is bound to be a reaction to the naked writings of Hecht, Hemingway, Caldwell, etc. We shall give our women back their bustles and their yards of cloth because we are sick of nudists. We writers, . . . have a thousand scenes of sentiment fairly bursting our minds in their desire to escape to paper. Now's the time!"

* * *

So there are the diverging doctors. Now listen to Willard E. Hawkins, editor of "The Author and Journalist," reconciling them: "It is not incompatible for widely divergent trends to develop side-by-side. . . . If there is a leaning toward extreme realism . . . what is more logical than that there should be a counterbalancing tendency toward romance? . . . Right now, it would appear that there is excellent opportunity for powerful, realistic novels and also for innocuous, romantic novels teeming with old-fashioned sentiment."

* * *

If you ask us which is right, Mr. Uzzell or Mrs. Leigh, our answer will be: Mr. Hawkins.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

THERE are some things about publishers that I can not, for the life of me, understand. Crack-Down Johnson in a round-table talk yesterday with those who are having their annual meeting here, told them right to their face that it was they who put across the NRA. Without their support, he said, it could not have been sold to the country. If that isn't a serious allegation, one that should have brought hot denials from the publishers, if not challenges to a duel, I'll eat my hat.

BARGERON.

Instead, I am told, it sort of tickled the publishers' vanity, made them throw out their chests and again renew their fealty to the public weal. Not one of them blushed with shame, not one lowered his eyes, yet right there before them was, in my opinion, one of the most serious charges that has ever been made.

Why, instead of their resenting his statement, I am told that when in the course of subsequent remarks he complained against press treatment his earlier statement was cited in refutation. What manner of men can they be?

It is a responsibility I would not care to shoulder. And it is one that I would never have, of my own accord, fastened upon the publishers, very likely out of loyalty. I had considered the blame lay with the Democrats, and regardless of the publishers' attitude, that is where I still consider it lies. And, I never intend to forgive them for it, either. Whether prosperity ever returns or whether it does not, I shall until my dying day, hold the NRA against the Democrats.

Now had the Republicans done it I would not have been surprised in the least. They have never made any bones about their solicitude for big business, for combines and monopoly. The only hope we ever had to get the trend started the other way, to a simpler business and industrial life, was through the Democrats. When they, instead, turned around and outdid the Republicans at their own game, I gave up. Honestly, like Carter Glass, I'll never get over it.

Much is made over the fact that the idea was not new, that it was the old Theodore Roosevelt-Progressive philosophy, a philosophy in other words that the big business trend could not be stopped, therefore the thing to do was for the Government to enter into partnership and control it.

Just how well this philosophy has worked out when adopted by the Democrats 20 years later, Crack-Down unwittingly told the publishers as he sat there with them. In answer to a question as to why there had been no prosecutions against big concerns for code violations, he said frankly that the NRA had not yet been able to get an air-tight case, that these fellows had the very best legal talent and finally, what good to the present situation would be accomplished by closing a plant employing say, 6,000 persons?

One must agree with all three of his premises, particularly the latter two. But, this being the situation, one must ask why the NRA? The reason, I suppose, is that it can be enforced against some fellow who is making a living at cleaning and pressing pants, and who may have once had a chance of some day employing 6,000 men, but who isn't likely to have it now.

And for the publishers to take the General's remarks as a compliment —ummmph! They can have the responsibility if they want it, the achievement—and with it should go an award.

• • • •

After all, there should be some public recognition of an achievement of this kind, something that will endure longer than words. We ought to get up something—something really appropriate to the accomplishment.

Official Advises Careful Teacher Selection.

Norfolk, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of public education, told teachers of District L, comprising Norfolk, Portsmouth and adjacent counties, that the schools had failed, in that education has been unrelated to life.

He said a selective program in choosing teachers would have to be adopted before education in Virginia would show improvement.

"We are going to be more careful about who becomes a teacher," he said. "Any old thing won't do any longer. The teaching profession is the highest calling except the ministry, and teachers should come up to the highest requirements."

Keyser Will Gives $2,000 to Charity

Winchester, Va., April 20 (Spl.). Opequon Memorial Church, of Kernstown, near here, and the Children's Home Society of Virginia, Richmond, each will receive a bequest of $1,000 under terms of the will of Carson Keyser, retired Frederick County farmer, probated here.

Mr. Keyser's estate was valued at $20,000. He was a member of Opequon Church, the oldest Presbyterian Church west of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Baptist Church Group Convenes at Beckley

Beckley, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.). Delegates from all sections of West Virginia assembled today at the First Baptist Church here for the seventh annual State convention of the Baptist Young People's Union, which will continue three days. Frank M. Lovett, of Parkersburg, is in charge.

Among those who will appear during the meeting are the Rev. BANÁNAS AND SKIMMED MILK.

("Bananas and skimmed milk constitute the latest reducing diet. Doctors at Johns Hopkins who have been conducting experiments say it is possible to take off 50 pounds in a few weeks."—News item.)

"Chidsey!"

"Yes, dear."

"On your way to the station stop at the fruit store and have them send me two dozen bananas."

"Going on a picnic?"

"No."

"If you must have all the details, I'm eating these bananas myself."

"I didn't know you cared for them."

"I don't. I hate 'em. But I'm going to eat them . . . in fact I'm not going to eat anything but bananas."

• • • •

"Practicing for a trip to Barbados or Little Italy?"

"No. They're for my health."

"Bananas never made anybody healthy. Don't be silly."

"It's a new diet."

"I can think of nothing more absurd than living in the United States on bananas, unless it be living in the West Indies on New England cider apples. I really hope you will abandon the notion."

"What for? It's recommended by Johns Hopkins. You know Johns Hopkins, I suppose."

"No. But I assume he is a banana importer."

"That explains everything!"

• • • •

"Now, lissen, dear, stop in and order the bananas and never mind the sarcasm."

"Okay, my darling. If you are determined to become a banana addict it's your own affair. I have only one request to make."

"What is it?"

"Don't drop the skins on the floor, and keep a few oranges around the house for my morning orange juice."

YOU KNOW THE FEELING.

You may sing of the thrill of the tuna
As he leaps over waves in the sea,
But I wish he'd succumbed somewhat soona—

Danville Engineer Escapes Freezing Death in Ice Vat

Danville, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—While the night watchman slumbered, S. M. Fitzgerald, engineer at the ice plant here, faced death in a freezing brine vat for two hours last night and today was alive to tell his story.

Fitzgerald slipped and fell into the vat while on duty. He clamored for aid as the water rose gradually until it was chest high. He can't swim, and his efforts to escape were about as successful as those of the storybook jumping frog.

"Murder," screamed Fitzgerald. "Police—murder!"

His cries awakened Chief of Police Martin, who lives a block away. Police cars concentrated on the spot and drew Fitzgerald from the vat with the aid of ladders. The vat is in the basement, and into it cans of water are lowered for freezing.

Security Rise Aids Building of Church

New St. Luke's Edifice to Cost $125,000.

Norfolk, Va., April 20 (Spl.). Rise in the value of market securities is responsible for the decision of St. Luke's Episcopal Church vestry members to build a new edifice at Shirley and Colonial avenues here, according to a statement today by the Rev. Taylor Willis, rector. Mr. Willis, who heads the building committee, said last night at a congregation meeting that the cost of the building, including organ and furnishings, would be about $125,000.

Panhandle Youth Open Conference

2 West Virginia Counties Send Delegates.

Camp Frame, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.). — The Eastern Panhandle Youth Conference opened here today for boys and girls from Jefferson and Berkeley Counties.

The conference is sponsored by the West Virginia county agent's office. County Agent B. Heath Holden, Charles Town, and Assistant Agent Neil Bolton, of Martinsburg, are in charge.

A. O. Frick Dies.

Farmers Plan Milk Protests

Firms Fail to Pay Code Prices, Maryland Dairymen Say.

Hagerstown, Md., April 20 (Spl.). Unless companies buying milk from several hundred Washington County producers for shipment to Philadelphia meet the new price schedule announced by the Pennsylvania Milk Control Board, spokesmen for the farmers announced today that they would complain to the board.

No indication has been given by companies buying milk here that they would comply with the code.

The minimum retail price for grade B milk has been fixed at 11 cents a quart. The board has provided for payment to producers at the rate of $2.60 per hundred for 3.5 per cent milk, minus hauling charges not to exceed 30 cents a hundred.

The control board also has fixed four milk classifications, replacing the basic surplus plan, always objectionable to the farmers. The order also includes a production control.

Rail Official Says New Taxes Meant To Scatter Riches

Norfolk, Va., April 20 (Spl.). Col. W. S. Battle, president of the Norfolk & Western Railroad, declared here last night that "millionaires are becoming as scarce as buffaloes."

Col. Battle referred to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson as the "high muckety-muck of this new coding thing." He said a redistribution of wealth is being planned by taxation, and this will do away with most of the millionaires.

He urged business men to obey the code or "Gen. Johnson would crack down on them."

"He is said to be a hard cracker," he stated.

Dr. Whitehead Given Baltimore Medallion

Baltimore, April 20 (Spl.).—Award of the Baltimore Advertising Club's medallion to Dr. John B. Whitehead of the Johns Hopkins University School of Engineering, as the outstanding man of science in Baltimore during 1933, was announced today.

The club also awarded a medallion to Joseph L. Wheeler, librarian of the Enoch Pratt Free Library, for being the outstanding man in literature.

Boy, 3, Killed by Truck As He Trails Mother

Franklin, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.). Wayne Simmons, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Simmons, of Riverton, near here, was killed today by a truck driven by Wilbur Harper, of Macksville.

The boy's mother had just crossed the road and signaled him to wait until the truck passed. State police held the death unavoidable.

Auto Insurance Let By Virginia Board

Richmond, Va., April 20 (AP). The State Highway Commission announced today it had awarded the contract for liability and property damage insurance on its 1,125 automobiles to the Lumberman's Mutual Insurance Co.

There were more than 40 bids for this insurance.

JAMES M. LANDIS, Federal Trade Commissioner. Born 34 years ago in Tokyo, Japan. Princeton, A. B., 1921. Served overseas with British Y. M. C. A. during World War. Graduate, Harvard Law School, 1924. Secretary to Justice Brandeis, 1924-1925. Lecturer and professor, Harvard Law School, 1926-1928. Collaborated with Felix Frankfurter on "The Business of the Supreme Court;" with Samuel Williston, on "Commercial Law" and "Negotiable Instruments." Appointed to Federal Trade Commission by President Roosevelt, 1933. Wrote line by line in consultation with Sam Reyburn, of Texas, the Securities Act, which put securities-selling racket on spot. Son of Presbyterian minister, is called "secular arm of Roosevelt's financial inquisition." Wiry, blond, benign but keen. Not a doctrinaire. Widely regarded. Well liked.

Another Letter From a Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

My dear Louise:

I will stand by you in all adversity and forgive any other offense or folly, but I faithfully promise to disown you if ever you get the swell-head.

To feel important is the unpardonable sin.

In this so-called land of equality there is no equality in fact, but each man feels equal to his neighbor and hotly resents any assumption of superiority.

That feeling is logical enough. Since there is no accepted standard by which to judge people, they can be judged only by comparison with one another.

Importance is relative. One thing is big only because others are relatively small. One person is important only by comparison with others who are less important. And thus the one who acts superior is saying in effect: "You other people are small fry who don't amount to much."

You would say that a citizen of a free country has a right to act and feel as he pleases, but he can't do it in this instance because there is no way to feel superior without insulting the inferior ones used for comparison.

Examine it carefully and you will find the swell-head of a celebrity one of the silliest of all human stupidities.

He isn't conceited because of his achievements, but because of the public's praise. He feels important because people cheer him and step on one another in the effort to get near him.

In other words, he feels superior to the people whose good opinion is the only thing that makes him important.

It is much as though you should say to a girl friend: "I value your judgment and covet your good opinion. And since you think well of me, that means I am more important than you."

Whatever good fortune befalls you, don't let it go to your head. It will mean the end of all true friendship, for nobody can forgive the assertion that he isn't equal to you.

Love, DAD.

Father Identifies Dead Texas Bandit

Robber Slain at El Paso Clarksburg Fugitive.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Having identified a bandit slain in El Paso, Tex., last night as his son, J. E. Rebrook, of this city, today arranged to have the body returned here.

The victim, Frank Rebrook, 28, had assumed the name of Frank Crawford, of Clarksburg, and this name and address was found on the body when he was slain by police after a clothing store holdup in which four customers were wounded.

Frank Rebrook was wanted here for questioning, in Parkersburg for three armed robberies, and at Zanesville, Ohio, for car theft, local police said. In order to confirm identification, El Paso police today asked Michigan penitentiary authorities for fingerprints, after hearing Rebrook had served a five-year term there for robbery.

Grafton Presbyterian Women Pick Officers

Buckhannon, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Mrs. J. W. Wilson, of Weston, was elected president of the Women's Missionary Society of the Grafton Presbytery at its thirtieth convention today.

Other officers chosen include Mrs. W. S. Mayers and Mrs. F. W. Christie, of Fairmont, and Mrs. H. O. Van Tromp, of French Creek, vice presidents; Mrs. L. H. Randall, of Fairmont, recording secretary; Mrs. E. J. Imlay, of Weston, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Andrew C. Wilson, of Morgantown, treasurer.

Physician Sentenced For Drug Violations

Charleston, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.).—A sentence of three years in the Federal Reformatory at Lee Hall, Va., was imposed today in Federal District Court here by Judge George C. McClintic on Dr. W. F. Porter, 76, a Charleston physician, on his plea of guilty of violating the narcotics law.

Rector Vandale, 72, operator of a printing shop here, and Bernard Rogers, also of Charleston, pleaded guilty to charges of counterfeiting internal revenue stamps for liquor. Judge McClintic delayed their sentences.

State Body Trims Water Rate Raise

Parkersburg Urged to Drop Costly Free List.

Charleston, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.).—The State public service commission today approved an increase of approximately 18 per cent in Parkersburg water rates with the opinion this would suffice if a free list is discontinued.

The city had petitioned for an increase of approximately 33 per cent, contending it was losing money under existing rates. Opposition to such an increase was lodged by various civil bodies and groups of consumers.

Testimony was presented that a number of charitable institutions and the city building were supplied with water free of charge.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Charles Wolfe's Single Poem.

A few days ago we discussed in this column "Single Speech Hamilton" and the poem on Bunker Hill written by Grenville Mellen, his only claim to fame. Thinking on this has made me consider other unique performances, and while talking on this subject with the Governor of Connecticut, Wilbur Cross, and with Francis Parsons, the Governor mentioned the famous poem "The Burial of Sir John Moore," so much more famous than the man who wrote it. Indeed we could not remember accurately his full name.

The author of this magnificent farewell was an Irishman, the Rev. Charles Wolfe. He was born in Dublin, December 14, 1791, and died of consumption at Cork, February 21, 1823, only 31 years old. Gen Sir John Moore was commander of the English forces in the Peninsular campaign, and was mortally wounded at the battle of Coruna, in Spain, in 1809. He was buried at midnight in the citadel. For some reason the lonely burial of this gallant officer inspired Wolfe. He wrote his poem, a friend learned it by heart, recited it to a companion he happened to meet while travelling, and the latter printed it in an Irish newspaper, the Newry Telegraph, signed with the initials C. W. This happened in 1817. It was copied in the English newspapers, became immediately popular, and when Byron was called its author, he said he wished he had written it, and was very fond of quoting it to his friends.

Wolfe wrote other poems, but they are unimportant. Inspiration visited him only once. The noble, solemn, adagio rhythm, with the sonorous language, and the immortal last line, have given the poem a permanent place in martial elegies.

The Burial of Sir John Moore.

I.

Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note,
As his corse to the rampart we hurried;
Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot
O'er the grave where our hero we buried.

II.

We buried him darkly at dead of night,
The sods with our bayonets turning;
By the struggling moonbeam's misty light,
And the lantern dimly burning.

III.

No useless coffin enclosed his breast,
Not in sheet or in shroud we wound him,
But he lay like a warrior taking his rest,

IV.

Few and short were the prayers we said,
And we spoke not a word of sorrow;
But we steadfastly gazed on the face that was dead,
And we bitterly thought of the morrow.

V.

We thought, as we hollow'd his narrow bed,
And smooth'd down his lonely pillow,
That the foe and the stranger would tread o'er his head,
And we far away on the billow!

VI.

Lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone,
And o'er his cold ashes upbraid him;
But little he'll reck, if they let him sleep on
In the grave where a Briton has laid him.

VII.

But half of our heavy task was done
When the clock struck the hour for retiring,
And we heard the distant and random gun
That the foe was sullenly firing.

VIII.

Slowly and sadly we laid him down
From the field of his fame fresh and gory;
We carved not a line, and we raised not a stone—
But we left him alone with his glory!

Lutheran Property Dispute Is Settled

Three Churches Agree to Sale of Interests.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 20 (Spl.). The final chapter in the controversy among three Shenandoah County Lutheran congregations over the disposition of joint property was written in circuit court at Woodstock yesterday when Judge Philip Williams entered a decree confirming sale of the property.

St. Martin's and St. Mark's, two rural churches, held a joint interest with St. Matthew's in the parsonage at New Market. When St. Matthew's consolidated with Emanuel Church, New Market, the two rural churches refused to agree to a transfer of the property.

When personal property was offered for sale at the parsonage, St. Martin's and St. Mark's obtained an injunction to halt it. All matters finally were compromised at a meeting of the congregation.

Burglar Escapes, Leaving His Auto

Baltimore, April 20 (Spl.).—Firing as he ran, a burglar early today engaged in a pistol duel with two proprietors of an inn in Carroll County, on the Westminster pike. The man escaped on foot, leaving an automobile.

Paul Reed, one of the inn owners, said he was awakened by an automatic burglar alarm. He called his brother-in-law, Jonas Kibler, and they armed themselves and started a search. The intruder suddenly ran, firing. His automobile bore Delaware license tags.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

NOT everything which turns up on this patient desk can be classified as a reviewable book. For example, pamphlets of amateur verse come in; I stare at them awhile, at their repetitions, rhymes and at their phrases which were bright and shining around the year of the Armada, and then I bog down completely.

The publishers of Esquire very kindly keep me supplied with a fresh copy each month. I look at all the pretty pictures, but I can't seem to pull myself together enough to read it. Also, I appear to be on the list for Clara E. Laughlin's "So You're Going" News, and for the St. Nicholas Magazine. As an old gold and silver medalist of the latter, along with Anne Parrish, James Montgomery Flagg, Sigmund Spaeth and some 150,000 others, I am proud to report that the St. Nicholas League is still going strong.

For some deep reason, which I must look into before long, the Smithsonian Institution never allows me to miss an issue of its series of pamphlets entitled generally—"Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections." They are very clearly printed and often have pictures, which I gaze on with some awe.

But as yet I have only the foggiest notion what they're about. What would you make of a title like this?—"New Polychaetous Annelids." Or this?—"Tertiary Larger Foraminifera of Venezuela." My favorite, however, is still the rather more specific "Morphology of the Insect Abdomen."

But the very pleasantest of the odd items to turn up recently is a large and luscious auction catalogue from the Anderson Galleries in New York. It seems there is to be a public sale, on May 2 and 3, of the library of the late Rev. Dr. Roderick Terry, of Newport, R. I. What this retired minister, Dutch Reformed, had gathered on his shelves stood as one of the most remarkable private collections in the country.

The catalogue does it elegant justice. There's a colored frontispiece of an illuminated fifteenth century manuscript to gaze on with delight. There are scores of full page reproductions of title-pages and autograph letters. And the treasures to be sold would set a bibliophile wild. Let me jot down a few.

An unpublished acrostic poem by Lewis Carroll, written to a little girl two weeks after "The Hunting of the Snark" appeared:

Empress of a Bellman's band.

Patiently the chase she led,
Running over Tufnell Park—
All because a book she read,
That was running in her head;
T'was 'The Hunting of the Snark!'"

Kent County Relief Work to End Soon

Material Worth Thousands of Dollars Wasted.

Chestertown, Md., April 20 (Spl.). Thousands of dollars worth of material bought for relief projects in Kent County will be wasted and work on several important projects will be stopped April 20 when relief cases will be discontinued, according to Mrs. Thomas Massey, director of the Kent County Relief Welfare Board, after a conference with Harry Greenstein, State Relief Administration.

Work on the Rock Hall water works, weather stripping and roofing of all Kent County schools, street work and other projects will be abruptly stopped, it is said. Dire cases of distress will be handled as in former years by the Welfare Board.

Relief work reached its peak here in February, when $11,000 was spent. It was reduced in March as VWA workers were dropped gradually from the rolls and still further this month when the CWA work was abandoned in favor of work relief.

Bus Franchise Charges Will Be Heard Today

Baltimore, April 20 (Spl.). Charges by the Cumberland Motor Express Co., of Cumberland, Md., that the Maryland Transportation Co. is infringing on its franchise to operate a truck line between Baltimore and Hagerstown, will be heard by the Maryland Public Service Commission May 3.

At a hearing yesterday the commission denied the application of the Maryland Transportation Co. for a permit to run a bus line between Baltimore and Hagerstown.

Frederick Girl Named As 4-H Club Delegate

Frederick, Md., April 20 (Spl.). Miss Charlotte Quinn, member of the Frederick County Federation of 4-H Girls' Clubs, has been selected as one of the two girls to represent Maryland at the National 4-H camp in Washington, June 14 to 20.

Miss Elizabeth Sier, Howard County, will be the other representative. Miss Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard U. Quinn, has been a club girl since 1928. Two boys also will be selected.

Stafford School Unit Votes Rules

Falmouth, Va., April 20 (Spl.). New constitution and by-laws were adopted and a nominating committee chosen at the semiannual meeting of the Stafford County Federation of Educational Leagues in the Falmouth High School auditorium.

Nominating committee members are A. N. Truslow, Enon; F. H. Blackburn, Stafford Courthouse, and Webb Midyville, Little Falls. The committee will meet to nominate federation officers a month before the annual meeting, scheduled for the first Monday of next November.

Present officers of the federation are Mrs. E. T. Stoner, Garrisonville, president; H. S. Johnson, Leeland, vice president; Prof. William B. Bolton, Falmouth, secretary, and A. N. Truslow, Enon, treasurer.

Roanoke, Va., April 20 (Spl.). Local veterans' organizations are sponsoring a Memorial Day to include a parade, followed by a public service, at the city auditorium.

Boston Rector To Be Epiphany Pulpit Speaker

Rev. Phillips E. Osgood Will Preach; Altar Dedication Set.

The Rev. Phillips E. Osgood, rector of Emmanuel Church, Boston, will preach at the Church of the Epiphany at services at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Dr. Osgood succeeded Bishop Freeman as rector of St. Mark's Church, Minneapolis, when the latter, then Dr. Freeman, came to Washington to become rector of Epiphany.

There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 a. m. The Epiphany Church School will assemble at 9:30 a. m. for the dedication by Dr. Z. B. Phillips, rector, of a small altar and cross recently given the school for use in connection with its morning devotions.

The evensong service at 8 p. m. will be arranged especially for the Guild of St. Barnabas for Nurses, with headquarters in New York, in connection with the biennial convention of the American Nurses Association, the National League of Nursing Education and the National Organization for Public Health Nursing, to be held in Washington, opening tomorrow and continuing through Friday. Preceding this convention, the Guild of St. Barnabas will hold its annual council, its program including the service at Epiphany tomorrow evening, at which Bishop Freeman will preach.

The main body of Epiphany at evensong must necessarily be reserved for the visiting nurses and those connected with the local hospitals. The public is cordially invited to attend, and will be seated up to the capacity of the church. Preceding this service there will be a half-hour recital on the McKim Memorial Chimes of some of the oldest and best known Gospel hymns dear to the congregations of various Christian communions.

Service for Eastern Star At First Congregational.

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, will preach tomorrow morning on "Pugnacity." He will also preach at the evening service, at which there will be a special Masonic and Eastern Star program under auspices of the Church and the Friendly Forum. The choir, directed by Ruby Smith Stahl, will sing both morning and evening. Paul DeLong Gable will be at the organ.

Third Address Set Monday For Order of the Portal.

Mrs. Aleta B. Baker, founder and head of the Order of the Portal, will give the third informal talk on law consciousness at the headquarters of the Washington Lodge, 4828 Sixteenth street northwest, at 8:15 p. m. Monday. Following Mrs. Baker's talk the first lecture of the first grade will be read by Miss Rebecca Dial.

"Ruth the Romantic" Topic For Dr. Albert J. McCartney.

"Ruth the Romantic," the second in a series of sermons under the general theme of "Forgotten Men and Women of the Bible," will be delivered tomorrow morning by Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. The Men's Bible Class will be addressed at 9:45 a. m. by Dr. Larkin W. Glazebrook, physician-evangelist, on "The Great Need in the Church Today."

Organizations of the church will submit their annual reports at a meeting at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Lecture on Holy Land At Metropolitan Church.

Dr. George S. Duncan, professor of Oriental literature in the American University Graduate School, will deliver an illustrated lecture on "Ancient and Modern Palestine" at the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church tomorrow evening.

At St. Andrew's Episcopal Church tomorrow at 11 a. m., the service for admission and rededication for the Daughters of the King will be used for the St. Andrew's Branch. The rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder, will officiate and preach. He will also address the children at 9:30 a. m.

There will be Holy Communion at 8 a. m. and the Young People's Fellowship will meet at 7:30 p. m.

National City Christian Presents Ecclesia Choir.

"Troubled Waters and Healing Power" is the subject Dr. Raphael H. Miller, minister of the National City Christian Church, announces for his sermon tomorrow morning. At night he will speak on "Making a Success of the Past."

The Southern California Roth Ecclesia Choir, directed by Elton Menno Roth, will be heard in concert at the church at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow. This choir was organized in 1930 with artists from church choirs and other choral organizations of Los Angeles and nearby cities. The singers wear golden robes of the early Roman era.

Charles Wells to Lecture At First Baptist Church.

Continuing his series of sermons on "Revelation and Reality," Dr. Rufus W. Weaver will speak at the First Baptist Church tomorrow morning on "The Cleansing Through the Blood of Christ." In the evening Charles A. Wells, of New York, author, artist and traveler, recently returned from an extended trip through Russia and the Orient, will give an illustrated lecture on "The Urgency of the Gospel in a World of Revolt," drawing large pastel cartoons as he speaks. He will analyze particularly the "enormous laboratory experiment" which Russia is making. The Swedish Mission will meet at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow, Dr. K. E. Carlson preaching.

The opening session will be addressed by the Rev. J. Luther Frantz, pastor of St. Mark's Church.

Faith Rises Above Money

Ellis Views Changes in the Social Order Since Russian Revolution as Tending Toward Christ's Ideal of Wealth in Spirit and Not in Property.

By William T. Ellis.

After spending six months in Russia during the revolution, and the rise and triumph of the bolsheviks, I went on the lecture platform with the message "The Big Thing That Has Happened in the World." I had seen the most powerful and arrogant aristocracy in history completely overthrown, although the dazed aristocrats themselves were still crying "Impossible!" I did not then, nor do I now, approve of bolshevism. My theme was that a new world order had begun, wherein the masses could take control of society whenever they pleased.

But nobody paid any particular attention to that lecture. The prevalent belief was that nothing could change the old order of things, wherein wealth and privilege dominated civilization. In those lush postwar days, with everybody making money rapidly, I was a voice crying in a wilderness of easy dollars. My citations of the New Testament teachings were as futile as my appeal to the facts of Europe.

Now everybody knows what is the big thing that has happened in the world. The mood of Russia has swept over Europe and Asia, and is newly powerful in America. We are readier today to sit at the feet of Jesus and hear what He has to say about wealth. We all want to know if there is not some Christian alternative to Communism or Fascism (and Fascism is but an inverted form of Communism). Is not Constitutional democracy still practicable, if animated by the Christian spirit?

Wealth Handicaps the Rich.

With a penetration which we are only nowadays beginning fully to understand, Jesus saw the weakness of wealth, and its ofttimes wickedness. He understood that mere things are no satisfactory reward of life. To Him it was clear that possessions usually possess their possessor. So difficult is it for a man to escape their thraldom, and their temptations, that He made the assertion that only a miracle of God, to Whom all things are possible, would enable a rich man to enter the kingdom of Heaven. Money is a heavy handicap in the race for eternal life.

Mind you, Jesus was no demagogue, or class-conscious proletarian. He was criticized by His contemporaries for consorting with all sorts of folks, the wealthy as well as the outcast. He was too wise to assign all the merit to one group, and all the demerit to another. Of the rich young man in our lesson story it is recorded that Jesus, seeing him, loved him. One of His own 12 disciples, Matthew, the author of the book we are studying, was apparently a man of property.

Nevertheless, the Master saw that "It is easier for a camel (the Aramaic version has 'rope') to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." For the rich man has become habituated to dependence upon the power of money; whereas only spiritual qualities inherit heaven. Mere possessions are not adequate to see a man through the supreme experiences. Pity the poor rich whose only resource is riches.

An Offer of Paradise.

After the Russian debacle, myriads of Russian aristocrats had to resort to the most menial tasks to escape starvation, and most of them were unfitted for even the simplest work. A British representative in Sofia said to me, "My errand boy used to be governor of a province in Siberia. If he was no better as a governor than he is as an errand boy, I pity the people." Not wealth, but personal qualities, of mind and will and spirit, are the ultimate dependence of a life.

Famous in art and literature is this young man who came running to Jesus for counsel. He had great wealth, and social position, and religious standing as a synagogue ruler. Also he had gleams of that "divine discontent" which made him seek life's higher rewards. He was a moral, commandment-keeping Jew, but he suffered the serious handicap of riches. The real touchstone of his character was his money.

Not merely because He wanted the young man's money for the poor, but more because He wanted the young man himself, Jesus bade him sell all he had and give it to the needy in exchange for which he would have treasure in heaven. That is to say, "Remove the barrier that stands between you and the fulfillment of your noblest desire. You can't have perfection so long as you desire anything else more than perfection. In the kingdom of heaven there is no room for divided allegiance. God will not be king at all unless He can be king over all."

Vision Without Courage.

"But when the young man heard the saying, he went away sorrowful; for he was one that had great possessions." Many have wondered about his future. The glamour of his gold had been removed by Jesus. His discontent with his possessions must have increased. He was an early instance of our problem man, the one who has seen the higher life and has not the courage to pursue it.

Even the disciples were set by the ears at the words of Jesus. "They were astonished exceedingly," Matthew reports. Here was something new and sensational and revolutionary. If the moral rich were not to be saved, who then could be? The Teacher's ominous reply was, "With God, all things are possible." Not the vilest sinner only, but also the wealthy aristocrat must pin his hope of heaven solely upon the unmerited mercy of God.

Wealth is no criterion of worth. The public has of late been scanning the lists of high-salaried business executives and bankers, and the general conclusion is that they are grossly overpaid. Many a disdainful snort has come from acquaintances, who know the personal caliber of the recipients of these large sums. And commonly, these men have been contrasted with others who are great servants of their generation, but hideously underpaid. A comparison between corporation men and their salaries and, say, editors, teachers and preachers, makes clear that the money test is no true test. In the large, this is true of society as a whole. We must find a better norm of value than wealth. The world must go off this ancient gold standard.

Looking at this lesson, as we must, in its larger relationships, what do we find that it suggests concerning society as a whole? First, the dethronement of the money motive as master. Experience has proved that the welfare of the whole mass of society has not been best served by the financial rewards of a few. The distribution of compensation is disproportionate to a ghastly degree. The well-being of the whole social body has not been fairly served. A few exceedingly rich—and they seldom are the most meritorious personally—and multitudes of really deserving persons in misery, is not a state of things to be accepted permanently.

The answer? Certainly not Communism. Jesus gives it—the kingdom. When the great goal of life is the establishment among men of the kingdom of God, with the rich rewards shared by all, spiritual values will take first place. The will of God and the welfare of man will then be paramount; and the only rich will be those who are "rich toward God."

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

All Aboard for the Mountains!

It wasn't long after they got into the woods before it got dark, but a donkey can see as well at night as he can in the day, but Jocko couldn't see so well, and since Hee-Haw didn't know which way to go Jocko must guide him, and he was getting mixed up in some bushes. "Wait a minute," said Dr. Coon. "I hit something with my foot that feels like a lantern. I reckon Mr. Man bought it in town so he could see how to skin Blackie Bear tomorrow night."

"I have always heard that it's catching before skinning," said Blackie, "and if Mr. Man hasn't any use for the lantern except to see how to skin Blackie, I guess it's just as well that he hasn't got it. Blackie has to get dead before he gets skinned and he doesn't feel a bit dead tonight. Light that lantern, Doctor, and let's move along." Dr. Coon found some matches right beside of the lantern, and so he lit it and hung it up to the top of the wagon over Jocko's head, and then they didn't have any trouble in getting through the woods to Blackie's house. They packed up all the meat and apples and things that they had been getting for several days and took along plenty of things to cook in.

By the time they got everything packed in the wagon, the moon had come up, and it was a mighty pretty night for traveling. Blackie said they wouldn't stop to fix supper, as creek at a place where the water wan't deep they came into the old mountain trail on which nobody lived, and then they didn't care how much noise they made. They all felt mighty good and Blackie sang his "woof" song for them. Then Doctor Coon said "All of you keep quiet for a minute—I've got a good song." And then he sang:

"There was a man in our woods
Who wasn't wondrous wise;
Each day, right after dinner, he'd
Lie down and close his eyes;
He did this once too many times,
And"—

"Oh, hush, Doctor Coon," said Billie Possum. "I believe I heard Rover Dog. Listen!" Jocko stopped Hee-Haw, and they all held their breath and listened. In a minute they head the noise again, but it wasn't Rover Dog at all. It was Bully Frog out in the creek singing "Jug-o-rum, Jug-o-rum, Jug-o-rum." Then they all had a good laugh at themselves for being afraid of Rover Dog, when they had both of Mr. Man's guns in the wagon.

By this time, they were all getting pretty hungry, and decided to stop under a great big tree and have a good supper. So they cooked the red rooster that they got at Mr. Man's house, and made some biscuits from the bag of flour that Mrs. Man was waiting for. It was a good supper, but Blackie could hardly eat for laughing every time he thought of the way Mr. Man beat his fist down on that shelf and said he was going to clean out Blackie Bear and his crowd. "It looks like Blackie Bear and his crowd have about cleaned Mr. Man out, doesn't it Billie?" asked Blackie. But Billie Possum was so busy gnawing a drumstick that he couldn't take time to say "yes," so he just nodded his head and grinned. When they got through supper, Blackie said: "Well, Folks, we have got a long journey in front of us for tomorrow, so we had better get to bed." So they threw some water on the fire and then they all climbed into the wagon, and were soon fast asleep.

he would feel a little safer when they got across the creek and on the mountain trail. Then everybody climbed back into the wagon, Jocko said "get up" to Hee-Haw just as Mr. Man always did, and off they went for the road that led to the mountains and to Blackie's old home.

After they got away up past the old goat house and had crossed the

Church Herb Sale Unlocks Quaint Store

Benefit for All Hallows Guild to Continue Through Season.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The sale opens today and will continue throughout the entire season. For the first ten days, ending April 30, the garden will be open every week-day from 9:30 to 6 o'clock.

Visitors in Washington for the Cherry Blossom Fete and for the historic garden week in Virginia and Washington's own gardeners will have an unusual opportunity during the sale to glimpse the garden which contains rare boxwood, yew trees, hollies, cedars of Lebanon and ancient stone carvings of the ninth, twelfth and fifteenth centuries.

800-Year-Old Masonry.

Young potted herbs will be put on sale near the 800-year-old Norman arch entrance to the garden. A small ivy-covered structure, one portion of which was once a storeroom with countless shelves, is now transformed into a quaint little herb room, full of the fragrance of drying rosemary and other herbs hung from the low ceiling and with unusual offerings for flavoring and fragrance in attractive containers; imported dried herbs, marjoram, savory, thyme, tarragon and sachets for linen from lavender harvested in England.

There are even choice jellies in miniature containers, delicately flavored with lemon verbena, sweet-leafed geraniums, lavender and rose petals. For the fireside there are bundles of rosemary fagots to be burned for their fragrance.

Modest, aromatic, responsive to a touch, herbs can contribute in many ways. Forgotten for a time, they now are more than remembered. They are sought after, rediscovered, replanted and newly enjoyed, even though one may have no more than a sunny window sill or just a corner in a garden.

Lavender and Rue.

In the herb garden proper, at the doorstep of this Devonshire type of cottage, inclosed by low stone walls, moss-covered, with many of the smaller herbs growing between the stones, the plants themselves are to be found. Ambrosia, balm, basil, lovage, germander, rue, the mints, the thymes, lavender, marjoram and dozens of others. A delightful feature of this little garden is the unique stile, crudely cut by hand from a solid block of stone 150 years ago, which now gives access over a low wall from one portion of the garden to the other.

Another point of interest is the little shingled shelter for two ancient beehives, which seems rightly to belong here in this fragrant place. It is not wholly a green garden, as many of the herbs have lovely flowers and the attractive colors of English garden-smocks will add greatly to the picture.

The sale is for the benefit of the work of All-Hallows Guild, the garden guild of the National Cathedral. Mrs. John H. Gibbons is president of the guild and Mrs. G. C. F. Bratenahl is chairman of the garden committee. A large group of prominent members of the guild are assisting, in addition to members of the junior committee, of which Mrs. Sidney Kent Legare is chairman, and others, including Miss Gertrude Faust, Miss Alice Grahame, Miss Anne Carter Greene, Miss Lida McKnight, Miss Elizabeth Nolting, Miss Elizabeth Roberts, Mrs. Lawrence N. C. Smith, Miss Olivia Stokes, Miss Caroline Huston Thompson and Miss Rosamond Wright.

Cherry Blossom Ball Tonight To Gleam With Official Pomp

A notable group, including Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, will witness the cherry blossom ball and reception at the Mayflower Hotel tonight, the final event on the three-day festival program. The ball and reception will be the only festival event which Mrs. Roosevelt has been able to attend.

The reception will begin at 10 p. m., to be followed by the entrance of the queen of the cherry blossom festival, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, and her ladies-in-waiting. After forming a figure with White House aids as partners, the queen and her court will be escorted to their box and the dancing will begin. The Marine Band will play for the figure.

Among the boxholders is the Ambassador of Poland, Mr. Stanislaw Patek, who will have as his guests members of the embassy staff. The Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Fernando Gonzalez Roa, will entertain a party of six in his box. They are the Counselor of the Spanish Embassy, Don Luis M. de Irujo, and Senora de Irujo, Senorita Carmen Aspe, sister of Senora de Irujo; Senorita Dolores Chico Alatorre and Senorita Sara Amalia Chico Alatorre, nieces of the Ambassador; Senorita Carmen Rocha and Senorita Lupe Rodriguez.

The Japanese Ambassador, Hirosi Saito, and Mme. Saito will have 20 guests, including members of the Embassy staff and guests from New York, in their box at the ball. The box reserved by the Minister of Venezuela, Dr. Pedro Manuel Arcaya, will be occupied by Mariono Arcaya, son of the minister, who will entertain a group of his young friends. The Attache of the Legation of Venezuela, Senor Claudio Urrutia, and Senora Urrutia also will be present with a party of friends.

Other members of the Diplomatic Corps who have reserved boxes are the Charge d'Affaires of the Egyptian Legation, Nicholas Khalil Bey; the Commercial Attache of the Brazilian Legation, Mr. Paulo G. Hassloche, and the First Secretary of the Legation of Honduras, Dr. Don Julian R. Caceres, and Senora Caceres.

Among the prominent out-of-town guests who have reserved boxes are Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, who will have as guests Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Palmer and Gen. and Mrs. Frederick Coleman. Among the other box holders will be the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Roper, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt, parents of the queen; Mrs. John R. Here's a New One; Ice Cream Comes in Cans Poured Into an Ice Tray, It Comes Out Smooth and Creamy.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

CANNED ICE cream! That's a new one, isn't it? But it's delicious, and not a bit of trouble to prepare.

Have you an automatic refrigerator? Then you must have tried to fix frozen desserts and found how difficult it is to keep them from becoming flaky. This canned ice cream, however, is different. It's just as smooth and creamy when it's taken from the tray as when it's poured from the can.

A few cans kept on the pantry shelf are godsends. As long as they're around you're prepared at any time for an emergency dessert.

It's the simplest thing in the world to prepare. The contents of one can should be mixed with an equal amount of milk. Whip up one-half pint of chilled heavy cream. Blend these together and pour into refrigerator tray. In two or three hours it is ready to serve. It comes in vanilla, chocolate, coffee, strawberry, orange-pineapple and pudding flavors.

It's possible to make a brick by freezing a layer of one flavor, then pouring on another kind and freezing the two together. This is the striped kind of brick, but if it is stirred after it has begun to harden you can make the streaked or paisley variety.

By using your ingenuity it's possible to make a variety of interesting desserts with canned ice cream. It sells two cans for 25 cents. One will serve six people.

* * * *

Sounds Quite Gummy.

Sponge cake rolled around marshmallow filling and coated thickly with chocolate icing is only one of the delicacies at a local pastry shop to-day.

These sell for 30 cents and they're ample enough to serve six people. Whether they're put on the table in slices or in one large roll they make an attractive dessert. But their merits go even further. Each cake is as good to eat as it is to look at.

* * * *

New Departure.

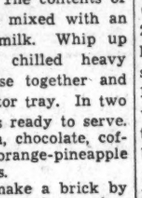
A company widely known for its splendid deodorant products has manufactured this light vest pocket compact especially to please the men.



The powder inside is for use on perspiration centers. Men who ruin their hat bands by profuse forehead perspiration have only to powder their faces to prevent the catastrophe. When noses shine from oil and perspiration one pat of the puff will remedy the situation.

And ladies . . . these compacts are nice to keep in one's desk drawer to insure personal daintiness at all times.

* * * *

Double-Role Server.

An attractive cheese and cracker server is the aluminum and wooden tray in a Conecticut avenue shop.

A small indenture in the center of the tray holds an oblong wooden slab on which the cheese may be sliced without dulling the knife and scarring the tray. The tray can be used for other purposes by removing the wooden piece.

* * * *

Done With Mirrors.

An all-mirror box was designed to hold the standard size cleansing tissues. They may be put in the original package and pulled out individually just as they would be in the regular box.

This type of box is a nice accessory to a dentist's or doctor's office. And for women who like their dressing tables to reflect loveliness, they're ideal.

If you're looking for an original and inexpensive gift, don't pass these by.

* * * *

Come Seven, Eleven.

Here are some large dice that aren't to be played with. And aren't to be blacklisted because they're loaded.

This Is Too Good.

Imagine getting 20 cakes of soap for 49 cents! And not just soap, but cold cream soap in delicate pastel colors.

Spring and summer usually bring an influx of guests. And guests mean dainty little towels and nice soap. Why wait until they've already arrived to attend to such necessities? They'll be twice as high then.

Rhubarb a Good Mixer In Variety of Desserts

By Ann Barrett

NOW IS THE TIME when rhubarb gets mixed up in those spring fruit desserts that everybody likes. In flaky-crusted pies and turnovers, tasty jams and deep puddings that Marie Dressler not only serves, but makes expertly herself.

Rhubarb and strawberry jam, which make a delicious filling for the turnovers pictured. This requires 1½ pounds unpeeled rhubarb (trimmed and cut in 1-inch pieces); 1½ pounds strawberries (after washing and hulling), and 2½ pounds sugar. Into a heavy kettle put a layer each of rhubarb, strawberries and sugar (using about 1-3 the total amount). Crush this with a potato masher. Next add two more layers of fruit and sugar, but don't crush them. Then cook mixture slowly till thick (about 1½ hours), stirring frequently. Pour into hot sterilized glasses and seal. Makes 12 glasses.

Rhubarb Turnovers.

To use in turnovers, first make plain pie paste and roll ⅛-inch thick. Then cut into 5-inch squares. Toward one corner of each square put 2 tablespoons jam. Then moisten edges of square with water, fold diagonally over jam, press edges together and place on buttered baking sheet. Brush with unbeaten egg-white and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake in hot oven (450) about 10 minutes. Then reduce heat to 350 and bake about 10 minutes more.

Rhubarb Betty.

First pour boiling water over three cups of unpeeled rhubarb (cut in 1-inch pieces) and let stand five minutes. Then drain and mix with 1¾ cups brown sugar and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Next mix three cups coarse, soft bread crumbs with 2-3 cups butter (melted). Then butter a baking dish and put into it alternate layers of fruit, sugar and crumbs, ending with crumbs on top. Bake in a moderate oven (about 350 F.) about 40 minutes.

Send for Maple Desserts.

Another timely dessert subject right now is the way maple syrup and sugar gives that come-again taste to cakes, pies, puddings, mousse, frostings, ice cream sauces, candies and other good things. This whole sweet story is told in my newest recipe bulletin "20 Favorite Maple Desserts." To get this bulletin promptly, please be sure to inclose a self-addressed envelope with 6 cents in loose stamps and coupon below.

Congressman's Wife Gets Literary Fame

Mrs. Ford's Novel Sells to Movies.

One of the latest to receive professional distinction is Mrs. Thomas F. Ford, wife of Representative Ford, of California, who was recently informed by her New York agent her novel, "The Corcorans"—written in collaboration with Mark Lee Luther and published three years ago—had recently been sold to a motion-picture company.

Literary laurels are not new to Mrs. Ford. Soon after she was graduated from the University of Michigan she became literary editor of the Los Angeles Times, a position which she held for several years.

In addition to her achievements in the journalistic field she collaborated with her husband on a book, "Foreign Trade of the United States," used as a textbook in a number of colleges.

Besides being the joint author of "The Corcorans," a story of New York life, Mrs. Ford has written two detective novels.

Time to Start Indoor Gardens; Here's Easy Way to Make One

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, APRIL 20.—Right now, when you're planning just where the seedlings already sprouting in boxes are to be placed, is a good time to make plans for the indoor garden, too. Because the outdoor garden will assist the indoor one with blossoms, slips and cuttings.

Face the Sun.

Windows which face the sun make delightful indoor gardens. And they can be as simple or as elaborate as you please.

The simplest way of making a window garden is to take any window and have shelves built across it.

Wall Brackets.

Tables made to hold plants can be placed in front of the window. Or wire screens on which are held colorful pots.

Flower containers of the types described are available in Washington in all the better department stores and garden implement shops.

A Filipino Dish Gets The Post Weekly Prize

Mrs. Grace Wynn Hands in Recipe Brought From the Islands.

"TONY," a Filipino dish brought back from the islands by Mrs. Grace Wynn, of 1333 Belmont street northwest, has been awarded the $5 weekly recipe prize.

This dish, when served with a green salad, is an entire meal. Mrs. Wynn's family is particularly enthusiastic when they have "Tony" and ripe tomatoes and lettuce salad with lots of dressing for dinner.

After reading the following recipe it will be hard to resist serving such a wholesome dish to your family.

"Tony."

½ cup oil or butter.
1 green pepper.
1 large onion.
1 clove garlic.
1 pound hamburg.
1 pound spaghetti.
½ can corn.
1 can tomato soup.
1 can mushrooms (diced).
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce.

Grated cheese and a little water. Salt and pepper to taste.

Cook spaghetti. Rub frying pan with garlic and cut green pepper and onion in small pieces and brown in oil or butter. Add the hamburg and fry until brown.

Mix corn, mushrooms, tomato soup, Worchestershire sauce, salt and pepper, then the meat mixture. Put all into baking dish with drained spaghetti. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake to a golden brown (about ½-hour). Serve in baking dish.

All entries in the weekly recipe prize contest should be addressed to the Food Editor, The Washington Post, Washington, D. C.

Stream-lined Coiffures Urged by Hairdresser

Memphis, Tenn., April 20 (AP).—A suggestion that women's hair arrangements follow the lines of the newest automobiles and trains was made today by Emil Rohde, president of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

"Hair should be as stream-lined as the newest cars and trains and should be worn higher for evening," said Rohde, visiting the Memphis organization. "Most women come out of beauty shops with hair looking like a washboard."

What Today Means

"Taurus."

If April 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m. and from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m., from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m. and from 11:45 p. m. to 12:45 a. m

On this date you possibly will meet, in a social way, an extremely egotistical individual who will try to impress you with his importance. You will be using only good common sense if you take what he gives you, with not only a grain of salt, but a heaping teaspoonful of it. Be careful, however, not to openly offend this person, for it is always better to have the friendship than the enmity of this type. In business carefully recheck any figures you have occasion to submit or receive.

If April 21 is your birthday and you are a woman, impatience is a quality almost unknown to you, but it might sometimes be advisable for a slight display of this characteristic with people who, knowing your natural composure, take advantage of it. Forbearance is a very admirable virtue, provided it does not get you into such a habit of submissiveness that people will misconstrue it as indicative of weakness.

The child born on April 21, as it grows up, will be very graceful, and will display this gift of bodily carriage in every movement whether walking or dancing. If it evinces the slightest interest in music, it should be encouraged by the engaging of a good music teacher. It is most essential that care shold be exercised in the selection of its playmates, as, in its formative years, it will be greatly influenced by its associates.

Women born on April 21 have the happy faculty of being perfectly willing to wait patiently for anything that they have set their heart on to materialize. If in love and financial reasons delay the consummation of their dreams, they prove their good sportsmanship by not complaining or trying to force conditions faster than circumstances warrant. Being prudent they do not believe in running unnecessary risks.

Men born on April 21 have a tremendous amount of determination and persistency, and seldom will acknowledge defeat. They can as a rule keep their tempers under splendid control, but when they get very angry they explode with terrific force. If born on this date, you have a strong sense of loyalty to both family and friends, and blood to your way of thinking is really "thicker than water." You will go far to be able to serve any of your close relatives.

People born on April 21 and others born in the Sign Taurus are temperamentally fitted to serve in positions of public trust, especially in positions calling for financial responsibility.

Successful people born on April 21:

Henry Ware, jr., clergyman.
Robert M. T. Hunter, statesman.
Edward T. Cox, geologist.
John Muir, naturalist.

Doctors Find New Method Of Reducing

Chicago, April 20 (AP).—Latest tests of a new way to get thin—a drug that puts your body under "forced draft" and "burns" the fat off you, making you feel better at the same time—were outlined today to the American College of Physicians.

The drug, one of the chemicals known as "Dinitro compounds," can take off any amount of weight desired when used properly, said Dr. Edward L. Bortz, of Philadelphia. He warned at the same time, however, that people who use these drugs without a physician's advice are running grave risk of ill health and perhaps death.

The new medicine "lets more air into the furnace." A fat man is like a slow fire burning in a furnace with the damper barely open. His bodily fuel is burned up slowly in the production of heat and energy, which scientists call basal metabolism. The new medicine "opens the damper" and the slow fire burns faster. The fat melts away because the body is producing heat and energy faster than before. Scientists call it accelerating the metabolism.

"Weight loss averaged from three to six pounds during the first ten days on one to three capsules of 100 milligrams each daily," Dr. Bortz said his experiments showed. "In those individuals showing a physiological response to the drug, weight loss continued at the rate of one to four pounds each week for as long as the medication was taken."

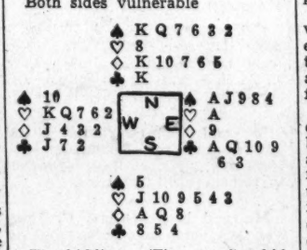
Defensive or Attacking Play.

The defending hand in the bidding—namely, the hand which enters the calling after an Opening bid—uses different kinds of bidding situations to show minimum, strong or very strong hands and strong hands with freakish distribution. Minimum defensive strength is shown by Simple Overcalls. Hands with long suits but with little outside strength are shown by Jump Overcalls. Experience has demonstrated that with the present scoring Jump Overcalls are most effective when used as aggressive defense rather than to show very strong hands. For strong hands the Takeout Double and the Immediate Overcall in the opponents' suit are available.

It was a misunderstanding of this situation which brought about disaster to Mr. E. F. Arnold, of Vredenburgh, Ala., and his partner on the hand below:

South, Dealer
Both sides vulnerable



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♣
2♡(1)	3♣(2)	3♠(3)	Dbl.(4)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The Jump Overcall, which was at the root of all the subsequent trouble. South contended that inasmuch as he had passed originally, the two-heart bid was designed to interfere with opponents' bidding and was not in any sense a Forcing bid. North, on the contrary, misconstrued the bid as forcing him to continue the bidding until a game contract was reached inasmuch as hands stronger than minimum Opening bids had frequently been passed and that if he desired to sign off he should have bid three hearts.

2—West can vision the probability that North and South are getting into trouble. This bid is designed to facilitate that possibility.

3—A very dangerous bid in view of the obvious misfit.

4—The ax descends.

North and South were set six tricks—at total of 2,700 points. In submitting the hand the question is asked: "Should South's bid have been considered forcing?"

The answer for the reasons given above is unqualifiedly in the negative. The question as to whether or not South should have made the bid at all is obviously something else again. As the cards lie, even two hearts is in for a considerable penalty but in any event the use of this type of bid as Forcing has been proved inadvisable in the light of experience. At one time in the Culberston System a Jump Overcall such as this was used to show a very strong hand, a hand the practical equivalent of an Opening Forcing bid of two or a distributional hand so strong that less honor tricks were required. It was found, however, that we had too many strength-showing bids so that in the revisions in the system made in 1933, and still adhered to, the Jump Overcall is not a guarantee of strength but an affirmation of weakness, except that it does guarantee a long and reasonably solid suit, particularly in the situation faced by the holders of the North and South hands here. For example, South by his Jump Overcall of two hearts has practically guaranteed to his partner that he will take six tricks with hearts as trump. This is an optimistic over-estimate of the probabilities of his hand.

BACHELOR—of ARTS

By John Erskine

The Story So Far.

The first half of Alec's sophomore year at Columbia saw his world crash around his ears. As a student, he had just slipped through; as a football player he had gotten no farther than a scrub; as a tenor in the glee club he had been a disaster. Now, at the end of the Christmas vacation, his father broke the news that the family business had been wrecked by the depression; from now on Alec would have to earn his own way.

The only field in which Alec had been successful has been love. Gladys, the college widow whom he didn't want had pursued him, and he had won the heart of red haired Mimi. Mimi was a straight shooter. Almost as soon as she had entered Barnard her father had lost his money. But instead of going to St. Louis she got a job as cashier in a drug store. Alec had wanted to solve her problems by marrying her immediately, but had been forced to abandon this idea by lack of funds. There was also hovering menacingly in the background, Woolsey, the bachelor professor; he was in love with Mimi, too, and already had an education and a job.

Alec, who had never earned a penny in his life, told his father he would go back to Columbia and make his own way. He didn't realize what he was up against in that spring of 1932. In the meanwhile Mimi's father regains his money.

But seated in the restaurant she got the truth out of him.

"Didn't you enjoy your holiday? It's the first time I ever saw you down on your luck!"

"I'm where you were," he said simply. "My father's going through the same trouble as yours."

She reached over impulsively and squeezed his hand. "Oh, but I'm sorry! I know what Dad suffered! But it won't be hard on you—you'll enjoy it, as I did, and you're clever enough to do something so much better!"

"That's just it," he answered mournfully, "there ought to be a way out, but I don't see it."

She leaned her chin on her hands, in the posture which on an earlier occasion had been his. "Let me think!"

"I'll come for you," he said, "right after 6."

Banishes Disappointment.

Well, he oughtn't to grudge her these new contacts. It was her turn. Putting his disappointment out of mind as far as possible, he hurried down to the house, to consult the fellows. They were finishing their lunch. Mitchell, the freshman, was pounding the piano, a shabby skeleton, yellow-toothed and querulous. From upstairs came the sounds of pool playing. He found Tom there, in a game with Jim, Albert watching.

"What's biting you?" asked Jim.

"If you fellows had a moment," said Alec, "I'd asked your advice."

"Spill it!"

"Not here. Come up to Albert's room."

"Hey, there!" called Tom. "Don't spoil this game. I'm trimming him!"

Alec climbed the stairs resolutely, and after one more shot, Tom put away his cue and followed, with Jim and Albert close behind. Alec sat on Albert's bed, Jim and Tom on the desk seat and easy chair, Albert on the floor.

"In a word," said Alec, "my father's lost every cent, and unless I earn money, the house and the college will see me no more."

"Gosh!" exclaimed Tom.

The others puckered their brows in sympathy.

"Of course," said Tom, "you want to save out some time for study."

"That's the idea."

"Well, from that point of view, the best job in town, coming twice a day at regular and brief periods, is airing the dogs."

"Don't razz him," said Jim, "he's in trouble."

Work Park.

"I'm not razzing. One of the modern city industries. To make it pay, you really ought to work Park avenue, but you can do almost as well along Riverside. It's a law of nature that ladies don't go in for dogs till they're too old to walk out with them. If you pick a block with enough old ladies on it you can make 12 small dogs happy in 30 minutes."

Tom's eyes opened wide. "I wasn't teasing! Cross my heart! I know three fellows and one girl who owe their education to small dogs!"

Tom slapped his knee. "There's a profession some one ought to invent—diverting the relatives! Most of us who come from out of town receive visits from the family at the wrong moment. Now, if you, for a reasonable tariff, would take Aunt Sarah to the top of the Empire State Building you'd be in affluence."

"They need night clerks in the gymnasium," interrupted Albert. "You know—the fellows who check up on how much exercise you do, if you haven't done your duty by daylight. That's a slow job, but steady."

Alec rubbed the back of his head. "If I had better marks the dean might give me a scholarship. Gosh, I wish I were literary! I'd get on Spectator. The editor makes a lot of money out of it, doesn't he?"

Jim shook his head. "The manager, more likely."

"Well, whoever it is," said Alec, "if I'd used my brains I could connect with some of that campus graft. Gosh!"

Job at Night.

"What would I have to do?"

"Just keep order and see that things move along. It can't be hard. Several fellows do it who are no brainier than you."

A smile broke over Tom's face. "Perhaps you wouldn't care to go into this, but here's some work you'd be a whizz at—you could be gigolo to wallflowers! You get $10 an evening, and all expenses. Few of them are worse than the Whistles."

Alec stared. "What are you talking about?"

"Serious! Don't you read the personal columns?—Young lady of unblemished reputation desires acquaintance with young man with an equally high record—object, an evening of innocent conversation and dancing, modest honorarium."

As they laughed, Alec grew angry. "You've all gone back on me! I wanted help! I thought you'd be glad to have me stay in the house!"

Tom got up and put his arm around his shoulder. "It's just my rotten way of talking! I meant every word. You can earn $10 an evening, squiring a neglected dame. I did it once myself, and aside from being dull, it's not objectionable. The next chance I get, I'll turn your way."

Alec went downstairs and played pool for a while with Mitchell, the freshman, but the game supplied no distraction. He thought of the library, either the main building to browse in the magazine room, or Hamilton Hall for some heavy reading, but since he had attended no courses that day, he didn't know what to study. Instead, he went to the newsstand across Amsterdam avenue, opposite the dormitory, and bought a sheaf of papers.

Rather terrifying, so many people looking for work and so few asking for workers! It was his first glimpse of an oversaturated world, reluctant to absorb you.

Hesitates to See Movie.

Toward the end of the afternoon, restless and befuddled, he started for the Nemo, where a picture, as he hoped might cheer him up. But on the way he doubted whether he had the right to spend even a few cents on amusement. Heroically he turned westward to Riverside and up the Drive till he came in sight of the new bridge, nearly completed. Engineering might be a good sort of job if you didn't need so much mathematics.

His walk brought him back to Morningside a little after 6. He might have gone to the house to eat, but the fellows had disappointed him. He might pick up a supper at Mimi's drug store—but she wouldn't be there! He'd find another counter on Broadway.

At 112th he turned into David son's, sat up at the counter, tilted his hat back, called for vegetable soup, hamburgers, eclair, coffee. The soda jerker passed out a paper napkin and a glass of water to console him while waiting. He stared at the mirror in front, at the bottles stacked in artistic patterns.

A girl came in, sauntered along the counter, perched herself on the seat next to him on the right. He did not look at her. Idly he wondered why she had to come so close with vacant seats farther away. The man behind the counter was taking her order.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Dropsy.

In dropsy there is an undue amount of water in the tissues. In addition, we may speak of a condition as being dropsical when there is an accumulation of fluid in the body cavities, all or several, because this condition may go hand in hand with fluid in the tissues and be a result of the same cause.

This accumulation of fluid is an effect, and when it is present effort should be made to look beyond it to the cause. The significance of the symptom depends largely on what has caused it, and treatment that is not directed at the cause is not liable to be of lasting benefit.

The two most important causes are organic heart disease with a weak heart muscle and disease of the kidney, one of the varieties which, taken collectively, are called Bright's disease. Among the less important causes are cirrhosis of the liver, severe anemia, varicose veins in the legs, obstructions to blood or lymph vessels in the pelvis and high regions, and local acidosis.

There are three kinds of Bright's disease in which there may be dropsy. The first is the acute disease which follows such acute causes as sore throat and scarlet fever. The dropsy in this kind of Bright's disease is apt to be suspected because of puffiness around the eyes. It may spread to the entire body, including the legs, but there is not likely to be any great waterlogging of the legs that is so suggestive of heart disease when there are no varicose veins in the legs.

A dropsy that seems to start as a puffiness of the eyes should always suggest an examination of the urine. It may be caused by trichinosis or by a local acidosis (the cause of swollen eyes in the morning after deep sleep), but the kidneys are under suspicion whenever swelling appears to start in the face.

There are those who say if people with scarlet fever or sore throat will eat nothing except fruits, and will take enough soda to keep the urine alkaline, acute nephritis will not follow the main disorder.

A second form of nephritis with dropsy or edema is that which goes by the name nephrosis. It is characterized by much puffiness of the face, general edema and albuminuria. This kind of kidney trouble is half way between acute and chronic Bright's. The Bright's that comes on so frequently during pregnancy is apt to be of this kind.

The typical chronic Bright's does not cause dropsy until it has lasted a long time and it may never cause it. When it does, the heart, as well as the kidneys, is apt to be involved and the dropsy is caused by the kidney and heart troubles in combination. If there is dropsy it is liable to be especially in evidence in the legs and, if so, the heart disorder is probably the larger part of the cause.

It is held that acidosis is one factor in dropsy, whatever the main cause may be. Swelling of the ankles in summer, not due to other causes, is charged to local acidosis.

Whenever there is dropsy from any cause the physician is apt to try by diet and medicines to keep up the alkali reserve. A tendency to break down, as the end approaches in chronic Bright's may be indicated by development of dropsy. However, it is more apt to take the form of restlessness leading to coma and convulsions. This physicians try to ward off by giving alkalis.

Not Inheritable.

R. B. writes: I have been going out steadily with a fellow and we intend to get married in six months. He told me that two years ago he had had spinal meningitis. He lost a brother from the same disease. Is this disease dangerous? Will we be able to have children without fear of the disease in the blood?

Reply.

Spinal meningitis is a very dangerous disease, as you know. However, it is not inheritable. There is no danger now to you, nor will there be any to possible children, nor to the public.

Credit Where Credit's Due—D. A. R.s Drag Electioneering Out Into the Light of Day

By Malvina Lindsay.

ONE TRIBUTE should be paid the departing Daughters of the American Revolution in the name of their sex. They have pioneered in putting forthrightness into feminine campaigning for office.

From the time the first embroidery circles started electing Presidents, women have been furtive and self-conscious about running for club offices. Until recent years, many women's organizations conducted their election campaigns under cover. Seldom did a women candidate openly run for office. Her friends worked in her behalf by means of whispers, huddles and teatable conspiracies. Often bitter battles were waged; votes traded, blocs formed, rumors bandied, charges hurled. But never a ripple disturbed the genteel surface of the organization. The candidate herself was aloof from the combat. If elected, she was overwhelmed by the honor; if defeated, she was apologetic that her name had been dragged into the fray.

Strangely, women leaders who were bold as lions in denouncing iniquitous officials and civic abuses were timid as rabbits when it came to running for sergeants at arms of their clubs. Confronted with an election, they invariably went native, resorting to coyness and indirection.

"Urged to Run."

MUCH of this attitude persisted even after women got the vote. At the first political conventions in which they sat as delegates the same feminine skittishness was evidenced about offices or honors. To say a woman was a candidate for a convention delegate at large or for membership on the rules committee was almost to incur a libel suit. The alleged candidate was always "put forward" by her friends or "urged to run" by her supporters.

Why this beating around the bush? No one ever seems to have found the answer. It may have been due to natural feminine timidity or indirection. It may have been, as men have suggested, that women are not good losers—which incidentally may also account for the number of spinsters at large today.

Whatever the weakness, the D. A. R.'s have not suffered from it to any extent. As far back as most women of today will admit remembering, the intrepid descendants of the Minute Men have been out in the open at State and National conventions, announcing their candidacies, rallying their cohorts, dining the doubtful and clinching their pledges. Usually from the time the first delegate arrived at the convention hotel, the tense expectancy of an election prevailed. And election day itself was often as exciting as a Democratic convention when a minority report was brought in.

In Gentlemanly Fashion.

THE recent Continental Congress here did not offer the usual campaign excitement as this is an off election year for the president generalship. But even with the contest a year distant, the campaign between the two publicly announced candidates was well under way and their platforms were being digested by prospective voters. Moreover, the naming of the seven vice presidents general from a field of 11 candidates was not without its moments. The campaign technique was the frontal attack. State delegations were electioneering earnestly for their favorite daughters. The candidates themselves were feted, were photographed together, and even entertained one another in true gentlemanly fashion.

Neo-revolutionists who look upon the D. A. R.'s chiefly as guardians of the status quo should remember they have done one important piece of feminine revoluting. They have taken club campaigning from the back fence into the market place.

Mrs. Roosevelt Shakes Hands With Three Thousand D. A. R.s

By Hope Ridings Miller.

THREE THOUSAND D. A. R. shook Mrs. Roosevelt's hand yesterday and received a greeting at the White House reception which marked the last social event for the Continental Congress.

An hour before the appointed time the east entrance was crowded. The delegates, attired in every type of dress from flowing chiffon and lace to sport clothes, moved in two abreast, waving their white cards at the uniformed men who guarded the entrance. Filing down the east corridor they moved slowly up the stairway and into the east room.

A tenseness pervaded the crowd as it waited for the door to the green room to be opened. For an hour they milled about the spacious green room—some walking out on the east portico, others standing . . . waiting.

Presently the strains of the Marine Band playing in the lobby breaks the tenseness. It is playing for the pages to march in.

The crowd in the east room pushes toward the door leading into the lobby for a glimpse of the pages' formation.

Presently the band strikes up a louder tune. Mrs. Magna is arriving on the arm of a White House aid, who escorts her through the green room and into the blue room, where Mrs. Roosevelt is waiting to greet her. She takes her place in the receiving line while her pages stand back of her.

Now the other National officers and State regents, blue beribboned and bearing huge bouquets of roses, are marching in to greet the hostess.

The gold-braided White House aid, first in the line, repeats each person's name to Mrs. Roosevelt. With a warm handclasp and a word of personal greeting, the First Lady makes each visitor forget the crowd, the waiting, and even the scrambling at the door of the East Room.

Lost—A Plank From Platform Of Candidate

Webster Springs, W. Va., April 20 (Spl.).—S. W. Cutlip, of Diana, has reentered the political arena with half of his political platform gone as the result of the whims of Dame Fashion.

Cutlip, merchant and post-office worker at Diana for nearly half a century, has just made formal announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for membership on the Webster County Board of Education.

Several years ago he became a candidate for a similar office in Holly district with a two-plank platform: (1) home-hired teachers and (2) no more short skirts.

That was in the days when the ladies wore short skirts and, as some thought, too short. Cutlip was elected and served a term on the district school board, which boards have since been abolished by law.

Now, in going after membership on the county board, Cutlip has announced his new platform: (1) home-hired teachers.

Intelligence of the Poor High As the Rich, Psychologist Says

CHICAGO, APRIL 20.—Children from poverty-stricken homes rank as high in intelligence as those from families of wealth and social prestige, according to Dr. Ethel Kawin, psychologist of the Institute for Juvenile Research.

Dr. Kawin reached this conclusion after she had made psychological tests of 62 [illegible] in the Hull House Nursery [illegible] situated in a poor [illegible] Chicago, and 62 children [illegible] the Winnetka Public School Nursery. Winnetka is considered a wealthy suburb.

When the poor children failed to make as high a grade as the well-to-do ones in some of the tests, Dr. Kawin found that it was the result of language handicaps and limitations of environment and not inferior intelligence. The psychologist could find no important difference in the grades of the two groups.

The very highest and the very lowest rankings in the tests were about evenly divided between children from Hull House and those from Winnetka.

This fact implies individual children from impoverished homes may rise to unexpected intellectual heights and individual children from wealthy homes may fall far below the intellectual level expected of them, believes Dr. Kawin.

Although there may be a mass tendency for high intelligence to follow wealth and important social position, Dr. Kawin is certain no prediction can be made as to the intellectual level that will be reached by individuals of either poor or prosperous groups.

The psychologist has incorporated the findings from the pupils' tests in a book, "Children of Preschool Age."

WRITERS from all over the Nation will assemble at noon today at the Willard to attend the celebrity breakfast which opens the eleventh biennial convention of the National League of American Pen Women.

• • • •

Mrs. Victoria Stevenson of this city and Mrs. Otis F. Lamson, of Seattle, Wash., are two of the candidates who will be presented to the convention for election to the office of president.

• • • •

Political Club to Vote.

REPRESENTATIVE HAMILTON FISH of New York will speak at the meeting of the Political Study Club at 1 o'clock today at the Washington Club, 1701 K street northwest.

• • • •

New Chapter Comes In.

THE TAU PHI National Sorority will install Tau Chapter at 8:30 tonight at 4345 Wisconsin avenue. Virginia Ferris, national president, assisted by Marie Reichman, national vice president, will have charge of the installation.

Members of the business girls' department of the Y. W. C. A. will leave Washington at 1:15 p. m. today for a week-end tour to New York.

The committee in charge of arrangements is headed by Mathilda Berthiaume, president.

The women's auxiliary to the Railway Mail Association will meet at 8 p. m. tonight at the home of Mrs. W. H. Werntz, 620 Nicholson street northwest.

More Expected of Woman Politicians Than Men, Says Congresswoman Norton in Radio Broadcast

For the enlightenment of womanhood throughout the Nation of the caliber and purpose of distinguished women in Washington, The Washington Post has inaugurated a special radio feature—"First Ladies of the Capital." Twice weekly feminine personages are interviewed by The Post's radio reporter over a National Broadcasting Co. Nation-wide hook-up. The following day the interview appears on this page in story form.

This is the fifth article in the series.

By Margaret Santry.

POLITICS makes no concessions to women as such.

Rather, in the experience of Representative Mary Norton, of New Jersey, more is expected of women than men in key positions.

The distinguished Dean of Congresswomen, appearing in The Washington Post's exclusive radio interview series—"First Ladies of the Capital"—at 3 p. m. yesterday, listed a few of the qualifications necessary for women who would succeed in public life.

Patience, self-discipline, love of people, a sense of humor, understanding of male psychology and feminine intuition in superlative degree, as well as a conscious contribution to offer were among the requirements she cited.

She said: "I think The Washington Post is doing a great service in bringing these problems to the attention of the people of the country over the air, as well as in the news columns. I think this series should prove a most enlightening one to the women of the country."

Business Is Valuable.

Asked what particular training she would advocate for a woman aspirant to Congress, Mrs. Norton said:

"Business training is invaluable. A knowledge of business, particularly business with men, provides a knowledge of male psychology and male processes of reasoning. My experience as a secretary in an office has been invaluable to me. In addition it has taught me how to pick the right kind of office force and how to run my own office. Then there's patience. And discipline. Of course, some women make the mistake of getting discipline all mixed up with subservience. However, training in discipline is valuable in accomplishing anything of importance.

"Then, you love people. You must love people. You must have the knack of making friends and keeping friends. The most important thing in order to accomplish anything in politics is to be identified with one political party and to contribute your interest and loyalty to that party organization. For in politics you can't go it alone. You must be a part of an organized group. Needless to say, a prime asset before anything else—is a sense of humor—you'll need it."

Miss Santry—And how does the well-known quality of feminine intuition help a woman in politics?

Mrs. Norton—It's most invaluable. I don't think women as a rule are as logical as men. But they make up for it in intuition. I can speak for myself in that, because I can thank my intuition for lots of things that have happened.

Miss Santry—Can a married woman reconcile a political career to matrimony?

Mrs. Norton—That's a problem up to the individual. In my own case I had no children who would be neglected if I embarked on a political career. I had one boy and lost him, and needed something to occupy me. My husband was perfectly in accord because he believes in individualism and has always taken pride in my activities.

However, I do think the woman who can raise a successful family has a career that overshadows all others, as far as pleasure and satisfaction are concerned. However, there is no reason why, when she has finished raising her family, she should not enter public life. She is at least 40 years of age by then, and at the very best time of life, particularly for a political career.

Miss Santry—Of course, all women cant' aspire to Congress, but they can help to make their own communities better. Have you any practical suggestions as to how can they go about this?'

Mrs. Norton—If women were to examine social conditions, schools and public institutions in their own communities they would find plenty of opportunities for service.

My own story is an illustration of how easily one can become interested and do a worthwhile job. My first active interest was through a nursery organization in Jersey City. Later, during the war, the necessity became acute and we started a second nursery to take care of children of working mothers. It was simple welfare work, but very effective.

HON. MARY T. NORTON, above, Congresswoman now serving her third term from New Jersey, praised The Washington Post and gave sage advice to woman aspirants to Congress, in a radio broadcast yesterday afternoon.

Business Training Great Help; Declares Hers Invaluable.

Hopes to Get Bill.

Miss Santry—From your activities on the District Committee here in Washington it's apparent you are not limiting your interest to the unfortunate of your own home State, Mrs. Norton. Do you expect to get your old-age pension bill through this session?

Mrs. Norton: "I certainly hope so. While my major interest has been in child welfare, I do think old and dependent people who can no longer help themselves represent a real problem. Twenty-seven States are now caring for indigent old people and from experience it has been proven that helping these old people in their homes and saving them from the humiliation of the poorhouse puts no additional burden on the taxpayers. I think this legislation is a much needed advantage to the District of Columbia and I hope to be successful in having it passed."

Miss Santry: "From your vast experience in welfare work, what do you think of the Welfare Board of the District of Columbia?"

Mrs. Norton: "I think it is a misnomer in its present form. In the first place its members are appointed without salary to administrate a budget of $14,000,000 a year. These members of the board are business people who can not give all their time to the Welfare Department and can not be expected to. While I am not criticizing them, I think it should have a paid administrator who would be responsible to the Commissioners for the work performed. The hospitals and prisons of this city are in shocking need of reorganization and improvement."

Change D. C. Government.

Miss Santry: "Would a change in the present form of government for the District of Columbia be a means of bettering these conditions?"

Mrs. Norton: "I am sure it would. The power of the Commissioners, appointed by the President instead of being elected, as they should be, is so limited they must go to Congress to get legislation for some of the simplest problems of the city. Meanwhile, those in Congress and the Senate who serve on the District Committee are performing a patriotic service in taking on this additional work besides the duties they have to their own States.

"This method of government does not place the responsibility properly and as a result is ineffective in serving the interests of the people who live here and pay taxes. While Washington is a Federal city, the people of the District should have a voice in their own government, at least as much as the Philippine Islands and other Government possessions have."

Listen Monday at 11:45 a. m. over Station WRC for Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President of the United States. Read the story on Tuesday's woman page.

Russians Make a Play From Their Own Lives

They'll Relive Their Harrowing Experiences During the Revolution and After, Tonight at the Pierce Hall Playhouse.

OLD RUSSIA LIVES again in the heart of Washington.

Out of a group of some 60 refugees, half of this number have set to work reliving the lives they had before coming to this country and reenacting the experiences that brought them here.

Play Straight.

Costumes are being made, stages set, painted, lines rehearsed as the Russian Dramatic Committee of Washington prepares to put on "How Do You Like This Country?" tonight at Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets.

The play is written in Russian and English. For the benefit of one of the characters, an American, the Russian lines are translated, making the plot understandable to non-Russian members of the audience. Mme. Natalie P. Scheffer, who has published several books in England, is the author and plays the leading feminine role.

The play is taken from the life of a Russian family, the Gorskis. The first act presents them as the old aristocracy. Then comes the revolution, their departure from the native land, and the final meeting in Washington.

While the general attitude of the characters is one of gratitude toward the Americans, who have given homes to the homeless, the Russians have indulged in sly humor.

All costumes are authentic.

Among those taking active part in the production are Vladimir Zsovski, director; Leonide Stralrovski, who plays opposite Mme. Scheffer; Tarannin, stage designer and builder; Countess Elizabeth Heiden and R. Betts, who play the secondary leads. The cast includes Liza Gardner, Olga Grinioff, Dr. Paul Galtsoff and Mme. Galtsoff and Georgia Heiden.

The play is presented for the benefit of the Russian Church of St. Nicholas and is under the patronage of H. I. H., the Grand Duchess Marie, who is expected to attend.

Sororities Help To Campus Life Speaker Holds

Woman's University Board Member Urges Sufficient Number of Them.

A CAMPUS with so many sororities that every coed who wished to join one could do so—that is the dream of Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., first woman member of the board of trustees of George Washington University.

"We of the governing board of George Washington University have a high opinion of what sororities may mean to our student body and we trust there are sufficient sorority affiliations on our campus so every girl who wishes to join a sorority may be included in one," said Mrs. Evans last night before a dinner meeting of Urban Panhellenic Conference delegates at the Admiral Club. Sixteen urban universities are represented at the conference which closes this afternoon with election of officers.

Are of Service.

Sororities are meeting the challenge of changing world conditions by being of service to their fellow human beings, according to Mrs. Evans, first woman graduate of George Washington University to receive an honorary degree.

"Some of us remember when sorority selections were based upon a girl's good looks and her personal popularity," she said. "Today your sorority groups, while not averse to charm or pulchritude, are pledging girls who give pomise of becoming motivating factors in their communities after college life is over. You seek girls who will be interested in cultural values as well as in extra curricular activities while they are in school."

Help the Failing.

The sorority member who shows signs of falling by the wayside in scholarship, social life, or school loyalty, is promptly extended a guiding hand by her sorority sisters, Mrs. Evans has noticed.

"The spirit of hospitality has not been lacking but its unnecessary financial burdens have been lightened," she concluded.

Nurses' Eight-Hour Day Fast Becoming a Reality

President of Nurses Association Says Progress Being Made in Establishing Sensible, Humane Working Hours.

THAT LONG-DREAMED-OF world where nurses work only eight hours a day is fast becoming a reality, believes Miss Elnora E. Thomson, president of the American Nurses Association and prominent leader in the nurses' biennial convention which meets here Monday.

"It is almost unbelievable that in this modern age hundreds of nurses should still be working 12 hours a day," Miss Thomson said at the Mayflower yesterday. "However, recently great progress has been made in establishing the eight-hour day, and it has been well accepted wherever tried."

No Life of Her Own.

"There are many things to consider in working out an eight-hour day for the nurse. Of course, the most important reason is no person should have to spend all her time working and sleeping. The nurse who does has no chance for a life of her own.

"Not only is that to be considered, but the nurse who works 12 hours is too tired to give the best service. And the patient has to pay the penalty."

Showing how the nurses' working day has been shortened, Mrs. Thomson said that the first nurses worked 24 hours daily, and the students 12.

"When the students had completed their 12-hour duty they had to attend classes and get their medical knowledge," Miss Thomson said. "Of course, that has long been discontinued. We hope the 12-hour working day for the graduate nurse will soon be as antiquated."

Doctors Favor It.

"Doctors are in favor of the eight-hour day," she said, "because they want their patients to have the best possible care, and they know a tired nurse cannot give the proper attention. The patients are also in favor of it, when they do not have to pay higher salaries. You see the fact the salary of each nurse is lowered by the eight-hour day does not mean her average income is lower, because more nurses are employed, and they can work almost the entire year. The 12-hour day wore nurses out so they had to take two or three months' vacations."

Speaking of the efforts to give skilled nursing care to patients at a minimum expense, Miss Thomson said:

"The hourly nursing plan is indeed helpful, but I think more can be accomplished by increasing hospital staffs and putting the majority of nurses on a monthly salary. This will mean the expense to the patient will be lowered, and the nurse will have a steady, dependable income. Now the nurse makes a good salary by the day, but did you ever stop to think you pay your laundress more by the hour? And while the expense to the patient is terrific, he can not get the best care in hospitals unless he has a special nurse."

Miss Thomson is a professor of nursing education at the University of Oregon. The school in which she teaches is one of the progressive nursing schools which puts nursing on an equal basis with other professions and gives a graduating nurse a degree.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. Sydnor Bohannan, who have an estate in southern Maryland near Port Tobacco, made a special trip to Washington to see them both at night, with the new tricky artificial lighting, and in the early morning.

• • • •

After breakfast, Mrs. Bohannan telephoned a friend who does not have instinctive joy over dawnings and said:

"The cherry blossoms were simply wonderful this morning. Of course, down country we are used to early rising, but it was never more worth the effort than this morning. I wouldn't have missed it for anything."

• • • •

"Were the cherry blossoms nicer this morning than last night?"

"Oh, no—I don't think they could be more wonderful than they were in that eerie light," admitted Mrs. Bohannan.

Her inquirer, having enjoyed the thrill of the lighted blossoms the night before, hung up with a contented sigh and dropped happily back into dreams untroubled with any dawns.

A New Idea.

DO WOMEN think?

It was amusing the other day at the Press Club luncheon to hear Pierre Loving, dramatist, tell how he once had to debate the question, taking the negative side.

• • • •

"I hold," said Mr. Loving, quietly, but firmly, "that women are the practical, rationally organizing people of the world and men possess to a greater degree real intuitive powers—all this talk about woman's instinct to the contrary.

"What more practical and solidly founded organization is there in the world than the home? A woman has charge of all the varied details, has to meet the problems concerning the basic needs of all the members of her family every day of her life.

• • • •

"On the other hand, men are the ones who have to think—and think hard—about where to secure the wherewithal to keep the organization going. Men, too, are almost exclusively the inventors, the creators of things that require originality of mental conception."

A Good One.

THEY'RE telling a good one on a certain prominent "Daughter" who is noted for straddling the fence on most problems and all nominations.

• • • •

It seems she went to the big reception the other night wearing a bouquet on each shoulder. Seeing which, another "Daughter," who was not particularly sympathetic, remarked to a friend:

• • • •

"Most appropriate—those two bouquets. She certainly carries enough water on both shoulders to keep the flowers fresh on both sides."

"Nuts," Says a G. O. P.

A LEADING member of the Republican party was queried recently as to what he thought of the NRA.

• • • •

"I think it's a diet," said the famous Republican.

"How do you mean?"

• • • •

"Well—it seems to be:
N for nuts,
R for raspberries,
A for applesauce," was his answer.

I Told You So.

By Katherine Smith.

I saw your eyes grow tender, then:
"You must not trust a woman, dear,"
I said, but you would not believe—
You closed a deaf and stubborn ear
To all my warnings. Then I knew
That love for us would come, and go;
And now I bite my lip and try
To silence my: "I told you so."

Fiction Tales Too Plentiful, Says Librarian

Readers peruse the pages of fiction too much for their intellectual hygiene, according to "A Program for Fiction Buying," by Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian of the Public Library, which was recently published in the Bulletin of the American Library Association.

"Good fiction has admitted values," wrote Dr. Bowerman, "but most novels are after all properly to be classed among dessert, the confections of literature, and not among the breads and meats, the fruits and vegetables."

Dr. Bowerman further pointed out it is the duty of the library in its work of intellectual hygiene "to see its constituents have a mixed intellectual diet which will help to produce well informed, thoughtful citizens."

Dr. Bowerman presented a plan which has been used to advantage in the District of Columbia Public Library whereby excessive fiction reading has been diminished by using the advisory system in which a member of the library staff helps to educate the reader away from weak reading matter to better fiction, or to biography and history.

To Smoke or Not to Smoke—Question at Southern College

DECATUR, GA., April 20 (AP).—To smoke or not to smoke—that is the question students of Agnes Scott College wish to settle.

A questionnaire signed by Mary McDonald, president of the student executive committee, has been distributed among the students seeking their reactions to Dr. J. R. McCain's recent statement that if some students preferred smoking to an Agnes Scott degree he would allow them to withdraw, even if there are several hundred of them.

The questionnaire asked the students whether they smoked before entering college, or if the habit had been formed since; whether they are regular or occasional smokers, and whether the rules against smoking are burdensome.

Smoking at Agnes Scott at present is a serious offense, being strictly forbidden on the campus, or in any of the college buildings, or anywhere the student is under college supervision or chaperonage.

"In the last ten years times have changed, and women who enjoy smoking smoke, and those who do not don't, at their pleasure. We feel that those opposed to the abolition of the smoking rules have failed to recognize this change and still regard smoking as it was regarded in the latter part of the nineteenth century. It would be foolish to ride behind a horse as our grandfathers did when cars are available."

Laurette Taylor to Star in New Play With National Players Week of June 4

S. E. Cochran Coproducer of "Marian's House;" Theater Chat.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Negotiations were completed yesterday between George C. Tyler, veteran theatrical producer whose memoirs have recently been published in the Saturday Evening Post, and Stephen E. Cochran, manager of the National Theater in this city, for the return to the stage of Laurette Taylor in "Marian's House," a new play written especially for her.

"Marian's House" comes to the National the week of June 4, with Miss Taylor in the stellar role, supported by the National Theater Players, who open their tenth annual "little season" on E street on Monday night, April 30.

This announcement signalizes the temporary abandonment of several of the Players' rules of long standing. Never before in the nine years of their existence has any one been "starred" with the National Theater Players. Neither has it ever been the custom to bring in "guest stars" for any of the Players' productions. Furthermore, this will mark the first occasion since the organization of the company that it has ever put on a new play from manuscript.

Played Here Only.

Washington will be the only city in the country to see "Marian's House." After its performance here by Miss Taylor and the Players it will be taken off until fall, when, if all goes well, Mr. Tyler, in association with Mr. Cochran, will produce it for the Broadway stage.

There is also a possibility that the National Theater Players will try out anothre new play for Mr. Tyler, the title of which has not been disclosed.

Mr. Tyler, it will be recalled, was for years the managerial head of the famous producing firm of Liebler & Co. Indeed, George C. Tyler WAS Liebler & Co. In his own name, too, he has fostered the careers of many of the American stage's most distinguished stars, among them James O'Neill, whom he first managed in 1894; Viola Allen, in "The Christian;" Mrs. Fiske, William Faversham, Kyrle Bellew, Arnold Daly, Clara Bloodgood, Annie Russell, George Arliss, Ada Rehan, Ezra Kendall, William H. Crane, Mary Mannering and scores of others.

Foreign Stars, Too.

Of the great foreign stars, Eleanora Duse, Madame Rejane, Yvette Guilbert and Albert Chevalier appeared under his direction in this country.

Panjandrum Cochran of the National is not altogether a stranger to the intricacies of play producing, either. Within the space of the last three years he has produced Myron Fagan's comedy, "Peter Flies High," with Glenn Hunter and Mary Loane, and Noel Coward's "Design for Living," with Corinne Griffith, in addition to acting as impresario of the National Theater Players for the past decade.

"Trelawny of the Wells," a romantic comedy by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, has been selected as the spring play at Roosevelt High School. It will be presented in the school auditorium tonight and tomorrow night, with Nancy Hall and Margaret Ruckert alternating in the role of Rose Trelawny, Charles Beck, as Tom Wrench; John Kendrick, as Sir William Gower; Beverly Emmert and Betty Smallman, as Imogen Parrott, and Jewel Moore and Dorothy Wright, as Avonia Bunn. The play is being produced under the direction of Miss Esther Galbraith.

Eddie Dowling, M. C.

Eddie Dowling, comedian, singer, playwright, producer and official jester of the Democratic National party, will be the master of ceremonies at the Actors Fund benefit performance to be given in the National Theater on Sunday night, May 6, under the personal direction of Daniel Frohman, dean of the American theater.

Eddie Dowling's professional career has been in the nature of a complete fulfillment of the late Will Shakespeare's more or less casual observation that "one man in his time plays many parts."

At the age of 10, Eddie headed the boys' choir at St. Paul's Cathedral in London; at 16, he made his American debut as a mimic in "The Ugly Duckling" and before he was 20 he had played every important vaudeville house in the country.

After all this, Master Dowling appeared in the "Follies," wrote "Sally, Irene and Mary," in which he also appeared, and later produced, and starred in, "Honeymoon Lane" and "Sidewalks of New York."

Eddie won renewed fame as chairman of the stage and screen division of the Democratic National committee. Many of his political friends now resident in Washington will be glad to learn of his appearance here on May 6 as an important functionary of the gala event in behalf of the Actors Fund, one of the country's most worthy charities, and one to which the venerable Daniel Frohman has devoted more than 51 years of unremitting effort.

The "magic of make believe," in the form of dramatic recreations from current theater successes, will be given by Maud Scheerer, of New York City, Saturday night of this week at 9 o'clock in the Caroline McKinley Studio, when this clever stage impersonator is presented for the first time in the National Capital by Bess Davis Schreiner and Caroline McKinley. The new plays will be presented by Miss Scheerer in theater talks, with scenes interpreted. Dramalogues, poem portraits, sketches—all in the mode moderne—are included in her repertoire. Admission will be by invitation.

Down on the Avenue, near Ninth, a playhouse that once marked the first bit of self-assertiveness ever manifested by the cinema as a major instrument of entertainment, and later became the cradle of many distinguished vaudeville and musical comedy careers, only to end its days as a second-rate burlesque house, is speedily dwindling into ragged piles of debris before the onslaughts of the wreckers.

For the period that marked its heyday it is not necessary to revert beyond the turbulent, wartime 1900s, when the house was known as The Cosmos and, under the astute management of the Brylawskis, father and sons, gave the more pretentious B. F. Keith's a run for its money.

It was at The Cosmos that I first saw the late Jack Donohue dance—as the lesser half of a team billed as Stuart and Donohue, the Stuart being Mrs. Donohue in private life, an artiste who retired many years ago but was largely instrumental in getting Jack started toward the eminence that was later to be his.

A long list of similar memories out of the past might be set down as a sort of verbal monument to this old theater which, like the Shubert-Garrick, Majestic, Poli's, and some even older, lives now only in memory.

Perhaps some time we will get around to it. In the meantime, no old-timer can look upon the ruins of the Cosmos, later the Mutual, without a twinge of regret.

It was a good buy when it had it!

Their Futile Beauty!

The most distressing thing about it all, it seems to me, is that with all those blossoms there are no cherries!

And the spring trade in manhattans being what it is, too!

Is there no Code covering this situation, Gen. Crack(down)?

"LET'S BE RITZY." Universal picturization of a play by William Anthony McGuire, starring Lew Ayres, with Patricia Ellis, Isabel Jewell, Frank McHugh and Robert McWade. Directed by Edward Ludwig. Reviewed Thursday morning by W. A. Whitney.

Young love, with beer incomes and champagne appetites, forms the warp and woof of the well-worn fabric of "Let's Go Ritzy," a comedy-drama that is considerably more entertaining than might be expected.

The fact that Jimmie Sterling is a plodding youngster and his wife has a penchant for expensive things is not particularly startling. Nor is the ultimate benevolence of Jimmie's crochety boss anything totally unexpected. The whole thing, however, does ring with a wholesome fidelity to life, offering another diverting study in youth's misinterpretation of the real values of life.

The young couple are well played by Lew Ayres and Patricia Ellis. They are a good average pair of journeymen actors playing average journeymen roles.

The real star of the performance is buried among those present—Robert McWade, who, as Jimmie's employer, acts the guardian angel for the pair despite what he avers to be his better judgment. However, as it is later shown, his wards' life exactly parallels his own, and, to save the couple from a fate akin to his, he pilots their bark with an iron, though kindly, hand.

Mr. McWade has frequently been seen as a crochety old man, but never before has he played with such determined force as he does here.

Plans Are Afoot for Greta Garbo to Play "Camille;" Elissa Landi Cast in "Count of Monte Cristo;" Mary Pickford Seeks Suitable Play.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, April 19.—Just good, old-fashioned talk as yet, but even talk is sometimes interesting in pictures—in fact, more than interesting. So here 'tis, namely, that a modernized version of "Camille" may serve Greta Garbo for one of her forthcoming films.

MARY PICKFORD.

Despite the rumors about her doing "The Shining Hour," there doesn't seem to be anything definite, or even hot about that, albeit there is a fine role in that play for Garbo, and it may be chosen. Meanwhile, "The Painted Veil" remains officially on the schedule, and will probably be made.

The closest that Garbo has ever come to doing a "classic" of the "Camille" genre was when she appeared in "Inspiration" several years ago, presumptively based on "Sapho." "Camille" is an old war horse of the movies, and has nearly always been successful. It has been done at least five times officially and formally and the plot has perhaps contributed perennialy to the substance of pictures.

Regardless of that it should have its showmanship possibilities in the talkies, since it has never been produced as such in that medium. Nazimova and Norma Talmadge have starred in the picture of recent years.

Elissa Landi Set for Role.

Practically certain to play the role of Catalan Mercedes in "The Count of Monte Cristo," I hear, is Elissa Landi, who is preparing to appear in "Loves of an Actress," the Charles R. Rogers feature. "Monte Cristo" would probably follow after that. The best information is, of course, that Robert Donat will do the Count, also known as Edmund Dantes. With things in such shape—and it looks as if they were—another "classic" will soon be under way. "The Count of Monte Cristo" holds possibilities of becoming one of the best swashbuckling tales devised in ages.

Mary Pickford Studies Play

And now Mary Pickford is really looking over a play. Brock Pemberton has submitted one to her in New York. It is called, curiously enough, "To My Husband." Other producers there have made bids for Miss Pickford, and some of them have tendered manuscripts along with their proposals, but it is said that this may register more seriously than the others. Incidentally, Gloria Swanson is following the Pickford precedent for personal appearances. Opening date, heretofore in doubt, is the 20th instant, and the theater is the Paramount in New York, which will eliminate any chance of Gloria's doing any picture before "Barbary Coast," if present schedules are pursued.

• • • •

Pommer Arriving Soon.

This much is practically assured regarding Erich Pommer, the noted European film producer, who will arrive in Hollywood within the next week or two—he will do a musical picture. Pommer arrives on the Ile de France in New York today.

Pommer was associated some years ago at Paramount with the activities of such stars as Pola Negri and Emil Jannings, as well as the director, Mauritz Stiller, known as the discoverer of Greta Garbo. The sojourn was not entirely happy, and Pommer returned to Germany, where he became, as he had been before, the dominant figure in the destiny of the Ufa Film Co. Since the Nazi disturbances and even before, he has spent most of his time in Paris, where he has been associate producer for Fox.

Morgan Plans Stage Return.

Frank Morgan, back from his trip to New York, has plans for returning to the stage next season. He is trying to arrange for a release from Metro-Goldwin-Mayer in order to appear in a Jed Harris production. The piece is "The Red and White Room."

• • • •

Picture Pageant Now Passing.

Judith Allen will play the lead opposite W. C. Fields in "The Old-Fashioned Way." Jan Duggan, of "The Drunkard" company, is also in this picture.

Culpeper Carnival Slated in August

Public Wedding Planned Again This Year.

Culpeper, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—The Culpeper Tricarnival, which had its beginning last year as an annual festival sponsored by the American Legion Post, the municipal band and the volunteer fire company, again will be a major event on the town's calendar this year.

Committees have set the dates tentatively as August 2, 3 and 4.

The executive committee, composed of J. William Swan, chairman; T. L. Martin, treasurer; C. E. Reams, jr., secretary; J. H. Newhouse, W. A. Haley, jr., E. W. Morrisett and E. M. Huffman, will be supplemented by subchairmen and committees to work out detailed plans.

The queen and princesses of her court will be selected from towns in northern Virginia. Another public wedding is planned similar to the one last year.

Woman's Forgery Trial, Delayed a Year, Opens

Covington, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Mrs. M. E. Bell, indicted jointly with G. D. Kline by a grand jury in the Alleghany County Circuit Court here in January, 1933, on charges of forgery, pleaded not guilty before Judge Haden yesterday. Continuance on account of illness of witnesses and attorneys had delayed the trial more than a year.

G. D. Kline charged as an accomplice, was found guilty and sentenced to prison for three years.

Child Saved From Fire By Lewisburg Resident

The roof of the house fell in just after Stratton had carried the child to safety. Two more children, the only others in danger, also escaped.

Full-Time Chief Needed for Cut In Fire Rates

Hagerstown Is Told All Other Requirements Are Subordinate.

Hagerstown, Md., April 20 (Spl.).—Hagerstown must engage a full-time fire chief, a step repeatedly opposed by the volunteer fire companies, in order to obtain a reduction in fire insurance rates, the mayor and council were informed by repesentatives of the Fire Underwriters Association, who said that all other requirements would be subordinate to that.

The reduction, if all requirements are met, would be 5 cents on $100. The present rate is 15 cents. It has been estimated that insurance carried on mercantile properties here is between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, and the savings, the council was told, would more than pay the salary of a full-time chief.

It also will be necessary to afford better protection for the fire-alarm system at City Hall.

Mayor I. M. Mertz indicated that no immediate action would be taken on the matter of a full-time chief, but that an investigation should be made. The present part-time chief is selected by a vote of delegates from each of the five companies, and is elected annually.

A full-time fire chief could only be removed for cause by the mayor and council. He would have authority to enforce discipline among fire company members, as well as supervise and instruct them, and would keep records of causes and losses from fire, as well as inspect buildings as to hazards.

Carroll Children's Drive Nets $2,200

$3,500 Sought; Campaign Extended Indefinitely.

Westminster, Md., April 20 (Spl.).—Reports from campaign committees last night revealed $2,200 had been raised in the drive for funds launched by the Carroll County Children's Aid Society April 2.

Although the drive was scheduled to close yesterday, reports were lacking from several districts, while other committee chairmen reported they needed additional time. The closing date of the campaign, in which it is hoped to raise $3,500, has been advanced indefinitely.

The reports showed that two districts, Mount Airy and Freedom, have already exceeded their quotas of $198.48 and $151.66, respectively. Freedom reporting receipts of $206.95 and Mount Airy, $312.75.

Children's Society To Seek $65,000

Randolph Williams Heads Campaign.

Richmond, April 20 (Spl.).—Solicitation of funds for the Children's Home Society will be made through committees now being organized to contact all of last year's contributors when the annual State campaign takes place April 29 to May 20.

Sunday schools have been asked to make a special offering for homeless children on Mother's Day, May 13. Sunday school children will be requested to give a penny for each year of their ages. Sixty-five thousand dollars is the quota for the campaign.

E. Randolph Williams is chairman of the drive. Working with him are former Gov. E. Lee Trinkle, of Roanoke, chairman of the finance council, and the Rev. Beverley D. Tucker, jr., rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Richmond.

County Needs Five Teachers

Larger Budget May be Set, Staff Increased and Schools Repaired.

Hagerstown, Md., April 20 (Spl.). Five more teachers would be added to the staffs of Washington County schools under the budget now being prepared by the board of education. It was indicated that the budget would be slightly higher than that of last year.

The school population has been increasing at the rate of from 400 to 500 new pupils annually. There are now an average of 50 pupils for each teacher in Hagerstown, and the law provides that teachers may be engaged for each 40 additional pupils.

The board hopes to repair schools through the FERA. Surveys are now being made in all schools.

The total budget for the last school year was $592,526, of which $336,931 was levied by the county and the remainder came from State funds.

Senators Ask Rise in Funds For District

Restoration of Items Cut by House to Be Sought.

Thomas Plans to Start Hearings on Bill Next Week.

Restoration of the District appropriation bill, which was slashed under the leadership of a small group in the House to something like the shape in which it was sent to Congress by the Budget Bureau will be sought by Senators when hearings on the measure are begun early next week.

A definite date has not been set for the hearings by Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, chairman of the District appropriations sub-committee.

Senator Thomas yesterday asked the District Commissioners to analyze the bill as passed by the House and prepare to submit for his subcommittee's consideration whatever amendments they deem necessary. Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor and budget officer, conferred briefly with Thomas by telephone and promised that District officials would be ready to go ahead early next week.

Thomas Silent on Bill.

Senator Thomas refused to make any comment on provisions of the House bill. He said he did not want to say anything which might be misinterpreted by members of the House. Neither would he comment on the House action in reducing the proposed $5,700,000 Federal appropriations to $4,364,295, the lowest since the present system of Government was established for the National Capital.

Other committee members took the same attitude. They said also that they had not had time to study the House bill.

Privately, some Senators expressed the belief that the House had not given sufficient careful consideration to the measure and had been persuaded to follow leaders who seemingly had been actuated by a petty spirit not in keeping with consideration of the Governmental affairs of a voteless people who could not defend themselves.

Point to Revisions.

Supporters of the District pointed out that the appropriations subcommittee, of which Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, is chairman, had favorably reported the bill carrying a Federal appropriation of $5,700,000 for the next fiscal year.

It was only after Representative Thomas Blanton (Democrat), Texas, had been defeated in his effort to reduce the District tax rate next year from $1.50 to $1.20 that Representative Cannon reduced the Federal appropriation to $4,364,295. This reduction, he argued, was justified because it represented 70 per cent of a PWA grant of $1,908,150 for sewer construction last year.

These facts and the House members' knowledge of them were the same after defeat of the Blanton-Cannon tax effort as they were at the time the committee recommended $5,700,000, it was contended.

Low Tax Rate Cited.

Effort of the Blanton-Cannon group to reduce the District tax rate was interpreted as a shrewd move to carry forward their project to wipe out all Federal appropriations for the District year after next. Many House members are convinced that the taxes in the District are the lowest in the country and should be raised to the high levels in most of their districts.

Had the Blanton-Cannon move succeeded, it was pointed out, Representatives would have been in a position next year to hold up to the House a picture of a much lower tax rate as an argument to their end.

Although the Senate Appropriations sub-committee is expected to restore many items stricken out of the bill by the House, it is not likely to go much, if any, beyond recommendations of the Budget Bureau, although that may be done in certain instances to give the Senate conferees trading material when they meet with House Representatives.

The bill, as passed by the House, carried $32,650,657.94. This compared with a total of $32,637,082.34 carried in the bill as reported by the Cannon sub-committee and $35,621,013.94 provided in the bill as it was received by the House from the Budget Bureau.

All's Well!

A burglar alarm shattered the early morning stillness of the Capitol yesterday. Capitol police darted down corridors, bristling with revolvers. From headquarters a scout car, its siren shrieking, rushed to the scene.

The combined forces found C. F. Pace, the Senate's disbursing officer, grinning confusedly. Realizing the Senate employes were to get their 5 per cent pay increase and his day consequently would be heavy, Pace had come to his office at 8:30 a. m. instead of 9, and forgotten, the night before to turn off the burglar alarm.

Someone in a blue uniform made a remark about the early bird and 5 per cent and everybody went away happy.

Bank Receiver Writ Sought

Woodridge-Langdon Offici Protest Appointment of Paid Functionary.

The Woodridge-Langdon Savings and Commercial Bank and two of its stockholders yesterday filed in District Supreme Ccurt a petition for an injunction preventing the Treasury Department from installing a paid receiver in the bank.

The petition recites that the bank had been informed that Eppa L. Norris, former executive officer, would be placed in charge of the bank. However, after the bank entered negotiations which resulted in its becoming a member of the Hamilton National Bank group, another receiver was appointed.

The appointment was made without knowledge or consent of the bank, it was charged, and the court is asked to set aside replacement of Norris, who is now in charge of the Woodridge branch.

Winchester, Va., April 20 (Spl.). Director General P. P. Arthur, of the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival, has received word from the War Department that Troop F, United States Cavalry, of Fort Myer, Va., has been ordered to proceed to Winchester for participation in the fete.

The troop is expected the day before the festival. It will camp on the Winchester Fair Grounds.

Bristol to Launch Relief.

Bristol, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—To combat the steady climb of relief rolls, which mounted 56 per cent in March, the Bristol (Va.) Welfare Department expects to launch its new work-relief program by the first of next week, Mrs. Margery Wyatt, director, said today.

Hearings Held On D.C. Parole, Welfare Bills

House Group Will Report Both Measures Minus Recommendation.

Bills to transfer the executive powers of the Board of Public Welfare to the District Commissioners and to amend the District parole act will be reported without recommendations by a Judiciary sub-committee to the House District Committee next Wednesday.

This was decided by Representative Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, yesterday following a lengthy hearing on the merits of the two bills sponsored by the city heads. Representative Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, the other member of the sub-committee present, favored amending the welfare bill in some particulars.

A speedy report on the measures was asked by Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman on behalf of the Commissioners. He told the sub-committee the change in administration would result in more efficiency.

Activities Increased.

Prettyman called attention to the increase in the activities of the welfare board since the inauguration of emergency relief divisions and declared that public welfare administration has become one of the major operations of the District government.

While he praised the work of the welfare board of nine members, who serve without compensation for six-year terms, he said the Commissioners believed the control of welfare institutions should rest directly in their hands.

He explained that the District heads plan to change the set-up so there will be a director of public welfare with three subdirectors, one for hospitals, one for penal institutions and another for case work.

Ask Delay on Bill.

The sub-committee was asked to delay action on the bill by Walter S. Ufford, representing the Monday Evening Club, to allow more time for consideration of the drastic change proposed by the Commissioners.

He said the Monday Evening Club favored the retention of a broad of citizens who would deal with the human aspects of public welfare.

Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, of the Voteless League of Women Voters, asked that action on the measure be delayed so that her organization could consider it. Evan H. Tucker, president of the Northeast Citizens Association, indorsed the bill in principle.

No opposition was expressed to the bill which would extend the parole privileges granted District residentp risoners to District prisoners in Federal penitentiaries.

District Work Bill Hearing Set Tuesday

Park Advocates Oppose Merger of Program With Relief Plan.

Public hearing on the $20,000,000 District public works bill was fixed yesterday for 10 a. m. Tuesday in the Senate District Committee room at the Capitol.

House and Senate District Committees will unite to consider the measure and hear the District Commissioners and other witnesses. Both Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, chairman of the House committee, and Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate committee, said the joint hearing will materially speed passage of the bill.

Arrangements for the meeting were compleed yesterday after Mrs. Norton had consulted members of her committee and a majority had approved the proposal advanced by Senator King.

Park Friends Against Merger.

Although the committees will hold joint hearings they will act separately, but their decisions are not expected to be so far apart as to place any major obstacles in the way of agreement.

Representatives of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission are expected to appear and urge that the public park development plan be not mixed up with the proposed public works program. The Park Commission wants their program to go forward under the existing Capper-Cramton park act.

As introduced by Senator King the works bill leaves to the discretion of the District Commissioners the allotment of a sum up to $2,000,000 to the Park Commission. It also provides repayment of the $20,000,000 should be combined with the repayment of borrowing for parks under the Capper-Cramton law, the division between the Public Works Administration, on the one hand, and the Federal Treasury, on the other, to be determined by the Commissioners.

Provides New Hospital.

Acceptance by Senator King of the Park Commission's objections to this program wiped out a potential snarl in consideration of the works bill.

Funds are to be allotted the District by the Public Works Administration. Seventy per cent is to be repaid by the District. The remaining 30 per cent is an outright gift similar to others, which have been made to States under the PWA. The King measure provides that no repayment need be made for three years. Interest at the rate of 4 per cent must be paid annually thereafter until the debt is wiped out.

Visitor to Monument Faints at 100 Feet

Desiring a bird's-eye view of the cherry blossoms, the young woman had climbed the monument stairs to the 100-foot level when she fainted.

Pair Held on Charge Of Stealing 22 Cents

Charged with stealing 22 cents, two colored men were held for the grand jury under bonds of $1,000 by Judge Ralph Given in Police Court yesterday.

The men, Charles Lepley, 17, and Joseph Pier, 22, both living in the 700 block of G street southeast, were accused of breaking into the house of David Wong, 700 block of Eleventh street southeast, late Thursday.

Colpoys to Take U. S. Marshal Post Monday

John B. Colpoys will be installed United States District marshal at 10:30 a. m. Monday in the District Supreme Court Building, succeeding Edgar C. Snyder, it was announced yesterday.

Detective Sergt. Howard Ogle points to the bullet hole in a stolen automobile used in a successful dash for freedom by two colored bandit suspects at Third and E streets southwest yesterday. A bullet-riddled hat was found in the machine, abandoned after the shooting.

Building Strike Continues Here

Plasterers on Labor-I. C. C. Structure Adamant in Demands.

Plasterers at the new Labor-Interstate Commerce Commission buildings yesterday began the second week of their strike, with efforts to settle the walkout at a standstill. They struck April 13 in protest against the setting of acoustical stone by marble setters instead of casters, who are affiliated with the Plasterers' International Union.

Edward A. Burnap, construction superintendent for James Stewart & Co., contractors, said there has been no indication of a settlement and wholesale layoffs will be necessary early next week.

Labor Department conciliators are trying to settle a similar jurisdictional dispute which is holding up completion of the new Norfolk, Va., postoffice. They have not been asked to intervene in the local fight, which is in the hands of officers of the two conflicting international unions.

Wife of Fireman Kills Self by Gas

Mrs. Daisy M. Ruffner, 31, Ends Life in Kitchen.

Despondency, believed caused by ill health, yesterday led Mrs. Daisy M. Ruffner, 31, former Government employe and wife of John Ruffner, District fireman, to commit suicide by inhaling gas in the kitchen of her home in the 1300 block of Fourty-fourth place northeast.

After her husband had gone to work, Mrs. Ruffner sealed the kitchen door and opened the gas jets on her stove. She was found, by her son, Jack, 11, about an hour later.

Warning Sounded On Autocratic Rule

Cather Raps New Policies in Address at Boyce.

Boyce, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—State Senator T. Russell Cather (Democrat), Winchester, in an address here last night, warned of a tendency now prevalent which would build up an autocratic government at Washington.

Speaking before the annual banquet of the home economics and agricultural departments of the Boyce Agricultural High School, to which more than 200 patrons were invited, Senator Cather urged a stricter drilling of the youth of today in the fundamental principles of individual liberty.

The speaker warned of the many new ideas being brought into the American system under the cloak of "necessity" by reason of the economic depression, and added that he hoped such ideas and practices would be but temporary.

Two Bandits Flee as Police Fire at Auto

Stolen Car Watched 24 Hours; Five Holdups Laid to Youths.

Pursued by a hail of bullets, two colored youths, suspected as bandits, escaped from a carefully laid police trap yesterday by driving down the sidewalk in the 300 block of E street southwest in a stolen car.

After terrifying pedestrians, the pair abandoned their bullet-riddled machine within two blocks of the scene of their break. Police believe the men to have held up five grocery stores Thursday night.

After their suspected car had been watched for 24 hours, the pair suddenly entered the machine as Detectives Thomas McVearry and James F. Phelps were relieving Headquarters Detectives Mike Mahoney and Tom Sweeney.

Cutting in front of them, detectives crowded the pair to the curb and ordered them to stop. Instead of complying, they veered their car up onto the curb and eluded pursuer by driving down the sidewalk.

Both men were described by police as being about 20 and shabbily dressed. A cap with a bullet hole was found in the abandoned car, but there was no blood stain on it.

D.A.R. in Charge Of Arbor Day

Arbor Day in the Capital will be marked this afternoon by tree planting ceremonies, under auspices of the D. A. R., in the Capitol Grounds and Anacostia Park. One hundred trees, representing almost every State, will be planted in National Historic Grove, Anacostia, while 31 red oaks, representing many Maryland D. A. R. chapters will be dedicated at the Capitol.

Boy Scout patrols will plant the 100 trees donated by D. A. R. chapters and other organizations. One came from the site of the first school and church in Ohio; another from Calvin Coolidge's birthplace. The others were transplanted from Mount Vernon, Valley Forge and scores of other historic spots.

At the Arbor Day exercises in Anacostia Park earth from many historic places in Maryland will be placed around the trees by Boy Scouts.

Hurlers Fail Again, Nats Lose Third in Row, Bowing to A's, 9-6

Plate Attack Falters In Pinches

11 Washington Men Are Left on Bases as Hitters Idle.

Weaver Gives Up 4 Runs in First; Rally in Sixth Short.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor, The Post).

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Pa., April 20.—The tail-spinning Nats today combined a woeful lack of batting punch in the pinches with some Washington pitching that had quantity, but no quality, which is being noted by way of introducing the fact they collected their third straight defeat.

The sad figures were 9 to 6, a testimonial to the unerring aim of three of the four Washington pitchers, who pitched 15 base hits off the Philadelphia bats at inopportune moments and maintained the motif of Joe Cronin's mound staff, which has succeeded in failing daily ever since the season opened four days ago.

Weaver Hard Hit.

The chief culprit was Monte Weaver, who found himself in an endurance contest with Mr. Mack's young men in the first inning, when he finally made good his escape with four large and luscious runs scored against him. After that the Nats were trying to get back in the ball game, and almost succeeded.

It is easier to tell how the Nats lost than how the A's won. There was the little incident in the third inning, when, with the bases full and the Athletics' lead reduced to 5-2, Buddy Myer hit one of Johnny Marcum's pitches a mile—straight up—and saw it come down in the mitt of Catcher Hayes for the third out. Incidentally, a moment before, with the bases still packed, Pinch Hitter Dave Harris had fouled out harmlessly.

Joe Cronin Fails.

There was another little incident very improtant to the Athletics in the sixth inning, when the Nats, in the midst of a four-run rally, had reduced the score to 8-6. Clean-up man Joe Cronin was at bat with the bases packed and two out. Bill Dietrich, the second A's pitcher, had retreated from the mound under duress, and bulky Bob Kline came in to pitch to Cronin. Cronin slugged the first pitch several hundred feet into the air where is came to repose in the handy mitt of Catcher Hayes.

The tying runs were on base again in the seventh, the bases were full in fact, when Buddy Myer socked the ball up into the heavens only to Second Baseman Rabbit Warstler snuff out the Washington hopes with an easy catch behind second base.

This Warstler, the little shortstop the A's acquired from the Red Sox during the winter's deals, was a .230 hitter last season, but he was a 1.000 batter today. On the first trip to the plate he lashed out a double and then followed with three singles, drawing a walk in his fifth appearance to give him an unsullied record for the day.

The ball game crashed down about Weaver's ears in the first inning when five straight hits rattled off the A's bats before a man was out. The single into left field by Jimmy Foxx was a flukey, wind-blown affair, but there was no complaint against the other wallops, and Weaver imposed a four-run deficit on his mates before the inning was over.

Marcum Is Routed.

Young Johnny Marcum, who had held the Nats in subjection for three innings, capitulated in the fourth. Manush walked, Cronin and Schulte singled, Bluege singled and Pinch Hitter Dugas walked, with two runs across and three on base and one out when Pinch Hitter Dave Harris failed miserably, flying to Foxx. Then came Myer's pope to Hayes, and that rally was over.

The Athletics came back for more in the fourth against Jack Russell and got two more when Cramer inserted a triple between singles by Warstler and Finney. The got another in the fifth on a single by Johnson that was followed by a passed ball and an overthrow to second by Rookie Catcher Klumpp, and the Nats went into the sixth, six runs behind.

Only Two Runs Behind.

They came out of it only two runs behind when Districh encountered a wild spree. He struck out Schulte and passed Kuhel and Bluege. Klumpp singled and Pinch Hitter Travis took a third strike. Myer walked, Stone singled and Manush walked. A couple of wild pitches figured in this somewhere and the Nats had four runs with the bases still full when Kline came in to force Cronin to pop out.

Well, came the seventh, and they made another threat, filling the bases with two out on singles by Schulte, Klumpp and Crowder, but Buddy Myer was not performing his batting chores today and thus vanished the ball game.

Mrs. Hill Wins Keeler Golf Tourney

Shoots 97 Gross, 83 Net; Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Smith Tied for Second.

MRS. BISHOP HILL, of Chevy Chase Club, won the Phylls Keeler Memorial golf tournament yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club, with a 97 gross. She had a 14 handicap for an 83 net.

Mrs. Hill, one of the better known players at Chevy Chase and a member of the first team of the club, was out in 46 but slumped and took a 51 on the stretch. Her margin of victory was very close, as Mrs. David Clark, of Army and Navy, former Virginia champion, returning to the District after an absence of several months, came through with 87—3—84, and Mrs. W. Morrison Smith had 102—18—84.

Mrs. Clark's Play Features.

Mrs. Clark was awarded low gross honors and Mrs. Smith was presented with the second low net prize.

Although Mrs. Hill won the tournament, it remained for Mrs. Clark to feature in scoring. The Army and Navy star, who is known to scorn the use of women's tees and play from the back tees in matches with men golfers, shot a 44 on the first nine, and covered the incoming side in 43, finishing with 5—6, three over par for the last two holes. With the least bit of luck, Mrs. Clark would easily have scored an 80 over the hilly Washington links.

Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, wife of the Congressional pro, had a grand chance to win the chief prize, but she came to grief on the seventeenth hole, a tricky 350-yarder, and used up ten strokes. The former California debutante finished with 98—13—85, one shot too many to win a prize. Mrs. C. P. Medley, of Indian Spring, and Mrs. H. Kane, of Columbia, had nets of 85 each, while Mrs. Hugh T. Nicolson, of the host club, twice former District champion, did a 92—8—86. Mrs. H. R. Quinter, of Columbia, also had an 86 net.

Succeeds Mrs. Powell.

The new champion, Mrs. Hill, succeeds Mrs. J. T. Powell, of Manor. More than 110 women competed in the first big event of the year, and all indicated that they would be ready for The Washington Post match play with handicap tournament on Monday, April 30, at Chevy Chase.

Tigers Down Tribe, 4-0, In Duel

Score All Runs in Ninth; Carl Fischer Allows Only Five Hits.

Lloyd Brown Pounded in Final Frame; Each Strikes Out Six.

CLEVELAND, April 20 (AP).—Scoring all their runs in the ninth inning, the Detroit Tigers bested the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 0, today in a duel between two southpaw hurlers. Carl Fischer, winning hurler, held the Tribe to five hits.

Lloyd Brown, on the slab for the Indians, breezed along easily until the ninth. Then Goslin opened with a walk and was safe at second when he beat Brown's throw on Walker's sacrifice.

Greenberg also sacrificed, and with Walker on second, Goslin on third, Doljack was purposely passed, filling the bases. At that point Marvin Owen stepped to the plate and rocketed a double off the right field wall, good for three runs. Owen reached third on Averill's bad throw to the plate and scored the final counter a moment later on a sacrifice by Fischer.

Fans Three in Row.

Both hurlers marked up six strikeouts, all in the first eight innings. In the third, Brown fanned Fisher, Rogell and Gehringer in a row.

Cleveland missed its best chance to score when, in the third inning, Walker dropped Knickerbocker's drive for a two-base error with none out. Knickerbocker, however, went out at third when L. Brown rolled to Fischer, Holland struck out and Pytlak's single that followed was wasted.

Two double plays by Knickerbocker and Trosky and one by Owen, Gehringer and Greenberg figured in the battle. The best was in the fourth after Cochrane walked and took second on Walker's single. Knickerbocker stabbed Greenberg's bounder, stepped on second to get Walker by a narrow margin, and whipped to Trosky to get Greenberg at first.

Semifinal Singles Are Halted by Rain

Shields and Rainville Tied; Stoefen Wins First.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 20 (U.P.).—Rain halted the two semifinal singles matches of the Mason and Dixon tennis tourney today, leaving two United States Davis Cup players with stiff fights still on their hands before achieving the final.

In the top bracket Francis X. Shields, of New York, top ranking American player, was at set-all with Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, mainstay of the Canadian Davis Cup team. The tall New Yorker won the first set 6—3, but dropped the second, 6—8.

Meanwhile, the other surviving members of the Davis Cup squad, huge Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, won his first set from diminutive Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, 6—2, but Grant was leading in the second, 3—2, when they finally left the court.

Lee-Jackson Defeats Fredericksburg, 8-2

Fredericksburg, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Fredericksburg High School got into the ball game in the ninth inning and stayed long enough to score 2 runs and rob Pitcher Ayres of a shutout, but Lee-Jackson High, of Alexandria, under the air-tight hurling of a pitcher who was invincible for eight innings, romped off with an 8-to-2 triumph.

Fourteen strikeouts by Ayres featured the game. Sublett, Alexandrian first sacker, was the Lee-Jackson big gun with four hits, including a home run. Fredericksburg managed to get five well-scattered hits during the latter part of the contest. The Yellow Jacket contest was featured by the heroic relief efforts of their crippled regular pitcher, Payne, who tightened up too late to save the ball game for his team.

Clifton Forge, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—The Clifton Forge High School baseball team opened its home season and defeated Parry McCluer High School, of Buena Vista, 6 to 1.

Central Trims Tech, 7 to 3, In Series

Scores Seventh Win of Yea Pitcher Liggett Hero in Defeat.

CENTRAL and Tech High pitchers declared a boycott on base hits yesterday at Eastern Stadium, but the Central batting crew violated the embargo long enough to smuggle through four in one inning, account for the deciding runs of a 7-to-3 victory and get off to an impressive start in the quest for the interhigh championship.

The result was practically to eliminate Tech's hope of retaining the title it won last year and shot Central up to a tie with Eastern for the league leadership, with one win and no defeats apiece.

It was Central's seventh victory in seven starts this season, but was earned only after encountering considerably stiffer opposition than had been anticipated from the lowly rated Tech nine. Pitcher Bill Liggett was the chief factor in the surprise party to greet the heavily favored Centralites, allowing but six hits and going the route.

Bill suffered a momentary letdown in the fourth inning, however, after holding Central hifless for the first three frames, and the powerful Central offensive went into action to nail him for three doubles and a single. By the time the Tech twirler had returned to form, Central had a 4-to-0 lead and the game in the bag as events subsequently turned out.

Track at Hagerstown Conditioned for Races

Hagerstown, Md., April 20 (Spl.).—The Hagerstown Fair half-mile racing strip is being put into condition by a force of men under General Manager Harold F. Bester in preparation for the ten-day race meet beginning here Tuesday, May 15. Bester announced that post time for the first race each day would be 2 p. m.

There will be stalls for 350 horses and Bester said that Secretary Edward J. Brennan has assured him that they all will be filled and that a high class of horses will race here.

Fredericksburg Plans Two-Day Horse Show

Fredericksburg, Va., April 20 (Spl.).—Twenty-six classes will be run off in the two-day horse show of the Fredericksburg Hunt Club May 29 and 30, C. Archer Smith, secretary and treasurer of the show, announces.

The special committee in charge of the show includes Emmett R. Colbert, president; Simon Ulman, vice president; C. Archer Smith, secretary and treasurer; W. M. Buckley, general manager, and the following directors: L. R. Colbert, Claire D. Schlemmer, Duff Green, sr., Charles H. Hurkamp, John Comer, T. Benton Gayle, Dr. Frank C. Pratt, R. G. Hildup and Joseph M. Goldsmith.

Hornsby Picking Cubs To Win National Flag

Chicago, April 20 (AP).—Rogers Hornsby, pilot of the St. Louis Browns, who managed the Chicago Cubs until he was replaced by Charlie Grimm midway of the 1932 season, thinks the Cubs will win the National League championship this year.

"The Cubs have the power to do it," the Rajah said today. "George Watkins will make the Giants tougher, though, and Red Lucas should help keep Pittsburgh in the battle.

"And I'll bet the Browns don't finish last in the American League," he added.

Arm Sore, Feathers Quits Cardinals' Team

Knoxville, Tenn., April 20 (AP).—Beattie Feathers, University of Tennessee football star, was back in Knoxville today after a spring tryout with the Cincinnati baseball team. He said he had asked and received his outright release from the Reds.

Feathers said he had been bothered with a sore arm. If his arm improves, Feathers said he might report to Beckley, W. Va., of the Middle Atlantic League, a Cincinnati farm.

Giants Defeat Braves for 4 in Row

Cantwell Is Routed by Rally; Schumacher Fails to Last.

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP).—The Giants crossed Ben Cantwell up with a couple of timely bunts in the sixth inning today and started a four-run rally that enabled them to continue their victory march with a 7-to-3 triumph over the Boston Braves in the first contest of the series. It was the champions' fourth straight victory.

The rally, which broke a 3-3 tie, started when Travis Jackson bounced a single off the pitcher's glove. Watkins bunted to Cantwell and he threw wild to second trying to catch Jackson. Then Vergez promptly laid down another bunt and beat it out to fill the bases. Cantwell forced in a run by hitting Pinch-Batsman Frank O'Doul, and Joe Moore slashed out a double to send two more home. O'Doul stopped at third, then scored after Blondy Ryan's fly.

Veteran Hurlers Fall.

Both Cantwell and Hal Schumacher, a pair of last year's outstanding pitchers, failed to go the route. Schumacher was wild and was removed in the fifth for Johnny Salveson, who in turn gave way to Herman Bell after O'Doul batted for him. Cantwell, after fanning six giants, went out for a pinch hitter in the eighth and Leo Mangum finished.

A homer by Mel Ott started the Giants off to their first rally in the second. A single by Jackson, Vergez's double and Schumacher's base hit completed the three-run burst.

A circuit swat by Marty McManus, followed by Buck Jordan's single, a walk to Randy Moore and Wally Berger's single gave the Braves two runs in the third, and they tied the count in the fourth when Cantwell singled and Bill Urbanski drove him home with a triple.

G. W. Varsity Defeats Frosh Netmen, 8 to 1

George Washington's varsity tennis team refused to take a day off despite the cancellation of the match with West Virginia and soundly trounced the Colonial cubs, 8-to-1, at Columbia Country Club.

Spencer Howell, former Western High star and a leading junior player, was the only freshman to triumph, defeating Walker decisively, 7—5, 6—0. Kent Boyle was the only other yearling to throw a scare into the regulars, taking Langtry three sets before losing, 7—5, 4—6, 11—9.

The Colonial varsity is prepping for a heavy schedule next week, meeting Lafayette, Wake Forest and Johns Hopkins.

Edwards (Varsity) defeated Dial, 6—4, 6—4; Robinson (Varsity) defeated Gwin, 6—1, 6—1; Bennett (Varsity) defeated Mitchell, 6—0, 6—3; Moore (Varsity) defeated Timberlake, 6—1, 6—4; Howell (Frosh) defeated Walker, 7—5, 6—0; Langtry (Varsity) defeated Boyle, 7—5, 4—6, 11—9. Tom Gorman Resigns As Blackhawks' Pilot

Chicago, April 20 (AP).—Tom Gorman, who managed the Chicago Blackhawks in the world's hockey championship, resigned today to devote his interests to the Ontario Racing Association, of which he is secretary.

The announcement of his resignation, rumored during the Stanley Cup series, was made by Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Blackhawks, who said a successor had been selected, but declined to divulge his identity.

Dodgers Win, 5-0, As Rookies Shine

Leonard Stops Phils; Two Homers by Koenecke.

Brooklyn, April 20 (AP).—A pair of Dodger rookies, Emil Leonard and Len Koenecke, today accomplished the downfall of the Phillies for the fourth time this season as they led Brooklyn to a 5-to-0 victory in the series opener.

Leonard, making his first start for Brooklyn, blanked the Phils with six hits. Koenecke, besides furnishing some of the excellent support given the young knuckle ball hurler, walloped two home runs and two singles, accounting for four tallies, and wasn't put out all afternoon. His first time up he reached first on an error. Ed Holley and Ted Kleinhans were the victims of the circuit blows.

Round Table, Favorite, Leads From Start to Score Havre de Grace Feature Race

Repeal Bows By Length In Drive

Rhadamanthus Is Third After Chasing Leader Most of Way.

My Boss, Tight Wad, Whoa Back Among Day's Winners.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent).

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Apjril 20.—S. W. Labrot's Round Table, a son of Sir Gallahad III, has been improving with leaps and bounds since racing returned to Maryland this spring. Today he lived up to promise by winning a mile and 70 yards test for 3-year-old maidens which held the principal interest on the program.

Round Table, nominated for the Preakness, was backed into farovitism and responded with a front-running effort that brought him home a length in advance of Repeal, a 37-to-1 shot, and two lengths ahead of Rhadamanthus.

Ridden by J. Hunter, leading winning rider of the present meeting, the Sir Galahad 3d—Priscilla Ruley colt reveled in the muddy underfooting and despite scoring in a drive his triumph was one of the most popular of the afternoon as he was the first successful choice to score. Chasing the winner to the conclusion of the journey was Mrs. E. A. Smith's Repeal, a rank outsider, with third landed by C. V. Whitney's oddly marked Rhadamanthus, and Banners Flying in command of the three others engaged.

Victor by Length.

Round Table took up the running directly after the seven under silks left the Bahr starting gate. Jockey J. Hunter then had his mount under smooth stride for the remainder of the trip to have him over the line victorious by a length. Repeal, driving through a wide opening at the stretch turn when the leaders swung wide, managed to land the place by a half-length and Rhadamanthus a length in advance of Banners Flying.

A sharp drop in temperature from that of Thursday failed to have any serious effect on the attendance. Rain that fell during the night again brought about a muddy strip.

Whoa Back Triumphs.

The first race furnished a sinew-straining finish when Whoa Back came from behind in the stretch run and was up right at the end to beat the odds-on favorite, Hilese, out a nose. The latter made all of the pace and had a three-length lead coming into the home stretch. In the final furlong she kept bearing over to the outside. Languorous, which was coupled with the winner as the Ziegler entry, finished third. Shaggy Ann, a forward contender in the early stages, stopped to a walk in the final stages.

Ten ordinary sprinters met for the three-quarters of the second event, and it found outsiders garnering the main portions of the prize money when Tight Wad, Black Song and Mss Glace drove to the end of the journey in that order.

Jockey H. Fischer and H. Massey's consistent plater, My Boss, worked in harmony to accomplish victory in the 6 furlongs of the third offering, in which a field of seven measured strides over the 6-furlong distance. Second in demand with the players, My Boss came from last position in the small field, and his score was achieved in a sensational finish when he was up in the last 50 yards. At the end the H. Massey performer was over the winning line to defeat Texas Tommy, from the F. J. Kearns stable, with third landed by the favorite, Bride Elect.

Harky Surprises Mildly.

The sixth event brougt out a half dozen ordinary distance performers to test their ability over the mile and seventy yard route and there was a mild surprise with the running when F. J. Valli's Harky landed major honors. His score came in a thrilling drive and it was just a nose that separated him from All Rowes, the choice, for the number when they flashed over the line leading Cloudy Day by six lengths.

Only four remained from an original field of seven to try for conclusions in the mile and 70 yards of the closing number. In this, Honeysweet eazy fashion to pay her backers $4. God o' War followed the winner to the end of the test with Biff before the lone other representative.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

In Mt. Rainier National Park the glaciers push steadily forward, yet strange as it seems, they are constantly moving backward. The entire glacier moves ahead, but melting at the lower extremity causes it to retreat farther and farther into the mountains.

On Nisqually Glacier, which Supt. O. A. Tomlinson and Park Naturalist C. Frank Brockman have been studying for several years, the forward movement has been found to vary between 4 and 15 inches a day. The lesser movement occurs in the fall, winter and spring, while in the summer the body of ice slides forward more than a foot each 24 hours. However, the glacier melts away at the lower terminus at a rate which causes it to lose ground at the rate of 60 feet a year.

Even at this rate, park officials point out, the glacier will still be a glacier for 5000 years.

Winter sport fans in Barton, Mich., have found that tightly packed straw makes a very good substitute for snow when snow is not available for ski rides. Jumps of 70 feet or more are not uncommon on the slides shown above. The idea may have had its origin in Hawaii where, generations ago, the ruling class had long slides constructed with dry grass on the surfaces. These Hawaiian slides, sometimes a mile or more in length, were used for warm weather tobogganing.

Dear Al: Havre de Grace, April 20.

The $7,500 Philadelphia Handicap will hold the center of the racing stage tomorrow and it will mark the 1934 debut of Equipoise, the C. V. Whitney ace, which aims to clip Sun Beau's all-time money-winning mark. The race has drawn a field of eight, ranging from 4 years upward, and a thrilling battle is in prospect. The promise of an off track seems to brighten the chances of Equipoise's rivals. The Big Train has worked well, but just how he will conduct himself on a heavy course and under 130 pounds is questionable. He faces many mud-runners, including Springsteel, Silent Shot, Caesar's Ghost and others. The absence of Col. Bradley's Blessed Event is something of a surprise. Many believed he would win. A crowd of 20,000 is expected. Three winners for the boy today.

BILL.

First race—Arbitrary has been to the races three times and has improved with eachc appearance, being beaten a nose in his last. Appears to be well placed here. King's Pleasure is consistent and figures second best. Dasher to take care of the others.

Second race—Hacky H. will favor the going tomorrow and that recent effort attests to his fitness. He likes the Graw track and may skid home ahead of the formidable Drombo. Fred Almy for the show end.

Third race—I'm going to try to make Fervid defeat this field. She drops 5 pounds and is as fit as hands can make her. St. Nick and Hastipast to chase the top one to the wire.

Fifth race—Equipoise's trials point to condition and the C. V. Whitney representative, if right, should take care of this field despite that crushing impost. I'm hopping on the bandwagon in picking Equipoise, but I have much respect for Gay World. This one has been conditioned in actual competition and may be the surprise of the race. His Bowie win was impressive. Springsteel likes the course and drops a load of weight.

Navy Oarsmen Will Oppose Princeton

Will Seek Revenge Today for Beating in 1933; Both Crews Fit.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 20 (Spl.).—Oarsmen of the Naval Academy and Princeton University worked out under choppy water conditions today as their final prep for their annual brushes on Severn River tomorrow afternoon. The regatta will be for varsity and junior varsity eights, and both races will be rowed over a course of 1¾ miles straightaway. It will be the opening of the local rowing season.

Navy and Princeton were among the leaders in aquatics last season, and the fact that both varsity crews are made up of 50 per cent veteran material enhances the interest in the main attraction. Moreover, the Tigers handed the Middies their only defeat, hence the latter will be out for revenge.

Crews in Fine Form.

Following their final workout, the rival mentors, "Buck" Walsh, of Navy, and Gordon Sykes, of Princeton, pronounced their charges in fine fettle for their early season effort.

The Nassau boatloads hold an advantage over their rivals in each instance, the Tiger varsity being the more ponderous with a 5-pound average edge, while the visiting Jayvees are about 1 pound better.

The regatta is scheduled for 3 p. m., dependent upon weather and water, the Jayvees' race to be pulled first. The brushes top an interesting program of other sports for the afternoon. Next in interest will be the field and track meet with Maryland at 1:45 p. m. and a meet between the plebes and Eastern High, of Washington, starting simultaneously. Other contests are varsity baseball with Gettysburg at 2 p. m., varsity tennis with Georgetown at 2:30 p. m., varsity lacrosse with Penn State at 3 p. m. and plebe baseball with York Collegiate Institute.

†Middleburg Stable-William Ziegler, Jr. entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHOA BACK (entry), $7.70, $2.40, $2.90; HELISE, $2.30, $2.40; LANGUOROUS (entry), $2.90.

WHOA BACK, outrun in the first three furlongs, gained steadily during the closing stages and, coming through on the inside of HILISE, finished resolutely to get up in the last strides; HILISE disposed of SHAGGY ANN without effort when urged, came wide during the stretch drive and faltered badly approaching the finish. LANGUOROUS appeared to dislike the footing and was never formidable. SHAGGY ANN displayed early foot. She swung very wide into the home stretch and lost all chance. HOT GRIDDLE raced green. DONNA TUTTI had a flash of early speed.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:03. Off at 3:08. Winner, Mrs. G. L. Hamilton's ch. g. (3), by Canter—Betsy Barth. Trained by G. L. Hamilton. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:16 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIGHT WAD, $23.00, $13.10, $7.80; BLACK SONG, $12.40, $8.70; MISS GLACE, $3.90.

TIGHT WAD, away well, but lacking early speed, moved up stoutly in the final five-sixteenths when taken to the outside, came in a determined fashion when straightened into the home stretch and, under strong handling, was up in the last fifty yards. BLACK SONG, hustled into a short lead early, disposed of KARONITE after a half mile, and then fought it out with rare energy when challenged. MISS GLACE went forwardly placed from the beginning. She colsed with good courage in the final drive when securing racing room on the inside. COME SEVEN colsed with a rush after being slow to get going. KARONITE began tiring after a half mile. BONNIE DHU could not offer menacing contention. The others were outrun.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:35. Off at 3:37. Winner, H. Massey's b. g. (3), by Dodge—Lengoe. Trained by E. Anthony. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:49, 1:16 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MY BOSS, $9.20, $4.40, $3.00; TEXAS TOMMY, $6.20, $3.90; BRIDE ELECT, $2.80.

MY BOSS, as usual slow to get going, was taken to the outside when moving up strongly and, coming with a bold rush, caught and passed TEXAS TOMMY inside the final sixteenth. TEXAS TOMMY showed good ability in the footing, saved ground when moving into a clear advantage, but hung nearing the finish. BRIDE ELECT, kept o nthe inside in the deepest footing from the beginning, weakened under strong pressure and punishment. MURMURING was hard ridden the entire trip. PASS was unable to reach the leaders at any stage. HAWK MOTH was rushed to his field while on the outside. He tired during the final issue. TRILLIUM showed a dull effort.

FOURTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $800. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:11. Winner, S. W. Labrot's b. c. (3), by Sir Gallahad III—Priscilla Ruby. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:16, 1:42 3-5, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROUND TABLE, $4.40, $3.20, $2.40; REPEAL, $17.70, $4.90; RHADMANTHUS, $3.20.

ROUND TABLE outran his field to the first turn, went into an easy lead midway of the back stretch, was steadied thereafter, then held on stoutly when finishing wide during the stretch run. REPEAL worked his way up on the inside, saved a great deal of ground whe nthe leaders swung wide into the home stretch, then closed with good courage under punishment. RHADMANTHUS, urged stoutly from the beginning, weakened under punishment in the last quarter mile. BANNERS FLYING moved up strongly when leaving the back stretch, but hung in the final drive. GALON LAD went well for the final six furlongs. The others were never factors.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:39. Off at 4:39½. Winner, J. C. Clark's b. g. (5), by Sun Briar—Hathor. Trained by W. E. Martin. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:49 1-5, 1:15, 1:42 2-5, 1:49 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAGGERSON, $3.90, $3.30, $2.60; EVEN UP, $5.10, $3.60; ONE CHANCE, $2.90.

HAGGERSON, racing as if superior to his company, sprinted into a long lead without effort when reaching the home stretch, went along under his own courage thereafter and held easy until the end. EVEN UP, prominent from the beginning, colsed with good courage when shaken up, but was unable to menace the winner. ONE CHANCE, sluggish in the early racing, moved up stoutly on the outside in the last half mile, saved ground during the stretch drive while under punishment and made up ground slowly. AXENTEA could not threaten the leaders early and then weakened when placed to a drive. FIELD GOAL was outrun throughout. PRINCE ABBOT had no excuses.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:09. Off at 5:09½. Winner, F. J. Valli's b. c. (4), by Wrack—Plaisance. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:16, 1:42 3-5, 1:48 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HARKY, $8.10, $3.40, $2.50; ALL ROWES, $2.70, $2.20; CLOUDY DAY, $2.60.

HARKY, inclined to bear out at the first turn, was repeatedly taken up when straightened into the back stretch. He was taken to the outside for the final drive, but wekened fast in the closing furlong when in command and barely lasted to stall off ALL RO

Stocks Rally Nine-Tenths In Heavy Sales

New York, April 20 (AP).—Stocks rallied in the last hour today after a featureless market during the earlier trading. Volume expanded to 1,911,320 shares, the best since February 26, thanks largely to the late revival of buying interest.

With dollars declining and commodities firmer, stock traders doubtless thought their market was entitled to become more aggressive on the up side, especially since it had been able to hold its own throughout the precipitate plunge of the Chicago cereals.

Improvement was well diversified, although the market closed under the top and there was a handful of soft spots. The average net advance was just short of a point.

Francs Above Parity.

The dollar saw French francs move above the new parity for the first time since devaluation, accompanied by stronger rates for other gold currencies. To some, the move had distinct speculative connotations, reflecting a recurrence of European rumors that inflationary forces were again picking up ground in this country.

Probably these views were based in part on a theory that Washington would "do something" to stop the break in grain prices here. Coincidentally, Mr. Roosevelt let it be known that he thought silver could best be helped by international agreement.

The stock rally started among the aircrafts as Postmaster General Farley opened bids on the new mail contracts. Aviation Corporation, Sperry, Wright Aero, Douglas, and United Aircraft became active.

Dairy Issues Stimulated.

Dairy company issues were stimulated by recent reports of better business and by word of a pending milk price increase here. Gold mining issues had recovered from yesterday's nervousness, but were not particularly active, Dome and McIntyre firming major fractions.

Auburn was heavy and U. S. Smelting lost a point. Mohawk Mills, Briggs and National Supply advanced.

Rails took the upgrade without much difficulty. Santa Fe and Union Pacific provided leadership with gains of more than a point each. Last week's carloading figures represented an advance of larger than seasonal proportions, with miscellaneous freight contributing about half the improvement.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Program for Spending a Billion or So to Help the Heavy Industries Indicates What Has Come to Be Regarded as Mere Details.

By Ralph West Robey.

From the slowness with which it is moving it is apparent that the Administration is encountering difficulties in the development of its home renovation campaign. The idea began to be talked about several months ago as a possible further "recovery" move, although at the time it generally was considered as a bit too fantastic to be taken seriously. Then, about a month ago, the plan broke into full publicity as a scheme that was viewed sympathetically by the Administration. A few days later the project was given an official status through a press conference of Frank C. Walker, director of the National Emergency Council. At that time, April 7, it was declared the "final" draft of the proposal had been completed the preceding day.

According to the latest information, however, the details of the idea still are in the "formative stage." It now is "hoped" that everything will be settled within the next two weeks. These "details" are given as such questions as how the plan is to be administered, whether it shall apply only to private homes or be extended to include industry and business, what new credit legislation is needed, and the degree to which the guarantee to be given by the Government will cover the loans made.

Problems Still Open Cover Four Points.

In other words, granting the report of the present state of the plan is correct, the principal questions that remain to be settled are those concerning management, scope, legal authority, and the extent of Government participation. These, to repeat, are viewed as mere details, so that it is expected the whole scheme will be completed within a few days.

To those of us who so far have been unable to step-up our economic thinking to the tempo of the New Deal such an attitude toward a problem is a bit confusing. In the days in which we were trained in analysis and logic it was considered that management, scope, legal authority and Government participation were the very heart of Federal projects. It is somewhat difficult, therefore, for us to forget this early training and adopt the view that all such matters are insignificant details and must not be permitted to stand in the way of seeing all such planning in its true light.

Must Change if We Are to Appreciate "Brain Trust."

Quite obviously, nevertheless, we must overcome this difficulty if we are to learn to appreciate the contributions of the "brain trust." We must realize that the only real issue involved is a broad social problem—in this case the question of the desirability of getting a billion or so dollars spent in a way that will be of direct benefit to the heavy industries.

Once this aspect is settled, the problem is solved. Just who handles the expenditure, what it is for, what specific legislation is needed, and whether it should be guaranteed as sound by the Government, are of no moment. They can be left to the junior members of the "brain trust" and others incapable as yet of conceiving the broader issues involved. The real planners for the welfare of our 130,000,000 people must not be expected to do more than furnish the general idea.

Cotton Prices Advance After Early Decline

May Closes at 11.62 as General Market Rises 2 to 4 Points.

New York, April 20 (AP).—Cotton rallied after an early decline today, getting support from covering or rebuying by recent sellers who were influenced by the action of the wheat and stock markets. July cotton, after selling off to 11.58, advanced to 11.74 and closed at 11.72, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 2 to 4 points.

The opening was 9 to 12 points off, May selling off to 11.47 and October to 11.72, in response to easy Liverpool cables and overnight selling orders. There were also a few Southern selling orders here, and Liverpool was reported a seller at times during the day. Demand from the trade and scattering sources was sufficient to absorb the offerings, however, and the market soon turned steadier.

Dollar Turns Easy.

The easier turn in the dollar and rallies in the wheat and stock markets seemed to bring in buying later, and trading became more active on the afternoon advance which carried May up to 11.63, and October to 11.89, or about 15 to 17 points above the morning low and 4 to 6 points net higher. Further realizing and a little Southern selling were encountered on the advance and closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the best for the day.

May liquidation continued but was less active than recently and was again absorbed by the trade. Some buying of near months was attributed to brokers with Japanese connections, presumably to fix prices.

The weaker dollar was presumably a factor in the late afternoon advance, while failure of the early bulges to meet more liquidation was regarded as indicating a healthy technical condition.

Exports today 18,299, making 6,408,206 so far this season. Port receipts, 14,422. United States port stocks 3,050,794.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was quiet, with the trade apparently inclined to hold aloof pending developments on the disposition of the tax bill at Washington and silver legislation. Prices were generally steady and closed 2 to 3 points net higher, influenced by the steadiness of most other commodities and the advance in stocks. Sales were only ten contracts, including six exchanges. Bleachable spot nominal; May closed 5.20, July 5.42, September 5.64, October 5.72.

Coffee Bonds Of San Paulo Will Be Paid

New York, April 20.—Speyer & Co. and J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, U. S. A., fiscal agents for the State of San Paulo 7 per cent coffee realization loan 1930, announce that a supplementary drawing has taken place for redemption today of $194,500 bonds of the loan. Numbers of these bonds are being published today. Drawn bonds will be paid in New York on the basis of $5.16½ equals £1 sterling, or at the rate of $1.-061.34 for each $1,000 drawn bond. Accrued interest on the above bonds will be paid, without premium, from April 1, 1934 to April 20, 1934.

The loan contract provided for the redemption on April 1, 1934, of $1,750,000 bonds, but the funds available for this purpose, after absorbing the reserve fund and providing for the payment due on the coupons of the above issue; allowed for the redemption on that date of only $1,255,000 bonds, which, together with the $194,500 bonds repayable on April 20, will make a total of $1,449,500 bonds redeemed. After retirement of these bonds there will remain outstanding $24,-137,000 of the $35,000,000 bonds originally issued in the United States of America.

Rail Industry Is Born Again, Babson Says

Financial Expert Traces Roads Through Darkness To New Light.

By Roger W. Babson.

Babson Park, Fla., April 20.—Two years ago practically every railroad on this continent was headed for receivership. Today the vast majority of the leading carriers are staging a comeback.

A brief discussion of the new factors and problems facing the industry, therefore, is in order at this time.

Railroads received a terrible jolt during the depression. Carloadings dropped from a weekly average of 1,014,000 in 1929 to 543,000 in 1932. Passenger traffic had a similar decline. Naturally the roads could make no corresponding reduction in their heavy fixed charges.

Roads Earning Interest.

Accordingly, in 1932, only 14 of the major systems were able to earn the full interest on their bonds; and of these only 6 were able to maintain dividend payments. However, traffic recovery, plus huge operating economies, allowed most carriers to get back into the black by the last quarter of 1933. The first three months of 1934 have shown further gains. Carloadings have been consistently improving and monthly net operating income is more than double that of a year ago.

This improvement in traffic has naturally strengthened the financial condition of the roads. The fact that only $99,000,000 of railroad securities were sold to the public last year, against $1,026,000,000 in 1920, shows how low railroad credit dropped. It now appears that the largest railroad maturity in 1934 will be successfully refunded.

This is a significant indicator. Likewise, an index of prices of 20 leading stocks and an index of 15 bond yields reveal the growing popularity of railroad securities. Since June, 1932, railroad stocks, as measured by this index, have advanced 278 per cent in price, and the average yield of 15 leading railroad bonds has dropped from 7.43 per cent to 4.53 per cent.

Eventual Public Ownership.

Several other new developments affect the railroad outlook. First is Railroad Coordinator Eastman's report. He advocates eventual, although not immediate, Government ownership of the roads. The soundest argument for public ownership is the opportunity to stop abusive competition and to effect huge operating economies.

I firmly believe, however, that mergers and cooperation can bring about these desired results as satisfactorily under private as under public ownership. Moreover, the Government has stated itself as being highly in favor of sinking-fund operations. These sinking funds would be created out of net earnings to take care of bonds as they mature. While this would prevent the generous rail dividend policies of boom days, it should strengthen rail bonds.

A new development favorable to the industry is the Government's attempt to regulate unfair highway and waterway competition. The railroads, through Government control of their rates, fares, wages and the like, have been bound hand and foot.

Trucks and Barges.

Meanwhile, trucks and barges, using facilities which railroad taxes help to maintain, have had a free hand. Now highway and waterway carriers will be placed under much the same type of control as the railroads. No other class of carrier, operating under the same regulations, can compete successfully with the railroads on the "long haul." Thus, the railroads stand to benefit from these regulations.

The above means that the immediate outlook for the railroad and allied industries is encouraging. Because of the possibility of the creation of sinking funds and the threat of eventual public ownership of the roads, I am not so optimistic on the long-term outlook for the railroad stockholder. Railroad stocks are nothing to put in the baby's bank, but—for the near term—employes, passengers, freight senders, bondholders and equipment makers may rest assured that the railroad industry has temporarily taken a new lease on life.

Here is the car ideal! Can be changed from a completely closed car to an open phaeton to suit the weather. De luxe equipment includes 6 wire wheels, fender wells, luggage carrier, 2 trunks and rich, light leather upholstery. Powered with the famous Airman 6-cylinder air-cooled engine. The lines of this car are very exclusive and different; running boards are inclosed by wide, stream-lined doors which give extra width to both front and rear seats. Rear-seat windshield protects passengers when top is lowered. Has good tires all around and the body reflects the excellent care that has been given this expensive sport car by its former prominent owner. The power plant is in superb shape. A very rare bargain at $515.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY Police! By Harry J. Tuthill

WHAT AN OUTRAGE! THE VERY IDEA OF RED-HOTS HAVING THE CRUST TO BUST INTO A DETECTIVE AGENCY.
SH-H-H! NOT SO LOUD OLD MAN, PLEASE.
WE'LL OFFER A BIG REWARD FOR....
WELL THEN WE'LL CATCH THAT BABY OURSELVES AND PICKLE HIM IN SOME HOOSEGOW FROM NOW ON.
WE CAN'T IDENTIFY HIM WITHOUT FINGER-PRINTS.
OH IT SCORCHES ME UP PLENTY EVERY TIME I THINK OF MY WIFE CALMLY INSISTING SHE CAN'T REMEMBER FLINGING MY SWELL FINGER-PRINT OUTFIT INTO THE ASH CAN.
MY WORD, HOW I WISH I HAD BEEN HERE WHEN THAT BABY MADE HIS AFTER-DARK CALL.
I PASSED HUNDREDS OF EXAMS IN THOSE SCHOOLS, BUT NOT ONE OF THE QUESTIONS ASKED WHAT SHOULD BE DONE IF AN OPERATOR LOST HIS FINGER-PRINT OUTFIT.
MAYBE HE'LL COME BACK AGAIN. IF HE DOES, HE'LL FIND ME AND A BASEBALL BAT WAITING FOR HIM.

I TOLD YOU— DID YOU SEE THE TURNED UP NOSES AS THEY PASSED US? THEY'RE SO CONFIDENT OF GETTING THAT $10,000,000.00 THAT THEY WALK AROUND AS THOUGH THEY HAD IT IN THEIR POCKETS—
IF THEY GET $10,000,000.00 FROM POOR UNCLE BIM IT'S JUST HIGHWAY ROBBERY— THAT'S ALL— THEY DON'T DESERVE IT— AND THEY HAVEN'T EARNED IT—
WELL THEY'VE GOT A BLAMED GOOD ATTORNEY, MIN—
JUST TAKING $10,000,000.00 RIGHT OUT OF OUR POCKET— THAT'S WHAT THEY'RE DOING— HERE WE'VE DEVOTED OUR WHOLE LIVES TO UNCLE BIM ONLY TO HAVE A COUPLE OF PARASITES COME ALONG WHO HAVE NO RIGHT IN ANY WAY TO A CENT OF HIS MONEY— AND ROB US BLIND— WHAT HAVE THEY EVER DONE FOR UNCLE BIM? DICK TRACY Tightening

COME IN, MILREY!
SPALDONI! DID YOU SEE THIS IN THE MORNING PAPER?
LISTEN: "COMPARISON OF THE HANDWRITING ON TWO NOTES AND A MONEY RECEIPT LEAD POLICE TO BELIEVE A CERTAIN UNDERWORLD LAWYER IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE MURDER OF JEAN PENFIELD."
I KNOW ALL ABOUT IT. I MADE AN UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT TO GET THAT RECEIPT YESTERDAY.
I SHOULD HAVE FILLED THAT GUY TRACY AND HIS HALF-WITTED ASSISTANT FULL OF LEAD RIGHT THEN AND THERE WHILE I HAD THE CHANCE.
SAY, YOU GUYS!
THE COPS MUST HAVE US SPOTTED! AT LEAST JUST AS I CAME UP IN A CAB.... A GUY STROLLED OUT OF THE ENTRANCE OF THIS BUILDING. I TOOK A GOOD LOOK AT 'IM AND IT WAS THIS PEANUT-NOSED PAT PATTON TRACY'S ASSISTANT WHAT?

Walt Mason, Himself

The Dream Valley.

I saw a landscape painting, all beautiful and clear; no city smoke was tainting its virgin atmosphere; it showed a quiet valley all carpeted with green; no frowsy street or alley, no smokestack there was seen. I said, "I hope to find it, that valley far away, as artists have outlined it, and there I'd like to stay; for I am sick of clamor, the struggle that annoys, the fret and katzenjammer, and false and phoney joys." I saw it in my dreaming, and day by day I yearned to see its brooklets streaming whichever way I turned. And then I met a fellow who said he had been there; he said the place was yellow, and filled him with despair. "That valley's full of chiggers that crawl beneath your hide; no man can stand the rigors of such insecticide. And there are snakes with rattles, and other snakes with none, and, always seeking battles, they're crawling in the sun. And there are wasps with stingers which are a perfect fright; the hornets there are dingers, and nail a man on sight. That valley is a beauty, when looked at from afar; you think it is a duty to camp there with your car; but when within its borders the pests have all cut loose, you give your chauffeur orders to pack up and vamoose." I drag out my existence amid my native brakes; the dream spots in the distance are nearly always fakes.
